Hindenburg Defeats Hitler for Presidency

GERMANY BEATS NAZI CHIEF BY 6 MILLION VOTES

Five Fatalities Mark Bitter Election.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 10.—Paul von Hindenburg, 84 year old field marshal of the old imperial army, was reëlected president of the German republic today by an absolute majority over Adolf Hitler, his National Socialist (Fascist) rival, and Ernst Thaelmann, communist.

Final election returns were announced at 11 o'clock tonight as follows:

Von Hindenburg, nonpartisan .....19,359,000
Hitler, National Socialist....13,417,000
Thaelmann, communist .... 3,706,000

Thus, of a total vote of 36,482,000, Von Hindenburg was chosen to guide the ship of state for another seven years by a heavy majority, where a simple plurality would have sufficed.

Four Fatalities in Day.

The runoff election, following the indecisive election of March 13, in which Von Hindenburg missed receiving a majority by less than one-half of one per cent, was marked by five fatalities, with a few others injured in minor fights. On the whole, however, alert police kept down the disturbances.

In Hamburg two men were killed in a clash between Nazis and communists. Another man was slain in a fight between Hitler supporters and Reichsbanner republicans at Oldenburg. The wife of a 67 year old Munich laborer struck her husband with his cane when he attempted to tell her how to vote and he fell dead. Another man dropped dead of excitement in Berlin.

Rainstorms and dismal weather over the greater part of Germany held down the vote, but even so, the federal election board estimated that 80 per cent of the electorate voted as compared with 82.6 per cent in the first election four weeks ago.

Hindenburg Boosts Own Total.

Von Hindenburg's poll of more than 19,000,000 votes were just short of the goal of 20,000,000 of which his supporters were dreaming "as a figure which would prove to the world that the republic is safely established in Germany." Nevertheless, the president's gain of 704,310 votes increased the percentage of his own vote from 49.6 per cent to 53 per cent.

Hitler, though falling short of the 15,000,000 he had claimed, roughly gained 2,000,000 votes over his former total, yet the difference did not equal the vote cast for Lieut.-Col. Theodore Duesterberg, the Nationalist candidate of March 13, which was 6.8 per cent of the total in the first election.

The election proved a bitter disappointment to the communists. Their candidate, Thaelmann, received more than a million votes less than he did on March 13. The answer to this is the party's investigation of charges that many of its members bolted to vote for Hitler.

Fascists Are Jubilant.

Despite its defeat, the National Socialist party tonight is jubilant. Dr. Joseph Paul Goebbels, Hitler's chief lieutenant and his campaign manager, issued the following statement:

"The election has proved a triumphant victory for the Hitlerites. The chances of winning today's election were poor, but despite the slimness of these chances more than 13,000,000 Germans voted for Hitler, showing that he is not only a candidate of one party, but of all patriotic Germans.

"We only had four weeks in which to campaign, and of these three were barred for electioneering by the presidential decree of "an Easter truce." With only one week of campaigning Hitler boosted his total by 2,075,640—adequate proof that our movement is growing steadily. The votes we gained came from the communists and the Nationalists. In Berlin alone our gain was 200,000 votes."

Hitler Loses East Prussia.

Southern and western Germany, election figures showed, gave Von Hindenburg an overwhelming majority. In northern and eastern Germany the former field marshal and the former army sergeant and house painter ran almost neck and neck, though East Prussia, perhaps the most hotly contested district of Germany, again indorsed Von Hindenburg, who won, 546,000 votes to Hitler's 493,000 and Thaelmann's 85,000.

Here again Hitler, while gaining

PRIMARY FIGHT RAGES INTO ITS CLOSING HOURS

Foes Concentrate on Independent Vote.

Record Vote Forecast

Illinois is expected to cast well over 2,000,000 votes in tomorrow's primary, an all time record for a primary. The keen battle in the Democratic ranks for the first time in years, it is forecast, will bring out something like the full party strength at the polls. Details page 4.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Last minute appeals to the independent voters of both parties will mark the windup today of the campaign for Illinois' primaries tomorrow—primaries in which experts say 2,000,000 or more votes will be cast.

Except for some eleventh hour deals and sell-outs, as the politicians call them, the organization work has all been done, and the final efforts of the candidates will be directed toward lining up the independent vote that no office holder, ward committeeman, or precinct captain can deliver.

Unusual importance is attached to this vote this year. One of the chief reasons for the situation was found in late verification of rumors that nearly all headquarters are short of cash for the final touches to organization work.

Cash Is Thinly Spread.

Because of the multiplicity of candidates, the sum total spent for "manning the polls" may be up to the average, but no one candidate or organization apparently will approach the expenditures of former years for this purpose.

All of the managers have been complaining for weeks that "times are hard," that contributions weren't coming in the way they used to, and that they would have to cut down their allotments per precinct in Chicago and per county downstate.

Now these plaints have been corroborated by information that $30 a precinct is the highest Chicago ward allowance made on behalf of any candidate or ticket, and that several managers have sent word to county after county downstate that they will have absolutely no money for their workers at the polls.

Chance for Independents.

This is believed to give the nonfactional, unobligated Republican and Democrat alike an unusual opportunity to make his vote count. For that reason the appeals at the farewell noon meetings in the loop and the last roundups in the wards tonight will be drawn up in a way intended to reach outside the lines of the organizations.

So far as can be learned, only two camps have anything like the normal amount of cash in sight to meet the primary day demand. They are the Emmerson organization backing Omer N. Custer, which is said to have benefited from a widespread assessment on state employés, and the regular Democratic organization, which has benefited from having in the field a complete ticket, whose combined candidates have been able to raise enough money to finance a modest but thorough campaign.

Custer Fund Widespread.

The Custer fund is said not only to have come into the Chicago headquarters but to have been collected by county chairmen and managers for use within their own counties, the assessments being levied upon state employés within those counties for local use. This, to some extent, has spared the headquarters from demands for help from the downstaters.

Other Republican governorship candidates, with one exception, have conducted economical campaigns and will spend little for manning the polls. William H. Malone, who calls himself the "taxpayers' candidate," has put on an expensive radio and newspaper campaign estimated to have cost about $250,000.

Small Camp in Turmoil.

Oscar E. Carlstrom and Edward J. Brundage, particularly the latter, have had only small campaign funds with which to work, and one of the shocks to the old time followers of Len Small has been to receive word in the last few days that his cash contribution toward their labors tomorrow will be only a fraction of what it has been in former contests.

Many of the old Smallites are said

Doctor Freed, Tells Thrilling Story of Gang

Dr. A. E. Budde, one of Lake county's leading physicians, returned to his North Chicago home yesterday after spending 24 hours as the captive of a Chicago bootlegging gang. He was kidnaped early Saturday when five gangsters mistook him for a whisky runner whom they intended taking for a ride. After being held captive all day in a gang distillery which he believes was in Cicero, he was taken to Niles, Mich., early yesterday, robbed and released.

Dr. Budde is president of the board of the Victory Memorial hospital at Waukegan, city physician of North Chicago and is prominent in Masonic activities. Citizens of North Chicago and Waukegan held a massmeeting Saturday night to organize a search for him, enlisted several hundred vigilantes to scour the county, and obtained the aid of planes from the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Tells Story of Kidnaping.

Dr. Budde was visibly shaken as he told his experiences after returning to his home. His eyes were inflamed and his wrists swollen by the tape which his captors had used to blindfold and bind him. His wife, the former Countess Madeline de Colnet D'Huart of Belgium, clung to his arm in terror as her husband told his story.

"I had been asleep about an hour Friday evening when a man knocked on my door," Dr. Budde said. "His face seemed familiar to me, but I can't recall who he was. He told me that he had been driving on 10th street near Dugdale road, and had found a man and woman who had been hurt when their automobile went into a ditch. I left a note and started out in my car.

"I found the automobile. The man said that he had lost his way while driving from Milwaukee to Chicago, and that the girl who was with him had been knocked unconscious when he went into the ditch. I could see that she had received a bad bump but was not seriously hurt. I attended her. The man gave me $10 and I gave him $5 change. I placed the bill in my watch pocket, which, as it turned out later, was fortunate.

Taken Into Gangsters' Car.

"I was driving back home when at 14th street a big car passed me and pulled across in front of me.

HOOVER OFFERS TO BE $1 A YEAR MAN; SALARY IS $75,000

Washington, D. C., April 10.—(AP)—President Hoover has offered to become a $1 a year man.

Members of the house who attended yesterday's economy conference at the White House reported today that Mr. Hoover stated he would waive his constitutional right against a salary cut and accept whatever reduction was suggested.

Chairman McDuffie of the house economy committee said today he had pointed out to the President the unconstitutionality of such action by congress and had suggested as an alternative that whatever sum Mr. Hoover thought best be returned.

A President receives $75,000 a year and this sum cannot be reduced while he is in office.

Lawyers Gird for Battle in Massie Trial

HONOLULU, April 10.—(AP)—A jury composed of six nationalities will begin hearing evidence tomorrow in the trial of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, American society matron, and three naval men charged with the murder of Joseph Kahahawai, young Hawaiian.

MRS. GRANVILLE FORTESCUE.

Ready for Alienist.

There was no further hint today of the possible use by the defense of two alienists who arrived here Thursday from the mainland. They are Dr. Edward Huntington Williams and Dr. James Orbison, both of Los Angeles.

John C. Kelley, public prosecutor, indicated he is ready for alienists if the defense seeks to prove Mrs. Fortescue and her companions were insane or temporarily unbalanced when they shot Kahahawai.

The Hawaiian was one of five charged with a criminal attack on Mrs. Thalia Massie, daughter of Mrs. Fortescue, and wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, one of the defendants. Two naval enlisted men, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, are the other co-defendants.

Defense to Seek Acquittal Verdict.

It seemed certain today that the defense will ask a direct verdict of acquittal when the prosecution completes presentation of its evidence. So far as is known the evidence against the four is purely circumstantial. If there were witnesses to the shooting of the Hawaiian, the fact has not been made public.

The prosecution has realized the circumstantial nature of the case and apparently has been guided by that fact throughout the selection of the jury. Kelley, in questioning veniremen, asked each if he were willing to convict on circumstantial evidence.

The legal fight that starts tomorrow is expected to develop facts in Hawaii's unrest, an unrest that has grown since Mrs. Massie was attacked six months ago and high naval authorities charged Honolulu is unsafe for American women.

Richmond, Ind., April 10.—(AP)—A trimotored plane carrying Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley and a party of friends, crashed here this afternoon, but no one was injured. They were en route to Washington from Indianapolis and were forced down by a low ceiling. The pilot overshot the field and struck a fence. The plane was seriously damaged. Hurley and his guests continued by automobile to Dayton, O., where they were to take a train for Washington.

Kidnapers Fear Trap if They Keep Bills; Demand Gold.

New York, April 10.—[Special.]—As an aftermath of the swindling of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh out of the $50,000 ransom for his son, a suspect in the kidnaping has been arrested while his story and alibi are being checked, it was announced today by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey state police. His name is not revealed because "the life of the baby depends on it."

There was tense excitement at the Lindbergh home near Hopewell, N. J., during the day, due apparently to a report that the kidnapers of the baby had communicated with Col. Lindbergh since his announcement late yesterday that he had paid $50,000 without effecting the return of his son.

Deliver Money Week Ago.

The actual delivery of the money—4,750 bank notes in three separate packages—was accomplished at the Long Island Aviation Country club at Hicksville, L. I., a week ago today.

Present at the meeting were Col. Lindbergh, Col. Henry Breckinridge, his counsel; John Fogarty, a private detective, and a representative of Dr. John F. Condon Sr., an intermediary for Col. Lindbergh and the kidnapers and an agent of the kidnapers.

Lindbergh earlier in the afternoon of the day the money was delivered had piloted his three passengers over the Massachusetts coast and apparently had been shown the spot at which his baby was to be left the following day.

Broadcast to Every Bank.

The new offer of the kidnapers, it is understood, is to return the currency—the serial numbers of which have been broadcast to every bank in the country—and accept a similar amount in some other form, either gold coin or perhaps gold dust, after the child actually has been returned.

The gold, it was pointed out, could be exchanged for paper money without question at the New York assay office or at any bank. The kidnapers are said to have expressed the belief that even though Col. Lindbergh desired, he could not prevent banks from checking serial numbers of any money that might be paid to them in paper form.

It was understood that the kidnapers informed Col. Lindbergh that his delay of several days in releasing the serial numbers of the bills convinced them he would keep his word when they turned over their hostage.

Kidnapers Leave Secret Code.

Col. Lindbergh revealed tonight that the criminals who stole his infant son provided for their subsequent identification in the original ransom note they left in the empty nursery.

It was this secret code provided by the criminals themselves which enabled Col. Lindbergh to identify genuine communications from the kidnapers and which induced him to part with $50,000 in the vain belief that by paying the ransom demanded he would get his baby back.

The aviator revealed these often guessed-at facts never confirmed officially before, in a formal statement issued on his behalf by Col. Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police at the state house in Trenton, N. J.

Statement by Lindbergh.

The statement follows:

"At the time the baby was kidnaped a ransom note demanding $50,000 was left in the nursery. For obvious reasons it was necessary to withhold all information concerning this ransom note. A means was offered in the ransom note of positive identification of the kidnapers thereafter.

"Subsequent notes received were identified by this means. At the time that the ransom was paid over to the kidnapers used this same means to positively identify themselves as the ones who had carried off the baby.

"This is the only means by which Col. Lindbergh can know for a fact that he is dealing with the kidnapers. It has been withheld and will be withheld by Col. Lindbergh for future identification.

Act to Accomplish Safe Return.

"It must be remembered that the baby has not been returned and it has been and still is the policy of the police authorities that the primary motive is to accomplish the safe return of the baby and all efforts are and will be bent in this direction."

Col. Lindbergh's explanation of the manner in which the persons who mulcted him of $50,000 after robbing him of his baby came after Col. Schwarzkopf had revealed that the police have been holding a suspect in custody since Friday.

Not Seen Since Kidnaping.

In announcing the arrest of the suspect, Col. Schwarzkopf revealed that much of the official investigation has been devoted to "a noted character who was reported to us as not having been seen since the kidnaping."

"An informant definitely connected him with the crime," he said, "and this is one of the lines of investigation referred to in the earlier bulletins which we could not disclose at the time.

"This investigation caused a very considerable amount of work in Wertsville, Somerville, Long Branch, Atlantic Highlands, Philadelphia, Plattsburg, Staten Island, New York City, Montreal, Long Island, Jersey City, and a number of farms in rural New Jersey.

Caught at Home of Mother.

"This man was finally apprehended at the home of his mother in New York City last Friday and was interviewed. His story and alibi are now being checked, and in a day or two further details can be given as to the findings."

At New York police headquarters Capt. Richard Oliver admitted his men had made the arrest at the request of Inspector Harry Walsh of Jersey City, who has taken a prominent part in the Lindbergh case. He said he was honor bound not to reveal the name or address of the prisoner, or to say where the police had found him. The man has no police record, and never has been arrested, Capt. Oliver declared.

"I suppose he is being questioned now by the Jersey City police," he said, in answer to a question. "I can't tell you who he is, because the life of the baby depends on it."

"Jafsie" Advertisement.

Dr. Condon, a 72 year old lecturer at Fordham university, whose "Jafsie" advertisements had brought the negotiations to a climax, had offered $1,000 in an interview in a Bronx newspaper on March 8 for the return of the baby. He also had offered to act as intermediary.

In view of Col. Lindbergh's statement that the kidnapers had left a positive means of identification in the ransom note, the report that thte famous flyer had been the victim of a hoax was discounted . For a few days after the "Jafsie" advertisement appeared Dr. Condon received a letter which read:,

"Dear Condon: We don't want your $1,000. We know we can trust you."

Enclosed in the same envelope was a letter addressed to Col. Lindbergh. When Dr. Condon called the colonel and told him about the note, Lindbergh said:

"Open the letter and read it to me."

Some phrases of the message with a German or Scandinavian tinge intrigued Lindbergh at once and he asked how it was signed. When Dr. Condon described the cryptic symbol which served for a signature, Lindbergh said immediately, "I'll send my car for you."

Confers with Professor.

After a conference at Hopewell the aged professor agreed to act as an intermediary. After some preliminary dealings with the supposed kidnapers he received a note one evening delivered by a taxicab driver. The message asked him to accompany the driver. He was driven several blocks and told to change to another cab, which was waiting. Then he was taken to a cemetery in Yonkers which is surrounded by a high wall. He was told to walk along the wall until he was told to stop. After pacing a hundred feet or more, a voice from the other side advised him to cross the street and sit on a bench in the park. He complied. A moment later a figure vaulted over the wall and sat beside him on the bench.

The man appeared to be either German or Scandinavian, Dr. Condon said. He was about 45 years old, of athletic build and slightly taller than the average. He sat on the extreme end of the bench and kept his face averted as much as possible.

"Get in touch with Lindbergh and tell him there won't be any compromise," he said. "He has refused to deal with us because we want $70,000. He could have had the baby for $50,000 if he hadn't notified the police, but because of this delay we have to split with somebody else.

Refuse Lindy's C. O. D. Offer.

"He wants to pay $50,000 c. o. d., but there's nothing doing. We can wait just as long as he can."

Dr. Condon said he asked about a code for use in communication, but the kidnapers' agent said the want ads would suffice. After the negotiations had progressed further, the Fordham professor arranged a meeting between his correspondents and Col. Henry Breckinridge, Lindbergh's counsel. Breckinridge declared that $50,000 was all that could be raised and said the money had been prepared so he could put his hands on it at once. The supposed kidnapers appeared satisfied, and the negotiations continued.

Series of Advertisements.

The series of advertisements carried in a Bronx newspaper failed to bring the deal to a head. Apparently worried by the delay, the kidnapers sent Dr. Condon an ultimatum by telephone. It demanded that the money be paid by April 8, or the price would be raised to $100,000.

Then followed the transaction by which Col. Lindbergh turned over $50,000 in bills of $5, $10 and $20 denominations on the understanding that his child was to be left in a certain spot.

When he and Col. Breckinridge flew to the designated place last Monday—the day after the money had been delivered—they did not find the child. Lindbergh apparently hesitated between a conviction that he had been duped and a possibility that some hitch had occurred in the kidnapers' plans.

The "delay" theory is held by Dr. Condon, who tacitly admits that Martha's Vineyard, scene of unusual coast guard activities that week-end, was the place picked for the baby's return.

"Have you give up the negotiations?" he was asked today.

"Not so you could notice it," he said. "If I start into anything I never give up at all."

"But how do you explain the fact that the baby wasn't left where it was supposed to be?"

"That's simple," Dr. Condon replied. "If you were the kidnaper, afraid of being led into a trap, and you saw that the place you were to leave the baby was surrounded by coast guard boats, planes, and police, what would you do?"

Lindbergh, however, appeared to have less faith in the ultimate honesty of those with whom he had been dealing. After his two airplane excursions had failed he waited one day, apparently, and then—either on Tuesday night or Wednesday morning—communicated with government officials.

The circular sent out by W. O. Woods, treasurer of the United States, which listed the serial numbers of the ransom bills, was dated Wednesday, April 8. There still was some doubt in the mind of Col. Lindbergh that he had been completely duped, because he hastened to explain in a police bulletin, as soon as news of the bank circular became public, that he released the serial numbers only as a last resort after the plans had fallen through.

A number of big cars arrived at the Hopewell estate during the morning and their occupants were joined in the home by Col. Schwarzkopf for a lengthy conference.

Pastor Flies to Hopewell.

Norfolk, Va., April 10.—[Special.]—John H. Curtis, leader in the efforts he and Rear Admiral Burrage, retired, and the Rev. Dean H. Dobson-Peacock, rector of Christ Episcopal church of this city, are making to recover the kidnaped son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, left Norfolk today to confer with Lindbergh. The conference is supposed to have bearing on the paying of $50,000 ransom by Col. Lindbergh to supposed kidnapers without having his baby returned to him.

Curtis and Lieut. George L. Richard are supposed to have left Norfolk together. Mrs. Curtis said her husband left about 8:30 o'clock this morning and Mrs. Richard said her husband left "early this morning."

At the Hampton Roads naval operating base all information concerning the departure of Lieut. Richard was withheld, except the bare statement that he had flown away.

All three of the Norfolk negotiators deny any knowledge of the transaction involving the paying of $50,000 ransom by Col. Lindbergh. They assert the transaction has nothing whatever to do with the negotiations they have undertaken. They claim they still have faith in the parties with whom they are dealing for the recovery of the baby. The newest development, however, they claim, may result in the collapse of the Norfolk negotiations.

Reveal Secrets of Lindbergh Baby Kidnaping in Investigation Made by 60 Federal Agents

New York, April 10.—[Special.]—How a telephone call from Washington prevented the arrest of Betty Gow, presumably for lack of evidence, and has practically put an end to the work of sixty federal investigators in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping was disclosed here tonight by a man who was constantly with the investigators.

The informant, who was familiar with the entire federal aspect of the case several weeks also told of a previous disappearance of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. and supplied new and mysterious details that have filled investigators of the present one with amazement. The call from Washington to the Lindbergh home at Hopewell, N. J., where the infant disappeared on March 1, came after a partner in a New York banking house had called one of President Hoover's cabinet officers, it was learned. The Washington order to the federal investigators was that under no circumstances should there be an arrest of Betty Gow, the Scotch nurse of the Lindbergh baby.

Nurse Absolved by Lindbergh.

It was about this time in the investigation that Col. Lindbergh absolved Betty Gow of any connection with the kidnaping of the baby. This and many of the mystical and peculiar circumstances with which the federal inquisitors met is explained to some degree by the character of Col. Lindbergh himself, the informant said. His whole policy in dealing with the case has been one of persistence in holding to the idea that nothing should be done which could be interpreted by the kidnapers as a breach of faith.

This extended to a refusal to permit incisive methods in the questioning of Miss Gow and other servants. The colonel is said to have carried this policy to what the investigators called "an extreme eccentricity," but no argument was able to shake him in this regard.

Tells of Promise.

Only once was this rule, laid down by the colonel, broken. That was when, without Col. Lindbergh's knowledge, federal men questioned Miss Gow alone. It was on this occasion, it was learned, that when the probers became incisive that Miss Gow exclaimed, "I was promised I wouldn't be touched."

"Who promised you?" she was asked.

"Col. Lindbergh," she replied.

After that, the informant said, when efforts were made by the government men to question Miss Gow, Col. Lindbergh insisted that one of Col. A. Norman Schwartzkopf's state troopers must be present. The federal investigator is said to have refused to question the girl under these circumstances and a short time later the call from Washington was received practically ordering the discontinuance of the methods which had, in the opinion of the government men on the scene, begun to bring out interesting information.

It was learned that the previous disappearance of the child occurred last summer, when the baby was found in an unventilated clothes closet by a former nurse. This incident was described by members of the Lindbergh household as "a practical joke to scare the butler."

1. The federal authorities were unable to get a look at the original ransom letter, said to have been left by the kidnapers, from Col. Lindbergh.

2. The shallowness of the impressions left by the ladder under the nursery window in the soft, wet loam that had been deposited as the base for a lawn indicated that no man had been on that ladder.

3. Footprints were found in the mud surrounding the ladder, but there was no trace of the mud on the carpet in the nursery when Miss Gow discovered the child's absence.

4. The government agents were told that the ransom letter was found in the center of the twelve inch shelf-like sill of the open window. They are said to have proved to their own satisfaction that a breeze as strong as the one blowing on the night of the kidnaping would have dislodged the note.

Story of Investigation.

The inception of the federal investigation came when an agent arrived at the lonely house at 3 o'clock in the morning about the 15th of March, according to the informant, and questioned Miss Gow before Col. Lindbergh, who had been away, returned at 6:30.

The U. S. agent had previously questioned Henry [Red] Johnson, Miss Gow's sweetheart, who had expressed his love for the girl and his intention of marrying her.

Miss Gow declared that her acquaintance with Johnson was casual and that she cared nothing about him. She then gave what purported to be her complete knowledge of the child's disappearance and the circumstances preceding it.

"You're lying," the investigator told her. She was advised that her personal welfare and safety might depend upon a full disclosure of what she knew of the case and it was then that she is said to have replied:

"Col. Lindbergh promised I wouldn't be touched."

Tells of Disappearance.

It was then that the investigator is reported to have told her he knew she was lying because she failed to mention an important incident about which he learned from her sweetheart, Red Johnson.

"O, you mean the last disappearance," she remarked, casually.

"That was last summer," she went on. "I wasn't here then, Mrs. Cummings was the nurse. She found the baby in the clothes closet. I don't think he had been there over forty minutes."

The investigator then questioned the butler in the home and verified the story of the "last disappearance." The butler, however, said the baby had been missing for about an hour when it was found in the closet. He mentioned something about another disappearance, but said it was of no importance and refused to discuss it further.

Mrs. Lindbergh was next questioned by the chief of the federal investigators and after a few preliminary questions he asked her bluntly to "explain the last disappearance." After a slight pause Mrs. Lindbergh is said to have replied:

"Well, my husband is a practical joker." In this connection, the informant said, members of the household told the investigators that Col. Lindbergh dropped a piece of dry ice, which is so cold that it produces a sensation of burning, down the back of Mrs. Henry Breckenridge three days after the disappearance of the child. On another occasion Col. Lindbergh is said to have tied the clothes of several guests into hard knots while they were still in bed and then called them to breakfast.

Col. Lindbergh himself was said to have been asked to "explain the last disappearance," but did not see fit to do so. He took the position that his wife's explanation was sufficient, the government reported.

A Thorough Investigation.

During their two weeks' investigation, the sixty federal men took a census of every human being in the vicinity of the Lindbergh home within a radius of 10 miles and learned nothing of importance.

Col. Lindbergh is said to have been an example of urbanity in his treatment of the federal investigating chief, of whom the other scores of investigators became envious. The colonel, according to the informant, was voluble in his discussions of flying, including his flights to Paris and Japan, but more taciturn in his responses to questions about the kidnaping, being bound by his mysterious vows not to break faith with the kidnapers nor violate their instructions.

Tell Fugitive's Name.

Cable dispatches here tonight said that the real purpose of the mysterious trip of Maj. Charles H. Schoeffel of New Jersey police to London was to seek one Umberto Bianchi, forger and former Sing Sing convict, whose picture had been identified by the Lindbergh butler as that of a man who applied for a job as gardener shortly before the kidnaping.

Bianchi escaped from Governor's island last Sept. 1 after bribing Corporal Alfred G. Bral with a forged $400,000 letter of credit and $3,800 in cash for his freedom. He was being held there by federal immigration authorities as a suspected alien smuggler, having been removed from Sing Sing where he was serving a forgery term.

$50,000 IN GOLD COIN ASKED BY KIDNAPERS WEIGHS 185 POUNDS

Difficulties in the transportation of $50,000 in gold, which it is reported the kidnapers of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's son have demanded in lieu of currency, would not be great.

Minted gold coins contain 25.8 grains of gold—nine-tenths fine—to the dollar. Thus a $20 gold piece weighs 516 grains. As there are 7,000 grains to the avoirdupois pound, the value of that pound of gold would be approximately $271. The total weight of the $50,000 in gold pieces would be about 185 pounds.

The bulk of the package to contain this would be extremely small, as the specific gravity of gold is nearly twenty times that of water.

DILIGENT BANDIT FINDS A VICTIM IN PRISON CELL

Among the prisoners in line at the police showup in the detective bureau yesterday afternoon were Bruno Michalak, 2333 Harding avenue, and Michael DeSteffano, said to be a member of the 42 gang of west side hoodlums.

No one in the audience identified either, but before they left the rostrum Michalak announced he would like to make an identification. Then, pointing to DeSteffano, he said:

"This man robbed me in a cell at the Warren avenue police station."

He then related that after being locked up on a charge of reckless driving three men were thrust in the cell with him. DeSteffano was one of these and he demanded money from Michalak. When the latter refused to give any DeSteffano knocked him down and took his $12. One of the other prisoners objected to the holdup and the 42 gangster seized his watch and broke it.

Having heard the tale, the police charged the lockup bandit with robbery and took him and the complainant back to Warren avenue. This time they were locked in separate cells.

Candidates Concentrate on Independent Vote.

to have counted on something like the usual apportionment and are reported to have gone on strike when the news arrived. Small is said to have refused to put up any of his own money for his campaign.

On the Democratic battlefield Bruce A. Campbell of East St. Louis is said to have established a low record for expenditures for precinct and county work. It is said that the money he has spent has come largely from his own pocket.

Igoe Forces Trim Outlay.

The Michael L. Igoe forces started out on an expensive scale but it is said they recently found themselves so short of cash that they will be able to do little toward manning the polls except with volunteers.

The regular Democratic organization has the advantage of its vast pay roll army upon which it may call for polls work without pay, but it also will use volunteers to a large extent.

The Illinois Young People's Democratic league, it is announced, will have "junior precinct captains" at work in all precincts of 44 out of the 50 wards of the city. Floyd M. Kenlay, son-in-law of Mayor Cermak, is president of the organization. Members of a Democratic service men's organization also will be on duty at many polling places.

The Volunteer Workers for Henry Horner and Associates, organized during the campaign, also will assign both men and women workers to the precincts.

Sabbath a "Day Off."

As has been true in this campaign, Sunday was largely a "day off" for most of the big candidates. The radio was in use all day long, but most of the meetings, although they were numerous, were small ones of an organization character.

Carlstrom headquarters issued a statement by Howard P. Savage, former national commander of the American Legion, now business manager for the school board, saying that Carlstrom is the only Republican who can win in November.

"Chicago," read the statement, "is too strongly anti-prohibition to give great support to Omer Custer, the Anti-Saloon league-Emmerson candidate. Small cannot expect to get far in the places that have been the sources of his strength in the past. The records show he has won by getting the vote in Democratic wards. This year the Democrats have a real battle of their own. The members of that party are staying within their own ranks to take part in that battle and they will not be voting for Small."

Brundage Follows Suit.

Brundage took something of the same tack in his speeches during the day.

"Why set the table for the Democrats in November?" he asked. "No Custer, no Small, no Emmerson, no Carlstrom, to say nothing of Malone, can hope to lead the Republican party out of the wilderness in which it has been left by pretended prohibition and baseless promises of prosperity.

"There is not the slightest doubt that the Democrats will nominate a liberal Chicagoan and he will be difficult to defeat in November's election by any Republican because of the handicap the Hoover administration has placed on the party. Above and beyond all consideration of personal ambition, I say to you that Chicago must come into its own in the November election after sixteen years' domination by downstate, dry, banker-politicians."

Custer Assails Carlstrom.

Custer directed his attacks during the day at Attorney General Carlstrom.

"The state Supreme court," he said, "held that $1,300,000 in interest money should have gone into the state treasury when Small was treasurer. Mr. Carlstrom let Mr. Small off for $650,000.

"The people of Illinois had a claim against the Illinois Central for $8,000,000, but Carlstrom settled that suit for $1,500,000."

In a repetition of his indorsement of Judge Robert E. Gentzel for the Republican nomination for attorney general, Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin called attention to the fact that the Chicago Bar association pronounced Judge Gentzel "exceptionally well qualified" when he was a candidate for reelection to the Municipal court in 1926 and that when he was elected to the Superior court in 1929 he received the highest vote given any judicial candidate in that election.

Mr. Reinhardt, making his initial bow in politics, received the indorsement of the club, and its members are working actively in his behalf. A committee consisting of Mrs. Constance Mead of Flossmoor, president; Mrs. Vivian Rapelye, Flossmoor, chairman of the membership committee, and Mrs. Nina Davis, Homewood, press chairman of the club, through telephone and personal solicitation are seeking to turn out a majority vote for Mr. Reinhardt.

LIBERALS REPORT G. O. P. UPRISING FOR A NEW DEAL

Anti-Prohibition Delegates Gain Strength.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The movement to elect a compact group of anti-prohibition delegates to the Republican national convention in June, pledged to fight for a wet plank in the national platform, a plank to cut cost of government and bureaucracy, and to oppose any candidate for presidential nomination not in accord with these views, appeared to get a redoubled response yesterday.

Bernard W. Snow, Republican county chairman, who launched the drive, reported last night that his headquarters had been kept busy all day with incessant calls for information as to the candidates for delegates in the various districts.

A Real Uprising.

"It looks more than ever like a real uprising," said Mr. Snow. "There has been a steady call all day both from Chicago and downstate from voters who want to know how they can help the movement.

"The response as the polls approach, indicates that Republican voters on Tuesday are ready to enforce their demand for lower costs of government, for repeal of the 18th amendment and for tax relief of the citizens through the collection of an excise tax on beer and wine.

"It will go hard with local leaders who are shouting economy and protesting their wetness and at the same time are supporting candidates who stand for exactly the opposite. To pretend to be wet while supporting the white ribbon candidate of the Anti-Saloon league for governor, and working for the renomination of President Hoover is resented by Republican voters as political dishonesty.

Ten to One for Repeal.

"Chicago is ten to one in favor of prohibition repeal and the voters know that the only way to make their protest effective is by nominating a repealist for governor and voting for candidates for delegates to the national convention who have had the courage and intellectual honesty to declare the purpose of fighting for reduced costs of all government and opposing the renomination of President Hoover. Illinois will lead the way in the national convention to a new platform policy and to the selection of a Republican presidential candidate who has a chance of election."

POLLS WORKERS ARE TO BE PAID; WORK ON CHECKS

JOS. B. M'DONOUGH.

The 15,500 judges and clerks of the primary are to be paid tomorrow night, according to an announcement yesterday by County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough. Each judge and clerk is to receive $20 for receiving, counting, and delivering the votes for the 2,000 candidates.

"Part of the money is in hand from the earnings of the county fee offices," explained McDonough, "and I feel confident that I will be able to get the remainder tomorrow. It requires $318,000 for judges and clerks alone.

"A group of clerks was busy Saturday night and yesterday making out the checks, and they will be finished by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The last of them will then be delivered to the county controller for his signature.

"Tomorrow night we will have a staff ready with the checks to be delivered to the judges and clerks after they have delivered their ballot boxes to the county building.

PREDICT RECORD 2,000,000 VOTE ON PRIMARY DAY

Democrats Expected to Turn Out in Force.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Tomorrow's primary promises to be the largest in the history of Illinois. More than 2,000,000, and perhaps in excess of 2,300,000, voters are expected to express their preferences on the candidates for governor in both parties.

The major portion of the increased vote will probably be registered in the Democratic column. The Democrats believe they have a chance to win next November, and their gubernatorial contest will probably bring out 75 to 100 per cent more voters than they have ever gotten to the primary polls in a state contest.

The unpopularity of President Hoover and the business depression will probably serve to prevent any great increase in the number of Republican primary voters.

Primary Votes Estimated.

Judging by the number and size of the ward meetings held, the theaters rented, the radio talks made, the fragmentary straw votes taken and the advertisements printed, a reasonable guess on the total Democratic vote is between 580,000 and 650,000, and on the Republican vote between 1,480,000 and 1,660,000. The probable distribution would be as follows:

| DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY. | Low. | High. |
|---|---|---|
| Cook county | 325,000 | 350,000 |
| Downstate | 255,000 | 300,000 |
| Totals | 580,000 | 650,000 |

| REPUBLICAN PRIMARY. | Low. | High. |
|---|---|---|
| Cook county | 730,000 | 800,000 |
| Downstate | 750,000 | 860,000 |
| Total | 1,480,000 | 1,660,000 |
| Both parties | 2,060,000 | 2,310,000 |

The maximum figures for the Republican primary are a duplicate of the vote in the Emmerson-Small contest of four years ago. The five major Republican candidates for governor, their managers and adherents assert that this is the most hotly contested primary the party has ever had in Illinois, but history is more likely to repeat itself than to spring an innovation.

G. O. P. Figure May Be High.

The minimum Republican figures in the foregoing table are 60,000 above the number of voters who took part in the senatorial contest of 1930, and they represent about 80 per cent of the Republicans who voted for Hoover or Emmerson in 1928. That percentage appears high, and it would not be surprising if the total Republican vote in tomorrow's primary were 200,000 less than the minimum estimate above.

The Democratic primary, however, appears to have unusual interest. It is the only real state contest of the Democrats since primaries were inaugurated in Illinois.

That prospect for a heavy vote is reported to be giving the Democratic organization some concern. When the vote is small the organization is certain to control, but it has not had any experience with a large vote in a state primary and consequently does not know what its powers are.

Democrats May Set Record.

In no state contest have there ever been 325,000 Democratic votes cast in Cook county. Indeed, there have never been 200,000. The nearest approach the Democratic organization has made in the last 15 years to showing what it is capable of doing in a primary was in the mayoralty contest of last year when 244,118 Democratic votes were cast. Mayor Cermak had only nominal opposition, but the organization went out to see how many votes it could pile up.

The fragmentary straw votes indicate that the present Democratic interest in the governorship candidates is at least a third greater than the party's interest in its candidates in the usual Democratic primary. If that indication is borne out, it would easily be possible for the Democrats to poll 325,000 votes in Cook county.

High by Past Standards.

That, however, seems high in comparison with previous county votes cast in Democratic state primaries. In the contest for United States senator in 1930, Senator James Hamilton Lewis and his competitors polled an aggregate of 194,346 votes in Cook. When Mayor Cermak was a candidate for United States senator in 1928, 154,735 Democrats in Cook county participated in the primary.

When Floyd Thompson was a candidate for governor in that same year, there were 138,677 Democrats who voted for candidates governor. When the late George Brennan was a candidate for United States senator in 1926, the Cook county Democratic primary vote was 168,418. In 1924 when Justice Norman Jones of the state Supreme court was a candidate for governor, the Cook county Democrats polled 172,060.

It is apparent that if the county Democrats get 325,000 voters to the polls tomorrow, they will get about twice as many as have recently taken part in a state wide Democratic primary, and a third more than voted in Chicago for Mayor Cermak last year.

Downstate Figure Large.

The above minimum of 255,000 voters downstate is also about twice as many Democrats as usually participate in primaries. For United States senator in 1930 the Democrats polled 132,966. For governor in 1928 they numbered 105,419. For United States senator in 1926 they polled 127,434; for governor in 1924 they polled 132,341, and for treasurer in 1922, 109,186.

As compared with the minimum estimate of 580,000 for the whole state, the Democrats numbered 327,312 in the 1930 primary, 247,815 in the 1928 primary, 295,852 in 1926, 304,401 in 1924, 252,549 in 1922, and 180,544 in 1920.

The ratio between the number of Democrats in Cook county and downstate in primaries is usually 56 to 44. Of the Democrats who voted in the primaries of 1928, 1926, 1924, and 1922, Cook county polled a trifle more than 56 per cent and downstate a trifle more than 43 per cent. In 1920 Cook county polled 54 per cent of the Democrats and downstate 45 per cent, and in the 1930 contest Cook accounted for 59 per cent and downstate for 40 per cent.

Arriving at the Estimate.

Unless the unusual happens, Cook county Democrats voting in tomorrow's primary will number more than those of downstate, and if the Democratic organization is as strong as it thinks it is, Cook county should have 325,000 Democrats in the voting booths tomorrow. If that is to be 56 per cent of the total, then downstate should have about 255,000—its 44 per cent.

News reports from downstate estimate that the total Democratic votes there will be higher than 255,000. If so, then there is probably as much interest in Cook county as downstate and Cook's total will also be higher.

The higher the total, the more uncertain is the probable result, because Chicago Democrats in past primaries downstate have not been as popular as a downstater in the same contest.

A Couple of Illustrations.

George Brennan in 1926 as candidate for United States senator had the organization support and did extensive campaigning downstate. When the primary votes were counted he had 61,355 from downstate, while James O. Monroe had 46,568. In 1928 when Mayor Cermak was the organization candidate for senator his vote downstate was 33,166, while James O. Monroe rolled up 59,917.

The Republican "organization" in Chicago is split five ways on the face of the information made public by the managers of five major candidates. Some ward committeemen are listed as supporting two or more gubernatorial candidates, so it is uncertain which way they will flop tomorrow. But the Republicans have had considerable experience with a primary vote of more than 1,200,000.

41,000 TO GUARD POLLS; JARECKI FEARS TROUBLE

Police Continue to Jail Known Hoodlums.

Police continued their drive yesterday to place hoodlums behind cell bars until after the primary, while election officials arranged the disposition of an army of police and watchmen to guard against fraud as the balloting goes on tomorrow. Including the volunteer watchers of various political factions, more than 41,000 persons will be on guard at the polls.

The hoodlum roundup placed 111 men in cells at the detective bureau yesterday, but only two of these were considered first rank gunmen. They were Jimmy Belcastro, long known as "king of the bombers," who was picked up by a detective squad at 79th street and Cottage Grove avenue, far from his west side haunts, and Jack Barry, ex-convict and associate of the west side O'Donnell beer gangsters.

O'Donnell Gains Release.

Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, south side beer chief, was arrested Friday with Sanford [Gimp] Rosenbaum and two others of his henchmen, but they obtained their release. Most of the other prisoners held have records as pickpockets, narcotic peddlers or for other minor offenses. Their arrests, however, should decrease the supply of floaters and repeaters tomorrow in the flophouse districts bordering the loop, police said.

A cavalcade of 55 motor trucks was scheduled to leave the city hall at daybreak today, carrying $,000,000 of the longest primary ballots ever used in the city. They will be delivered to the homes of election judges.

County Judge Jarecki, who as head of the county election machinery presided yesterday at an all day conference to plan the protection of the polls against fraud and violence, expressed concern at the prospect of violence.

"I would rather have had some of the bad blood spilled before the election," Judge Jarecki said. "From experience, we must regard the present quiet as ominous. With this attitude, we have mobilized more men in readiness for trouble than ever before, and have keyed them to expect anything when the polls open at 6 a. m. Tuesday. Trouble may burst like a hurricane."

5,000 Policemen on Job.

Five thousand Chicago policemen will go on guard in city polling places tomorrow, and 156 police squads, radio equipped, will patrol the streets. In order to keep all Chicago police on duty within the city, Judge Jarecki instructed Sheriff Meyering to deputize 250 men to watch the polls in Cicero, Berwyn, Chicago Heights, Evergreen Park, and Summit, which are under jurisdiction of Chicago election commissioners. The sheriff, a member of the Igoe Democratic faction, also will deputize 150 men for duty in spots in Chicago where he has been warned that trouble is expected, he said.

The Voters' Nonpartisan association has picked 1,200 ex-service men to watch the polls in a semi-official capacity, and credentials have been issued to 35,000 watchers for various political factions.

Plan Immediate Hearings.

Judge Jarecki and a staff of special prosecutors headed by former Gov. Edward F. Dunne, counsel for the election commissioners, will be on duty all day tomorrow in the commission's offices in the city hall. Election offenders will be taken before them and given immediate hearings. Judge Jarecki has given the election judges, nearly 10,000 in number, definite instructions concerning their power to deal with fraud or violence.

"You have the same power to make arrests on sight, in election cases, as otherwise would be granted by the issue of a warrant," he told them during the night school sessions which they were required to attend during the last two weeks.

Dr. R. A. De Roma, Democratic candidate for committeeman of the 40th ward, complained last night to Albany Park police that four of his workers had been slugged by followers of Christ A. Jensen, former alderman, and also Democratic committeeman candidate in the ward. Jensen denied the accusation. The four men beaten are John Hennessy, 4306 North Sawyer avenue; Walter Dunn, 3140 Wilson avenue; Louis Miller, 4537 North Kedzie avenue, and K. C. Davis, whose address was not given. Dunn is 70 years old.

AUSTRALIA TELLS DEBTOR STATE TO OPEN TAX OFFICE

CANBERRA, Australia, April 11 [Monday].—(AP)—The government announced today it would demand tomorrow that Australian officials be given access to taxation offices in New South Wales which Premier J. T. Lang padlocked last week as a counter move to efforts of Joseph Lyons, Australian prime minister, to attach state revenues.

The government is expected to issue a further proclamation ordering New South Wales banks to surrender state funds held on deposit and attaching state revenues other than income taxes, which it seized last week.

The government of the commonwealth is attempting to collect from New South Wales revenue sources sufficient to repay itself for expenditures in meeting foreign debts which the state defaulted on Feb. 1 and April 1.

Robbery Suspect Dies from Policeman's Bullet

Robert Gerahan, 24 years old, 227 South Racine avenue, died yesterday morning in the Bridewell hospital of a bullet wound he suffered early Saturday when he was shot by a policeman in the Normal hotel, 1325 Wilson avenue. Gerahan was attempting to rob William Soumi, the clerk, when Policeman Daniel Garrigan of the Town Hall station entered. The policeman shot Gerahan when the latter attempted to flee.

CRUSADERS URGE THE DEFEAT OF SEN. J. J. BARBOUR

The Crusaders, militant anti prohibitionists, issued a bulletin to its members in the 6th senatorial district [Evanston], last night urging them to concentrate against State Senator James J. Barbour, who carries the white ribbon indorsement of the Anti Saloon league and the W. C. T. U.

"Although his district is more than two to one for repeal," said the bulletin, "Senator Barbour is running for reelection on an Anti Saloon league indorsement platform. The Crusaders have indorsed William G. Knox, a prominent liberal and legionnaire, and is asking its members and friends and those in general who believe in revision of the prohibition laws to support Mr. Knox.

"In the Seventh district, Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes of Wilmette, present member, is an outstanding dry and the candidate of the Anti Saloon league and the W. C. T. U. In this case the candidacy of Theodore F. Reinhardt of Flossmoor has been recommended.

"In the Eleventh, David I. Swanson of Chicago, present member, is also an outstanding dry and has the support of professional dry organizations. Several good candidates are running against him on liberal platforms, among them Edward M. Gaynor, Charles W. Garrity and Robert J. Mautner.

"In the 41st district, which takes in Joliet, Villa Park and Downers Grove, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neil, who ran for United States senator in 1930 with the indorsement of the Anti Saloon league, is a candidate on the dry ticket for state representative. The liberals have several candidates, among them John L. Walker and Matt C. Egan. Michael F. Hennebry, Democratic member, is running on a liberal platform."

SIX DETECTIVES ROAM CITY FOR FEINBERG'S JURY

His Special Prosecutor Issues Secret Order.

As an added element to the two special grand juries which primary election charges produced to supplement the regular grand jury, six policemen roamed the city yesterday under secret orders from Special State's Attorney Louis E. Hart, who was appointed by Judge Michael Feinberg. The policemen were not raiding, Mr. Hart stated, their activities being confined to primary election investigations.

JUDGE FISHER.

This morning, when the third grand jury gets under way, and the third state's attorney, Floyd Thompson, takes up his duties under Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court, plenty of action is promised. But as Justice Fisher's special grand jury was not yet impaneled, the Feinberg campaign adjuncts had Sunday all to themselves.

Warns Police Department.

Hart, whose appointment was quashed by an order of Judge Fisher which Hart chose to ignore, startled the police department Saturday by serving notice on Commissioner Allman that he would ask his grand jury to indict captains in whose districts gambling is found. This ultimatum, added to a general closing of speakeasies, gave rise to considerable political perplexity.

No one knew yesterday what to expect from the grand jury muddle. But with State's Attorney Swanson having the regular grand jury, Judge Feinberg, who is a Republican candidate against Swanson, having a prosecutor and a special grand jury, and the Democrats having the same through Judge Fisher's jurisdiction, a merry time was predicted.

Mr. Hart would not reveal the assignments given the six detectives whose services he obtained from Commissioner Allman.

Valuable as Threat.

Nor would Mr. Hart reveal what he plans to have the jury do today. Asked if he were getting any complaints of campaign violence, he said he had a few reports of "blackened eyes." Whether he intends to seek any pre-primary indictments he declined to state.

The general impression is that the annexation of a special state's attorney and a special grand jury by any political faction is valuable only through its threatening possibilities. Politicians said they believe the results of the Republican primary tomorrow would settle the grand jury battle.

They said they do not expect Judge Feinberg to continue his defiance of 18 other judges of the Circuit court who ruled against him, after tomorrow, whether he wins or loses.

SWANSON FORCES PREDICT HE WILL WIN BY 300,000

Feinberg and Lyle Also Confident.

Predictions of a 300,000 plurality for State's Attorney John A. Swanson over his two opponents in the Republican primary were made yesterday by his campaign manager, Jacob D. Allen. Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg also expressed confidence of success, and the third candidate in the fight for the state's attorney nomination, Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, said his vote would be the surprise of the day.

JACOB D. ALLEN.

This primary battle overshadowed all other contests in the county campaign, bringing with it a few extra "special" prosecutors and grand juries. The struggle for votes for the other offices was mild in comparison.

Record Speaks for Itself.

"Swanson's campaign has been based on his record and it is one of merit," said Allen. "His opponents have sought to capitalize human misery, brought about by the closing of banks, for their own political purposes and self-aggrandizement. They have sought to set up a smoke screen over their own activities in arranging large fees for their own friendly attorneys in receivership actions.

"This has been done at the expense of depositors and debtors who thereby lose much of the money they would otherwise receive, were it not for the extravagant fees. Swanson has recovered as much money for receivers and depositors of banks as any one ever did, but he did not brag about it."

Judge Issues Statement.

Judge Feinberg issued a statement which said a crisis has been reached which calls loudly for action in local government.

"Capone and his gang who are supporting Swanson for state's attorney must not rule," he said. "The bigger the vote the less chance for 'fellow hoodlums' to carry the election.

"In the matter of the special grand jury, I am carrying my fight to the public, which is the Supreme court. The law is with me. I believe the people are with me and no rule or vote by a group of judges can nullify the powers granted to a judge by the statutes and the decisions of the Supreme court.

Right to Investigate.

"The attorney general of the state agreed this investigation should be conducted. The state's attorney opposed it. In the order impaneling the special grand jury I incorporated not only the right to investigate the conspiracy to steal the coming primary but also empowered them to investigate my own judicial acts first, and then the acts of all other judges."

Indorsement of State's Attorney Swanson's candidacy by members of "Big Ten" university clubs of Chicago was announced yesterday.

SUGGEST COALITION GOVERNMENT WITH COOLIDGE AT ITS HEAD

St. Paul, Minn., April 10.—[Special.]—The St. Paul Pioneer-Press, an independent newspaper, in a first page editorial, suggests a "coalition of Democrats and Republicans in a genuine national administration, with former President Calvin Coolidge as President and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith as vice president," as a means to "dispel the psychology of depression."

The editorial, in part, follows:

"For the last three months it has been evident that the United States is in the most critical period of its history.

"Because it believes partisan conflict at this time a catastrophe which must be avoided at all costs, the Pioneer-Press suggests a coalition of Democrats and Republicans in a genuine national administration, with former President Calvin Coolidge as President and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith as Vice President.

"The Pioneer-Press is able to announce that Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Smith are available for this patriotic service if the nation as a whole calls upon them.

"No man in America commands the respect and confidence of people in all callings and positions as does Calvin Coolidge. The prospect of his return to the White House, at the head of such a national government would electrify the country, dispel the psychology of depression and revive confidence."

COFFEE SERVED AFTER BLOODLESS ARGENTINE DUEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, April 10.—Pistols for two and coffee for everybody was the outcome of a duel early today between Gen. Baldasarre and Lieut. Col. Enrique Pilotto.

The duelists' bullets hit an adjacent roof and window respectively, after which the principles retired unreconciled, while the seconds drew up a document demonstrating that the honor of both parties is intact.

Gen. Baldasarre recently gave a number of sensational interviews alleging that he was tortured by Col. Pilotto's minions when he was a prisoner in the penintentiary.

VOLCANO ERUPTS IN CHILE; QUAKE HITS ARGENTINA

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 10.—(AP)—The volcano of Tinguiririca, near San Fernando, about 135 miles south of Santiago, erupted today with heavy explosions of lava which rumbled like heavy guns in the suburbs of Santiago.

Underground Noises Heard.

MENDOZA, Argentina, April 10.—(AP)—Several slight earth tremors, with underground noises accompanied by an eruption of the Descabezado volcano, were felt around San Rafael, in Emdoza province today.

Earthquake and strong underground noises were reported from Villa Atuel, while at Villa Ollarce, near the volcano, hot ashes fell through a pall of smoke so thick that it darkened the village. No casualties were reported.

5 INDIANS MAKE WHOOPEE ON THE WABASH; NO. 1731

Five Indians, two of them women, were locked up in the South State street station last night as the result of Indian whoopee. All live at 1731 South Wabash avenue. From their rooms at that address about 5 o'clock yesterday morning came sounds suggestive of war whoops. Mrs. L. D. Ross, the landlady, summoned Policeman Joseph O'Connell and John Ryan.

The two Irish policemen took the five aboriginal Americans to the lockup. There they identified themselves as Rain Man, 23 years old; Flaming Arrow, 26, and Green Rainbow, 25, Winnebagoes, and Lily Arrow, 21, and Green Rose, also 21, Chippewas.

"My cousin, Rain Man, just got in from the reservation near Sioux City," Green Rainbow explained last night. "He brought news to us from our people whom we hadn't seen for four years. We were happy. Besides he brought lots of real western corn liquor."

REVENUE CRISIS IN CONGRESS IS NEARING CLIMAX

Many Grave Problems Up This Week.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., April 10.—[Special.]—With the champions of economy discussing possible savings in federal expenditures of two or three hundred millions of dollars while the sponsors of increased taxes and new federal financial outlays are talking in terms of billions, congress will come to grips this week with the country's economic crisis.

1. The house ways and means committee will begin hearings tomorrow on the proposals for immediate full redemption of veteran's bonus certificates, the cost of which would approximate 2 billions 400 millions.

2. Conservatives favoring sales taxes will battle with radicals advocating "soak the rich" taxation at continued hearings before the senate finance committee on the billion dollar tax increase bill.

3. The senate banking and currency committee will begin an investigation of "bear" operations on the stock exchange, to which President Hoover ascribes the failure of the stock market to register the revival of prosperity he has long predicted is just around the corner.

House to Begin on Bills.

4. The special economy committee of the house will begin framing bills to carry out the economies of from 160 to 210 millions agreed upon at the White House conference yesterday.

5. The house appropriations committee will report the legislative appropriation bill, which will bring to a focus the various proposals to reduce government salaries, including those of senators and representatives.

6. The senate will consider the appropriations for the state, justice, commerce, and labor departments as revised by the appropriations committee in compliance with the senate instructions to reduce them 10 per cent below the house figures.

Chairman John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.], of the house economy committee was deluged with telephone calls today from government employés who said they would prefer a straight reduction of pay to the President's "staggered employment" scheme of enforced furloughs without pay.

Study Furlough Wage Plan.

"I don't know whether the President's plan is feasible," said Mr. McDuffie tonight, "and I have asked him to send Budget Director Roop before the committee tomorrow with the figures on the estimated saving and other details of administration of the plan. Apparently the higher ups would not be required to take furloughs without pay. The employés on small pay would be hard hit. The committee plan is to reduce the pay of all employés above $1,000."

President Hoover is virtually directing the senate investigation of the stock exchange bear operations. It was undertaken at the instance of the President, who was in touch today with Senator Frederic C. Walcott [Rep., Conn.], and other members of the committee with regard to the initial steps in the inquiry. Mr. Hoover is said to have urged the committee members to go to the limit in the effort to expose what he regards as the iniquities of short selling.

President Whitney of the New York Stock exchange, who will be the first witness examined when the investigation begins tomorrow, is to be asked to lay before the committee all the facts in his possession regarding recent short selling and organized bear operations. Mr. Hoover is reported to have fortified Senator Walcott with the results of an investigation of short selling made by government agents in the last two months.

Texans Lead Bonus Fight.

The fight for immediate payment of the bonus will be led by Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.], and two fellow Democrats, Thomas L. Blanton from the same state and John E. Rankin of Mississippi. All favor paying the two million dollar bonus to the veterans through the simple process of operating the government's currency printing presses a little faster.

Full payment of the soldiers' bonus at this time would add an immediate two billion four hundred million dollars to the cost of government. It would provide that each veteran who owns an adjusted compensation certificate [the bonus] could take it to the treasury and receive cash for it, without waiting until 1945, when the certificate normally would become due.

Two methods of financing the plan have been proposed in congress. One is to issue new "greenback" currency in some such amount as two billion dollars or to give the veterans new certificates which would be equivalent to such currency. The other is to raise the two billion four hundred millions required to redeem the present certificates by floating a new loan. The latter method is the one likely to be suggested when the proposal is brought before the house.

Between partisans of the plan and its opponents there is a bitter dispute concerning the effect of such a loan [a] on the national budget, [b] on federal credit, and [c] on business in general.

Adherents of the new bonus legislation as well as its opponents have deluged the treasury for weeks with questions regarding how the veterans could be paid and what the effect of such payments would be. The treasury has conducted a thorough investigation of the whole subject. Its conclusions are that cash payment of the bonus now would make it next to impossible to balance the budget, would boost the interest rate paid on government borrowings, and threaten the value of the dollar if the veterans were paid by the expedient of issuing new greenbacks.

Means New Borrowing.

In event new bonds were issued to raise the money needed to pay off the bonus, this course would greatly increase the government's borrowing during the next year. In June of this year one billion 933 millions of first Liberty loans become callable. In October of next year six billion dollars of the fourth Liberty loan becomes callable. This means the treasury already faces huge refunding operations during the next eighteen months, regardless of whether new bonds have to be issued to pay the bonus.

In the expressed opinion of President Hoover, the proposal for a large loan designed to facilitate immediate payments would "irretrievably undermine" the credit of the federal government.

In order to meet full payment of the bonus insurance certificates when they mature in 1945, congress provided that a trust fund be created through the appropriation of 20 annual installments of 112 million dollars each. This would yield a total of $2,240,000,000. Interest compounded annually would increase this sum approximately to the amount required to meet the face value of the certificates at maturity. There are now $3,662,374 of these certificates outstanding, bearing an aggregate face value of $3,638,000,000.

Some Bonus Statistics.

Up to the present point eight of the twenty annual installments of 112 million dollars have been paid into the fund by congress, making a total of 896 millions, and accrued interest has added $95,000,000, bringing the fund to 991 million dollars. A larger amount than this has been lent to veterans on the security of their certificates, the privilege of borrowing having been expanded by an amendment adopted over the veto of President Hoover in February of last year, increasing the loan value of the certificates from 22½ per cent to 50 per cent of their face value.

Loans amounting to $1,248,000,000 are now outstanding. The difference between this figure and the total face value of the certificates, noted above as $3,638,000,000 is $2,390,000,000. This is the additional sum which the veterans would receive if congress, again over the President's veto, should approve the new proposal for immediate redemption of the certificates at face value.

Up to the end of February, 1932, the government had spent a total of $5,475,505,520 directly for the relief of world war veterans and their dependents. In addition it had advanced $1,248,000,000 in the form of loans, and issued service certificates bearing a face value of $2,390,000,000 in excess of the amount loaned. If the plan for immediate redemption is adopted, the loans will be canceled in the debtors' favor and the additional $2,390,000,000 will be distributed to veterans who hold certificates. In this case, the total expenditures of the government in behalf of the ex-soldier will increase from approximately five and one-half billion dollars to well over nine.

The amount actually spent thus far —$5,475,505,520—is in itself considerably larger than the government's expenditures for all purposes this year. It is about equal to the present value of Europe's war debts to the United States, with future interest discounted at 5 per cent.

Compensation is the largest item of expenditure in the government's program of relief. It includes payment of disability compensation, disability allowances, death compensation, and emergency officers' retirement pay. For these purposes the government has spent a total of $1,100,888,433. The annual expenditure for compensation has steadily increased from year to year. It amounted to 103 millions in 1920; rose to 129 millions in 1925; reached 199 million in 1930, and will amount this year to 267 million dollars.

For this increase successive changes in the law are in large part responsible. Congress is constantly being urged to liberalize various provisions, and is constantly assenting. The latest important instance is the amendment of July 3, 1930, authorizing the payment of an allowance to any honorably discharged ex-soldier [provided he is exempt from the payment of an income tax] who is suffering from a 25 per cent or greater permanent disability not the result of his own wilful misconduct even this disability was not acquired in service during the world war. Under this amendment a veteran injured by a taxicab acquires privileges similar to those of a veteran wounded by gunfire in the Argonne.

All told, the veterans administration has spent $2,100,888,433 in various forms of disability and death compensation to ex-soldiers and their dependents; $582,931,845 for allotments and allowances; $486,936,049 for medical and hospital care; $644,943,719 for vocational training, and $1,003,406,857 for insurance. Administrative overhead and miscellaneous expenditures add $656,398,614. This gives the grand total of $5,475,505,520 spent by the government thus far in behalf of world war veterans.

Group of River Surveyors Begin on Mississippi River

Quincy, Ill., April 10.—[Special.]—A group of river surveyors under Lieut. Kingsley of Rock Island is here, quartered in the federal building. These engineers are making contour maps of the Mississippi preparatory to the nine foot channel. They will be here about two months. When this is completed they will have all the mapping done from Grafton, the mouth of the Illinois river, to Keokuk, a distance of 155 miles.

CAROL'S COUNCIL BALKS; REFUSES TO PUNISH PRINCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 10.—While Prince Nicholas continued to refuse to renounce his commoner wife and remained a virtual prisoner at the royal palace, members of the royal council, presided over by King Carol, wrangled for three and one-half hours today. They found themselves unable to decide definitely whether King Carol or the prince is right in their brotherly struggle over royal titles and a beautiful woman.

Outside the palace a military band kept tooting in order to distract the crowds from the proceedings inside.

On the whole Nicholas, who rushed here by airplane yesterday from France in answer to a summons from Carol, did not fare so bad today. Carol was apparently unable to convince the venerable cabinet members, led by Premier Nicholas Jorga, that Nicholas should be immediately shorn of his royal prerogatives or else made to give up his pretty wife.

The royal council, it is understood, advised the king to go slow. Finally Carol agreed to give his brother another six months to make up his mind, it is said.

Nicholas appeared not to need so much time. He booked a train passage for Tuesday to Paris, where his wife awaits him. Until his departure Nicholas will be guarded like a prisoner of war at the palace. Two high army officers are constantly at his side and he is not allowed to communicate with his friends.

One reason why Nicholas raced to Bucharest, it is learned, is that he was broke, Carol having stopped his allowance. He complained that he and his wife are facing starvation in France, it is stated, and that he might have to find some work.

In the absence of action by the royal council the prince remains a member of the royal family. His wedding in November, 1931, to Mme. Lucia Deletj, however, officially has never taken place.

TAX LIQUOR AND GET 720 MILLION, SENATE IS TOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 10.—[Special.]—In a letter addressed to Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the senate finance committee, Rufus S. Lusk, executive chairman of the Crusaders, says that repeal of prohibition would enable the government to raise more than 720 millions in liquor taxes without paralyzing business or confiscating property.

RUFUS LUSK.

"On page 144 of volume 1 of the official records of the Wickersham commission," says Mr. Lusk, "Col. Woodcock's statisticians supply tables showing the official government estimate of the amount of illicit liquor produced in the United States during the year ending June 30, 1930.

Revenue Is Estimated.

"If we take these official figures, multiply them by the present tax on spirits manufactured for medicinal purposes, figure the old tax rate on beer, and increase the nominal tax on wine from 14 cents to $1 a gallon, which it would easily stand, the following revenue would accrue to Uncle Sam:

| Estimated liquor production year ending June 30, 1930: | *Tax. | Revenue. |
|---|---|---|
| 73,386,719 gallons of spirits at | $6.40 | $469,674,995 |
| 118,476,200 gallons of wine at | 1.00 | 118,476,200 |
| 684,476,800 gallons of beer at | 6.00 | 132,479,382 |
| | | $720,630,577 |

*Tax per gallon on spirits and wine; per barrel on beer.

"This is really a modest estimate; other statisticians have calculated that the amount of liquor now being consumed in America is greatly in excess of Col. Woodcock's figures. If we applied the above tax rates to the liquor consumed in 1914, the yield would be $1,358,494,960.

1919 Revenue Cited.

"If we go back before prohibition it is not necessary to guess how much the federal government obtained from liquor revenues. In 1919, the year before the dictatorship of the Anti-Saloon league began, the United States actually collected $483,050,584 in liquor taxes, and this does not include income from customs duties on imported liquor.

"Congress is seeking new ways to tax the American people. Why not tax the most prosperous industry—the liquor industry, which is one of the three or four largest businesses in America? It is on a cash basis, is well organized, but pays no taxes.

"We hope our tax muddle will produce enough courage and leadership to throw overboard this disastrous and bankrupting prohibition experiment so that our country's financial structure will not be wrecked, American business will not be hamstrung, American taxpayers will not be strangled, and six million unemployed will not be sacrificed on the altar of prohibition."

JOHNSON SHIFTS WALTER E. WILES, DRY PROSECUTOR

Legionnaire's Accuser Goes to Bond Dept.

Assistant United States District Attorney Walter E. Wiles, who has been in charge of the prosecution of minor liquor law violators in the Chicago area for two years, will be shifted today to the department handling general conspiracy cases, District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson announced yesterday. Wiles, a former employé of the prohibition department, was transferred to the district attorney's office three years ago.

WALTER E. WILES.

Considerable comment was aroused last November when Prosecutor Wiles demanded that Charles L. Wiley, a world war veteran, be held to the grand jury on charges of violation of the prohibition law, after the latter admitted in court he had asked his janitor, Boleslaw Lidikewicz, to make him some home brew for a Legionnaire party.

The janitor was arrested and sentenced to 60 days in jail by Federal Judge John P. Barnes. On the prosecutor's recommendation Wiley was held, but the case has not yet been presented to the grand jury.

Wiles has been assigned to take over the work of Victor E. La Rue, who resigned from the district attorney's staff to enter private law practice. Assistant District Attorney Eugene A. Tappy will be in charge of the prosecution of minor liquor law violators, assisted by Charles Schaub and Lloyd C. Moody. The latter will be shifted from the bond department to take Wiles' place. Wiles' work as a prosecutor has been highly commendable, Mr. Johnson said. His transfer is considered by his associates as a promotion.

VON HINDENBURG DEFEATS HITLER FOR PRESIDENCY

Five Fatalities Mark Hot Election Fight.

90,000 over his vote of March 13, failed to attract all of the 133,879 Nationalist votes which went for Duesterberg in the first poll.

Six of Germany's 35 electoral districts proved to be Hitler strongholds. They were the homelands of the Junkers in Pomerania, Schleswig-Holstein, East Hanover, Meresburg, Thuringia, and Chemnitz. In Pomerania, which Hitler won with 511,000 votes to Von Hindenburg's 396,000, the Nazi leader apparently carried most of Duesterberg's following.

Nazi "Paradise" Switches.

Brunswick, the Nazi "paradise," where the police are in the hands of a Nazi minister of the interior, gave Von Hindenburg a clear majority—53,000 out of the 105,000 votes cast today.

Dietramzell, where the president spends his vacations, gave him only 179 votes to Hitler's 230.

In the first election, Von Hindenburg polled 18,654,690; Hitler, 11,341,360, and Thaelmann, 4,982,939. Duesterberg, the Nationalist, who polled 2,558,939 votes in the March election, dropped out of the second campaign as did Adolf Gustav Winter, revaluationist, who received only 111,486 votes.

The total vote of Von Hindenburg's rivals of March 13, accounting for 8,662 scattering ballots, was 19,003,346, or less than Von Hindenburg's own total today.

Will Not Take Oath.

So far as President von Hindenburg is concerned, official circles tonight thought it unlikely that he would take the oath of office for a second time as the German constitution does not require it. The cabinet, headed by Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, also does not intend to go through with the formality of presenting its resignation.

With the presidential elections out of the way, political interest centered about the diet elections in Prussia and other states on Sunday, April 24. On that date elections will be held in Prussia, Bavaria, Wuertemberg, Hamburg, and Anhalt. Hitler, whose ambition is to establish in the place of the "second reich"—the republic that followed the monarchy—a "third reich" with himself as dictator is pointing to these contests.

He issued a call at Munich tonight for his adherents to gird for the diet elections in an effort to march a step further toward the goal he calls "German liberation." He sent the following message to his leaders:

"Victory obliges me to thank all who worked to create the basis of the victory. The confidence of 13,417,000 Germans is the highest reward of our work, but it carries a heavy obligation to continue. The National Socialists know not what rest is and must not tarry until the goal of German liberation has been reached. Our work begins tomorrow."

Retorts to Message.

The message was followed by a retort from Karl Severing, Prussia's minister of the interior, who said:

"With a man loyal to the republic at the helm of the govenment, Germany can weather the storms the Hitlerites try to brew."

President von Hindenburg spent election day quietly at the executive mansion. Informed that the was triumphant, the president announced he would not await the final results, and retired at 11 o'clock.

His secretary of state, Dr. Otto Miessner, was instructed to report to him at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning and give him the details of the final results.

"I agreed to be a candidate only because I felt it my duty," von Hindenburg said, before retiring, "but there is no reason for me to get excited. I want to be ready for a good day's work tomorrow."

SCRATCHED FINGER CAUSES DEATH.

James Miklewicz, 57 years old, 2531 South Spaulding avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital of an infection which started in a small scratch on his finger.

DUDLEY MALONE PICKS YOUNG FOR PRESIDENT, COALITION CABINET

Boston, Mass., April 10.—[Special.]—Owen D. Young as president with Speaker John N. Garner as vice president and a coalition cabinet, including former Gov. Alfred E. Smith as secretary of the treasury in return for his support of Young, was the Democratic presidential year setup proposed by Dudley Field Malone, famous New York lawyer, in a statement issued here tonight. He waived the Smith and Roosevelt presidential booms with the declaration that the time for "favorite sons" is past and suggested the following ticket as carrying the brains of the party:

President—Owen D. Young.

Vice President—Speaker John N. Garner.

Secretary of State—Newton D. Baker.

Secretary of War—Patrick J. Hurley.

Postmaster General—Former Gov. Byrd of Virginia.

Secretary of the Navy—W. R. Hearst.

Secretary of the Interior—Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth.

Secretary of Agriculture—Gov. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of Oklahoma.

Secretary of Labor—Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City.

Unless the Democrats choose their best and strongest man without regard to what state he comes from there is no assurance that the Democratic party will carry the next election, Mr. Malone said in giving out the list.

SAM AND BROOD FIND HAPPINESS IN FLAT TIRES

Sam Ware's back to the farm movement came to a temporary halt last night when his shaky flivver, carrying himself, his wife and their six children from Philadelphia to Oregon, developed tire trouble in front of 5120 Hyde Park boulevard. Instead of grief, the tire trouble proved a boon.

Two of Sam's tires were flat. He proceeded to repair them. His wife and brood made themselves comfortable on the lawn in front of 5120 Hyde Park boulevard. Policeman Harold Reilly informed Sam that he was in front of the home of Michael L. Igoe, Democratic candidate for the gubernational nomination tomorrow.

A minute later Mrs. Igoe, attracted by the crowd in front of her home, came out. Then Sam gave a case history of his family. They had been evicted, he said, from their home and were now, despite weak tires, driving to a rent free farm at Springfield, Ore. Mrs. Igoe invited the Ware children into her home and gave them toys owned by her own youngsters.

Policeman Reilly got busy. He collected $20 from fellow policemen at the station and gave it to Ware. To make the happiness complete, William Chancellor, owner of the Hotel Chancellor, 5236 Lake Park avenue, gave the whole family shelter for the night.

TWO ADMIT PLOT TO SHOOT REICH'S BANKING HEAD

Say They Are Ready to Stand Trial.

BERLIN, April 10.—(AP)—Two men who tried to assassinate Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, last night, today handed the police a signed statement that they had conspired to shoot the former chancellor.

Dr. Luther suffered a trifling wound below the elbow from a bullet fired by Dr. Max Roosen, 58 year old native of Argentina. Roosen was accompanied by Werner Kertscher, 34, a native of Thuringia, Germany.

Retains His Composure.

Dr. Luther proceeded to Basel and was little concerned with the affair except to see that the men were handed over to the police.

"We are prepared to stand trial," the prisoners said.

Both will appear before an examining judge tomorrow.

Roosen gave his last address as Hamburg, where he formerly practiced law. Police quoted him orally as saying he and Kertscher objected to the "deflation policy" of the Reichsbank and wanted a "moderate inflation policy."

Wound Not Painful.

BASEL, Switzerland, April 10.—(AP)—Dr. Hans Luther of the Reichsbank attended informal discussions at the Bank for International Settlements today, and was quoted as saying that a bullet wound inflicted by a would-be assassin yesterday was not painful. He voted before he crossed the border and will attend a board meeting of the Bank for International Settlements tomorrow.

Dr. Luther, in describing the attack on him, said he felt nothing until he had doffed his overcoat and noticed blood on his arm.

He said it was only a scratch and the doctor aboard the train had bandaged it satisfactorily.

Agree to Prolong Credits.

Governors of the central banks represented in the world bank decided today to prolong existing credits granted to Austria, Hungary, and Jugo-Slavia. Their decision was subject to approval by the board. The credits were granted for periods of three months nearly a year ago in the hope of improving the financial and economic situation of the three countries, but the hope was not realized.

A loan of $20,000,000 was advanced to Hungary by the world bank in association with ten central banks, including the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, early last June and was extended in December. It was reported, although not confirmed, that the federal reserve system's share in credits to both Austria and Hungary was $8,000,000.

Coal Magnate, Ex-Clerk, Is Tory Entry in By-Election

LONDON, April 10.—(AP)—John Slater, coal magnate and former football player, stood nominated today as the Conservative candidate for the by-election in Eastbourne necessitated by the suicide last week of Edward Marjoribanks, the former member. Slater rose from humble circumstances as a colliery clerk to a position where he now owns a large colliery and is said to be a multimillionaire.

Royal Decree Dissolves City Council of Belgrade

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, April 10.—(AP)—The city council of Belgrade was dissolved by royal decree today to be replaced by a mayor and two assistants. No reason was given for the change. The university here, closed for ten days on April 1 on account of riots, was ordered to remain closed until April 20.

PARIS CHEERS AS OLD ENEMY OF WAR WINS GERMAN PRESIDENCY

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, April 10.—Cheers for Paul von Hindenburg, who led the invading army against which France's soldiers fought desperately only 14 years ago, were voiced again tonight by a Parisian crowd as it read election bulletins.

These same Parisians had shouted "Vive Hindenburg!" just as lustily on German election night a month ago. Tonight they disregarded a steady drizzling rain while waiting patiently in the street for confirmation of the predicted defeat of Adolf Hitler by the reich's electorate.

Their cheering might best be interpreted this way: The soldier Von Hindenburg was France's wartime enemy. The militant politician Hitler is a peace time enemy. Although it is freely acknowledged that Von Hindenburg has developed into a great friend of France since the war, there seems to be little doubt in French public opinion that Hitler is decidedly unfriendly to the people west of the Rhine. The French frankly did not want what they thought would certainly be the consequences of the National Socialist leader's success at the polls.

Reiterates Arguments for Young Plan.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, April 10.—The foreign office issued an elaborate statement today in defense of French reparation claims, reiterating the arguments for continuance of the Young plan of payments and offering statistics to refute German figures concerning payments to date.

Although the arguments are well known, their issuance now in such complete and authoritative form on the eve of the resumption of the Geneva disarmament conference, at the beginning of the electoral campaign here and with the Lausanne reparations parley in June not far off is considered highly significant.

The statement first gives the basis for the reparations claims in the Versailles treaty and then a brief account of the three efforts to fix the amounts—the reparations commission's report in 1921 and the Dawes and Young plans. It endeavors to show the fairness of these agreements.

Hold Germany Imprudent.

The foreign office then alludes to the crisis of 1931, saying:

"It was then that Germany, which had imprudently engaged in a policy of short-term borrowing which was devoted to excessive converting into real property, found herself, therefore, exposed to the effects of the general crisis, particularly to enormous withdrawals of foreign capital, immediately followed by the flight of German capital."

As a result Germany "formally declared through Chancellor Bruening that she could not for the present nor for an indefinite time in the future meet the Young annuities."

The statement thereupon gives statistics setting the total German payments up to the Hoover moratorium at a figure in gold marks that is equivalent to $4,943,236,200, of which France received $1,951,528,600.

German Claims Denied.

German claims of having paid $15,946,000,000, of which France received $8,330,000,000, are denied. Moreover, it is asserted that if the French deducted the amounts spent for rebuilding the devastated regions and paying war pensions very little would be left.

The statement's parting shot is that "one can see what remains of the thesis according to which France has already received more than is due her."

LAST OF GUESTS TO QUIT VIRGINIA HOTEL TOMORROW

The Virginia hotel was virtually deserted yesterday, its guests having gone to new homes after a residence there of from ten to twenty-five years. Tomorrow is the last day for moving out and a few of the guests are staying over until then so they can vote in precinct polling place in the hotel lobby. The building is to be razed to make way for an open air auto parking stand.

Miss Myrtle MacLaughlin, manager of the hotel, said the owners had decided to present the famous marble statue of Nydia, the blind girl of Pompeii, to the Chicago Historical society.

The last affair in the hotel will be a dance by the Phi Gamma Nu sorority on Thursday night, and the management and staff will move out on Friday.

Masked Bandits Hold Up Six in Raid on Drink Parlor

Four men, armed with pistols and shotguns and masked with handkerchiefs, held up Ernest Miller, owner of a saloon at 4350 West 22d street, and six of his patrons last night, escaping with $183 and two diamond rings. The rings, valued at $150, were taken from Miss Erma Haase, 4358 West 22d street, the only woman among the customers. She also gave up $50. From the cash register $95 was obtained. The remainder of the money was taken from Frank Sebek, 3123 West 22d street.

Joseph Leiter Improves, Though Still Seriously Ill

Considerable improvement was observed last night in the condition of Joseph Leiter, capitalist and sportsman, who is ill of pneumonia at his home at 44 Banks street. Mr. Leiter, who is 64 years old, first became ill two weeks ago at his winter home in New Orleans. Dr. Joseph A. Capps, the attending physician, said last night that Mr. Leiter had shown definite improvement but is still seriously ill.

LESS SARCASM IS JUSSERAND'S PLEA TO AMERICA

PARIS, April 10.—(AP)—Jules Jusserand, former French ambassador to the United States, in a trans-Atlantic broadcast today pleaded for less sarcasm and more brotherly love between France and America. Jusserand was inaugurating the international radio forum formed by Ira Nelson Morris of Chicago last week, with eminent Frenchmen and Americans on its committees. The forum was organized as a nonpolitical, noncommercial organization to "stimulate intelligent public thinking on a wide range of problems in both continents."

The former ambassador said he had heard that French qualities had been overshadowed by magnified faults in American eyes.

"I hear we have been described as militaristic defaulters and Shylocks and were establishing quotas to cramp foreign, especially American, trade. Our defense expenditure is now 23 per cent of the total budget, whereas it was 32 per cent before the war. The trade quotas are unsound, but with an adverse balance of trade it is perhaps excusable to reserve part of the markets for our own people."

The speaker said fortresses were being built on the northern frontiers, but asked:

"Will you change your neighbors? Take ours and give us the Canadians."

Alaskan Trapper Tells How Eagle Battled Wolf Pack

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, April 10.—Elmer E. Simcoe, a trapper, is authority for a story of a battle between a trapped bald eagle and a wolf pack in which the wolves were beaten off. Simcoe reported the tracks in the snow near the trap holding the eagle gave eloquent testimony to the fierceness of the battle.

Found by Police

CANNES, France, April 10.—(AP)—Betty Compton, American musical comedy and film actress, missed $10,000 in jewelry when she left her hotel last night for Paris, and reported that the jewelry had been stolen. Police searched the rooms she had held, and there they found the jewelry in a dresser drawer.

Ends Life by Gas; Note Tells of Family Troubles

Raymond Taylor, 50 years old, was found dead late yesterday afternoon in the kitchen of a bungalow at 7150 Lowe avenue, in which he had lived until three weeks ago. He had committed suicide by inhaling gas after writing a note explaining that his act was the result of domestic troubles. Taylor was a salesman for a furnace company in Bloomington. In his note, addressed to Mrs. Florence Taylor, to whom he had been married for thirty years, Taylor excused his unfaithfulness. He said his mother-in-law and father-in-law had created difficulties and besides, he added, he had been jealous of his wife.

Changes Mind on Robbery, Gives Self Up to Police

Daniel Brocato, 23 years old, 527 Throop street, walked into the Rogers Park police station yesterday and asked Desk Sergeant Edward J. Fergus to lock him up. Brocato handed the policeman a revolver and told him he was unable to go through with a holdup he had planned. He explained he had been out of work for two years. "I followed a couple from the loop intending to rob them," he said, "but I changed my mind." He will be arraigned in the Town Hall court today charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

SCHOOLGIRL, 12, IS STRANGLED TO DEATH IN HOME

Whiting Rooming House Is Tragedy Scene.

Alberta Knight, 12 years old, was found strangled to death with a piece of electric lamp wire about her neck in her bed in her mother's rooming house at 1547 119th street, Whiting, Ind., yesterday morning.

The girl, a junior high school student, was murdered between 8 and 9 a. m. At 8 o'clock her mother, Mrs. Cynthia Knight, left home for the Eagle Dining room, where she is employed. At 9 o'clock John Mihalek, a roomer in the home, went to the girl's room to call her for Sunday school and found her dead.

Firemen Work in Vain.

The Whiting fire department attempted to revive the girl with a respirator. Dr. David W. Bopp, coroner's physician, said she had been attacked. There was no indication that the house had been entered by a prowler.

In an upper room of the house Chief Clay Collins found a blood stained towel. The room had been rented by Jack Goodman, who makes a living by doing a stunt of sleeping on a bed of spikes, and his helper, Douglas Shore. Goodman and Shore were found later in Indiana Harbor. Both were able to prove they were in Indiana Harbor at the time of the murder.

Shore said he had left a casual, known only as Blackie, in the room Saturday night. He said he found Blackie in the room as he was preparing to go to Indiana Harbor and did not order him out because the room was paid for and was not wanted by himself or Goodman.

Arrested Before Midnight.

"Blackie," whose real name is George Ross, and who is 33 years old and homeless, was arrested shortly before midnight last night when he walked into the police station in North Hammond and sought lodgings. He was taken to Whiting. He denied any knowledge of the crime and said that if he had slain the girl he would not have voluntarily walked into the hands of police. He said he left the Knight home at 6:45 a. m. Chief Collins said he was not satisfied with Ross' story.

Goodman, who had been sleeping on a bed of spikes for five days, as an advertising stunt in a clothing store across from the Knight home, and his helper were held for questioning. Also held were Mihalek, John Mihok, Ira Tucker, and Jack Gibson. All are roomers in the home, employed by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. Police were satisfied the men had nothing to do with the crime and released them last night.

Mrs. Knight and her daughter had lived in Whiting with her mother, Mrs. Minnie Cherry, for seven months. They came to the town from Crossville, Ill., after the death of her husband, the Rev. Oscar O. Knight, Baptist minister of Crossville. Another daughter, Gaynelle, 16 years old, is living in Crossville.

PARIS, April 10.—(AP)—The defense ministry today announced that eleven of the twenty-nine men aboard the French steamer Rouzic, wrecked in the North Atlantic last week, have been picked up by British and French ships.

The destroyer Lion was ordered from Brest to the area of the wreck. The British steamer Deerpool yesterday informed Lloyd's by radio that the Rouzic, bound from St. Malo to St. Pierre, had foundered in a storm last Thursday in the Bay of Biscay.

DICK PERRY TALKS HIMSELF INTO SAVING $27.23 On His Car Insurance

"MY NEIGHBOR insured his Cadillac in Liberty Mutual and saved $27.23 last year. Why didn't I do that? Why did I give my car insurance to Jim B....., my broker, when I could have bought it direct and saved $27.23?

"Of course, Jim's a friend of mine and I like him, but what did he and his company do to earn that $27.23? Nothing except to promise me personal service, quick settlements and strong protection, and I could have gotten all that from Liberty Mutual. My neighbor tells me that in case of accident, Liberty Mutual takes the matter all out of your hands and you seldom ever hear of it again until it's all over. He says they settle 99% of their cases without court trial. That shows fairness and promptness and keeps you out of a court ordeal. Jim can't do any better than that.

"And Liberty Mutual is the largest mutual liability insurance company in the world, with assets of $23,000,000. Well-managed, too. Its directors are conservative business men—all policyholders in Liberty Mutual. They hold down expenses and watch the company's investments with experienced financial judgment.

"And since Liberty Mutual sells you your policy direct, it pays no commissions to brokers or agents. The average insurance company spends more than three times as much as Liberty Mutual spends to sell an automobile insurance policy. And they tell me that the Liberty insures only one careful driver out of every four car-owners. This saves many ruinous losses from reckless driving.

"No wonder Liberty Mutual has been able to set aside large surplus and reserves and yet pay 20% dividends off standard rates to its policyholders every year for 20 years! It pays you its savings, plus the dividends that go to stockholders in other companies. This amounts to $27.23 off standard rates on the insurance of a Cadillac car. Liberty Mutual certainly is not run for private gain.

"Of course, Jim would get no commission from the Liberty for they pay no commissions. Too bad, but $27.23 is a lot of money in these times. It will buy me and my wife a lot of things we want. I'll be dog-gonned if I'm going to just hand $27.23 over to Jim B..... and his company on a silver platter, even if he is a friend of mine. Jim can't be right and Liberty's 100,000 policyholders can't be all wrong. I'm calling up Liberty Mutual right now, before I forget it!"

THE STOCK EXCHANGE INQUIRY.

The senate's committee on banking and currency is about to start an inquiry into the New York Stock exchange and similar institutions. The precise objectives are not as clear as they might be. The investigation is said to be directed at discovering why the prices of all sorts of securities have collapsed in recent weeks. In addition, the committee is expected to discover if there has been a raid on the dollar from abroad, particularly from France, with a view to throwing the United States off the gold standard.

If the senators are genuinely concerned to find the forces which have been at work in the markets much good can come of such an investigation. If the committee can find out who has been selling, and more especially why, perhaps the information can lead to constructive steps in the future. There is no doubt that the trend of the major stock markets has a profound effect upon business sentiment generally. To that extent the movement of prices in Wall street is a cause of poor business as well as an effect of poor business. A disinterested search for the truth regarding stock exchange movements can therefore be of great value in the diagnosis of our present economic ills.

Of course, if the senators on the committee follow the usual procedure in investigations of this sort, the effect of their inquiry will be to make bad matters worse. The usual method is scarcely distinguishable from witch hunting. The investigators commonly start with the assumption that the men engaged in the field under inquiry are dishonest, unpatriotic, and stupid. The examiners are concerned, therefore, not to discover the truth but to prove a preconceived case against certain individuals.

That kind of inquiry at this time, an inquiry which will distort the truth and mislead and embitter public opinion, can do most serious injury to the nation. It is to be hoped that this fact will not escape the members of the committee.

EVISCERATION IN WORLD BANKING.

Sir Josiah Stamp, British economist, discussed international finance with the Canadian prime minister, his cabinet and members of parliament. Sir Josiah said that neither the United States nor France had stability or staying power, and that neither had the guts to supplant Great Britain as the world's money lender. The United States, he said, had lost faith even in its slogans, and that was fatal.

There may be a great deal in what Sir Josiah says, but one should not ignore the fact that the United States as a stranger in international finance encountered a new theory—that it is immoral to collect on debts. America was too young in experience as the world's banker to know how to meet this new principle. Eighty and ninety years ago British investors took bonds of some irresponsible southern state administrations and have been bellyaching ever since—[to express their emotions in the abdominal symbolism of Sir Josiah].

It might take the guts out of a tyro in international finance to discover that debts solemnly contracted reflected moral turpitude on the lender if he tried to get back either interest or principal, and that the world's credit structure required repudiation with slander and recrimination. When the financial guts of the British system have digested as much dishonored international paper as the United States is expected to absorb it would be interesting to have a clinical examination discover what condition they are in. They might be found perforated. If the United States has lost its own we at least know where they have gone.

A LEAGUIST PROPOSAL.

Mr. Newton Baker, annoyed at the failure of the senate to ratify the league court treaty, wants an amendment of the constitution providing that treaties shall be ratified by a majority of both houses instead of by two-thirds of the senate. The proposal will be applauded by all who wish the United States to multiply our international commitments as irresponsibly as possible and weave the widest web of foreign entanglements. It will be approved by every one who is willing to submit our foreign relations to every impulse which a momentary mood of enthusiasm may induce in congress.

Recent phenomena in the house of representatives throw an interesting light on the possibilities of Mr. Baker's proposal. The experience of the nation with the operations of organized propaganda in bringing about action by congress without consideration by or mandate from the country is also relevant to the Baker plan, under which we would now be in the league of nations and in its court without reservations.

The proposal arises from a zeal for the involvement of the American people in the complications of European politics which has no respect for American traditions, for the wisdom of our greatest statesmen, or for the profound instinct of independence of our people. It would remove restraint upon unconsidered or perverted action in a field in which such action would be most injurious or disastrous. As a specimen of Mr. Baker's judgment, it should remove him from any consideration as a presidential candidate or as a responsible leader of political action.

A SELF-DEFEATING STRIKE.

The propaganda of the tax strikers in Cook county has been attacked by Mayor Cermak and others as a blow at the security of life and property in the community. To the extent that the strike is effective, it cannot fail to cripple the police, fire and health services and thereby threaten the lives and property of the strikers as well as the rest of the community.

But that is not the whole story. The strikers, whether they know it or not, are also discouraging thousands of men and women from becoming owners. The citizen who is told at every turn that taxes on real estate in Cook county are so oppressive that no one can afford to pay them or even a part of them is not likely to buy himself a house. Though the strikers are all property owners, and therefore have every interest in encouraging as active a buying market as possible, the effect of their propaganda is to drive prospective buyers away. The result of this activity must be to cause further and needless declines in values.

Somewhat similar results are apparent with respect to personal property. The propagandists complain that personal property is escaping the assessor. They point to yachts as an example. A yacht may be registered from any port and, of course, will be registered by its owner for tax purposes from the port which taxes it most leniently. The strikers point to stocks and bonds, bank deposits and factory and shop inventories and fail to see that the result of their agitation for the taxation of these forms of property must be to drive them out of the assessor's jurisdiction or out of existence. The decline in bank deposits on April 1 of this year is a clear indication of the flight from Cook county.

The tax strikers are frightening prospective buyers away by exaggerating the weight of the tax burden, heavy though it is, and by undermining the security of ownership which government affords. The strikers are playing a dangerous game in which they are likely to be among the heaviest losers.

SAFETY IN THE AIR.

One of the greatest airplane pilots in the world, Capt. Frank Hawks, was seriously injured when his ship failed to rise from a muddy field at Worcester, Mass., and crashed into a stone wall. Few men have had as much experience in the air as he has had, and none is a more skillful airman. In seeking to explain this accident, then, the investigators may safely rule out the elements of inexperience and lack of skill.

On the other hand, it is not unlikely that the accident can be explained in terms of speed. The plane which Capt. Hawks flew is designed for speed. To attain speed, builders of all sorts of machines have been tempted to sacrifice certain elements of safety. The navy's new 10,000 ton cruisers were provided with stern posts too light to stand the strain upon them. A good many years ago some of the earlier destroyer types were built so lightly to attain speed that they broke in two at sea. Similarly, the desire for speed in airplanes has sometimes led their builders to underestimate the requirements of safety.

So far as airplane design is concerned, the safer ships appear to be the slower ones. A speed of 100 miles an hour can be obtained without sacrifice of the elements of safety. To the extent that greater speed is obtained by weight reductions, the chances are that lighter materials, lessened wing spread, and proportionately heavier engines will combine to increase the risk.

LOST IN THE WOODS.

Women at the forum of the Woman's National Republican club criticized the direct primaries as a cause of confusion and irresponsibility. The state and, particularly, this city are about to have another experience with a method of making nominations which has about floored the users of it. There probably was justification for making the experiment. The nominating convention thirty years ago was viewed with impatience and suspicion. Its methods were thought to be tricky and defiant. Democracy could not get along with the bosses unless it put some checks on them.

The experiment has been made and very little good can be said for its results. Its faults increase with use. It makes all the assumptions of an intimate town meeting of neighbors familiar with every question they are called upon to decide, but in fact unloads upon the electorate responsibilities for which it has no preparation.

In consequence, instead of there being a precise working out of democratic purpose with discrimination and intelligence, there is a great confusion and a bewildered mass of voters more exposed to what they want to avoid in political action than they ever were when conventions were afraid that if they put up rotten candidates the party would take an awful licking.

CATS WITHOUT TAILS.

[New York Times.]

There is a reporter on the Isle of Man whose doleful duty it is to report to the outside world periodically on the status of the tailless cat. It is threatened with extinction. Judging from yellowing newspaper clippings of earlier years, it has for a long time been threatened with extinction. The threat is still there, apparently, even though it has not yet been consummated.

In that respect the inhabitants of the Isle of Man are better off than the inhabitants of Marthas Vineyard. Our islanders' pet heath-hen is actually at this moment in the course of extinction, the last survivor having recently paid what was widely taken to be its p. p. c. call on its anguished curator. The ranks of the tailless cats, on the other hand, are being decimated not by natural causes merely, such as liaisons with long tailed cats, but by deliberate export.

The original Manx cats are said to have come from one of the ships of the Spanish Armada wrecked on the island. The animal has a stubby tail and unusually long hind legs. It jumps like a rabbit, and some naturalists say that there is a bar sinister in the breed—another evidence of an unfortunate lack of race consciousness among these cats.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

"YOU ARE A GODLESS, self-appointed, iconoclastic minority of grandiloquent egotists," wrote State's Attorney Smith of the coal war belt in Kentucky to the American Civil Liberties union, who are planning to take a look at the coal fields. Mr. Smith, you, indeed, wield what we were always taught to call a facile pen. Some time when you get really worked up and excited and a little mite peevish would you mind saying a few well chosen words about congress? Apparently, Mr. Smith, you can come much nearer to expressing our deep, inmost convictions, what's in our heart, y'understand, Mr. Smith, than we can ourselves.

HIS SHADOW.

If you are seeking Him, then watch the pearly
Petals of the dawn break into bloom
Of yellow fire, and linger while the early
Daffodils heap gold on winter's tomb.

If you would hear Him, heed the emerald thrumming
Of the drums of spring that wake the seeds,
And listen for the words of twilight, coming
Softly as a nun's above her beads.

Climb with stars the purple hills of night
And watch the silver throngs in silence scatter
Over plains of morning, vast and white.

You shall behold His shadow, in beholding
Beauty, ever luminously near,
Whose miracles in their divine unfolding

ADELAIDE LOVE.

GOV. RITCHIE, the w. k. candidate for the Democratic nomination, says he really thinks Mr. Hoover should take a definite stand on the wet and dry question. Which is not such a bad idea; that noble experiment thing was grand four years ago; anyhow it worked, but a 1928 model is pretty old and rundown by this time, and, while it could be repainted and have a new clutch put in and the valves reground, still it's a pretty poor car at that. It runs right past the red lights and the "No Left Turn" signs, and the G. O. P. that have to ride in it are pretty badly worried. They're afraid something's going to happen.

Tha Duke an tha B an C Do a Little Inteerior Decoratin'.

Dick: Well, we aint moving. Tha new lease is signed an its a simple lookin document. Reads just as plain as an insurance policy. Tha B an C got everything she wanted. Cleaning, new ice box, back rent annulled in fact everything except that tha landlord refuses to wash our dog. One thing that she had her mind set on she didn't get cause it seems tha plumber an tha landlord aint speaking lately. If ya ask me why I guess its cause tha plumber cant find him. Ennyway tha Mama wanted a shower bath installed. If tha guy wood of said yes tha matter wood of been settled (he didn't). This sets me to thinking and yesterday my massive brain not only solves tha question but is gonna make me a fortune cause I'm gonna patent the scheme. Lass night I was explainin tha idea to the Mama but of course she being noncompass-mentus (latin fer shootin blanks), she slips me three cheers by tha name of Bronx. Tha thing is simple and can be fixed in 10 minutes at a cost of about 6 bits. All ya need is 6 feet of pipe an some used chewing gum. Here's tha big secret, you merely take the tub you got and stand it on end, plug up tha drain hole with tha gum an bore another hole at tha other end and run your pipe up to tha faucets. Course right away tha B an C gives me arguments, tha first one is, supposing your tub is one of those short ones? This fact I aint overlooked and tha answer is that if tha tub is small you take your shower in a kneeling position, next she wants to know how you gonna keep the water from running out on tha floor, personally I didn' think of that feature, but with my engine-nuity it wouldn' take me long to master such a trifling detail in fact right this minute tha thought occurrs to me that you cood line tha bottom with blotters. When tha question comes up as to where we are gonna get tha bucks fer a shower curtain, I sure got sore. We dont need one cause our bathroom's only got one window which faces tha Murphys' flat an I happen to know that they always go to tha picture show on Saturday nights. Whether she's kidding me or not I dont know but she comes back with a proposition which she claims will make more dough. Her invention is to make a knife an fork in one piece, prongs on one end and blade on the other. The only good feature I can see to this nut idea is that if a guy was tired he cood rest his head by keepin his left elbow on tha table. When I tells Charlie Goodman, my attorney, that if he wood get tha patent papers together I wood split tha profits with him, he refers me to another law firm and he wrote their name on tha back of one of his cards, but I cood'n find them in the phone book. DUKE BAKRAK.

SIMPLE MILK TEST.

THERE are some people who take no stock in bacteria. Since these creatures are too small to be seen with the unaided eye, and since high power microscopes are not articles of household use, most of us must take bacteria on faith, if we take them at all. And faith is selling below par in the present market.

When it comes to protecting a milk supply almost everything that is done must stand on bacteriology as a foundation stone. Since so many milk producers and distributors have no faith in this science the departments of control had to look around for some common ground the fundamentals of which must make a general appeal. They hit upon the dirt test. In making this test a small amount of milk is filtered through a piece of cotton, and the dirtiness of the milk is graded by the dirtiness of the cotton after the filtration, or vice versa.

This test is applied at creameries and milk stations especially. It is used by the buyers to prove to the dairymen that milks vary in cleanliness. It is of less service in homes because much of the milk supply is passed through clarifiers before it is bottled and marketed.

The Connecticut state department of health has perfected a method of scoring. They do this by means of a set of nine sediment standards. They reproduce accurately pictures of nine pledgets of cotton variously stained by dirt collected in the filtering of milk. These cards range from a reproduction of a white, unstained pledget labeled 0—clean, to a badly soiled one which bears the label 500—very dirty. The other reproductions are labeled 25—fairly clean, 50—acceptable, 75—slightly dirty, 100—dirty, and 125, 250, and 375, each of which has the additional label—very dirty.

The card, copies of which they sell to outsiders, is to be mounted under glass. If a milk plant has one of these cards the superintendent filters a sample of each farmer's milk, matches the pledget of cotton against the picture, and not only shows the farmer his score but allows him to do the matching himself, if he wishes.

If a farmer finds that his product is bad he can generally figure out where his production methods are at fault, and in most instances he can remedy the error without particular cost.

Health departments also can find use for these cards, though, as a rule, they will carry them into the field and use them for demonstrations on the farm and in milk plants rather than for tests made in the central laboratory.

It is true that milk may be dirty and still be wholesome, and that clean milk may contain live bacteria capable of causing disease. But the rule is the other way. Careless milk producers are likely to get disease as well as dirt into their product.

A NONBATHING HUSBAND.

Mrs. D. L. H. writes:

1. Is frequent bathing necessary?
2. How often should one bathe?
3. Does being clean cause disease?
4. My husband's baths are anywhere from one to three weeks apart, and he complains when I suggest more frequent bathing. We live in a house with modern bathing equipment. He works indoors and perspires freely. I would like a doctor's opinion on this subject, as this and another one—care of his hair—causes domestic arguments.

REPLY:

1. Yes.
2. Once a week, at least.
3. No. However, some skin troubles result from overdoing in the bathing line—for instance, bath itch.
4. Dandruff and falling hair often result from dirty scalp and too little care of the hair.

PROBABLY IS ARTHRITIS.

H. G. writes: When I awake in the morning my fingers are very stiff and I cannot bend them. I have to rub them for a long time before they are all right. Lately one finger is swollen at the joint and is very sore. My circulation seems poor. Could you tell me what to do for the trouble?

REPLY:

Probably you are having that form of arthritis which crooks the fingers of so many elderly people. Fortunately it is not serious. I do not know what you can do about it.

REPAIRS ORDERED.

Chicago, April 5.—[Friend of the People.]—Some time ago there appeared in THE TRIBUNE an item in the section concerning activities on the south side, saying that Ingleside avenue from 75th to 79th street was to be repaired very soon. As yet nothing has been done about this. It was also stated that this was to be paid out of the vehicle tax fund, which I hope is true, as this street is a sad sight. G. H. R.

You are advised that the alderman of the Eighth ward had an order passed by the city council on Dec. 22, 1931, appearing in council proceedings, page 1559, directing the commissioner of public works to repair said street between said points, and to charge the cost to the vehicle tax fund. I have been informed by the street department that this work would be done within the next few months. B. F. LINDHEIMER, President, Board of Local Improvements.

WAGES PREFERRED CLAIMS.

Chicago, April 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I am working for a company and have not had my salary for several months, although others have been paid and outstanding obligations met. Some others are waiting for their checks. What action would I have to take to collect and what happens if the company goes bankrupt? 2. Do I get full pay or do I take the same percentage as other creditors? J. W. W.

1. The Illinois statute authorizes recovery of attorney fees on wage claims. It is sometimes possible to get an attorney to undertake collection in reliance on such fee, but ordinarily some payment in advance is required. The legal aid bureau of the United Charities assists those who are unable to pay an attorney.

2. Wage claims would be preferred in the event of bankruptcy.

BUILDING AND LOAN STOCK.

Springfield, Ill., April 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some four or five years ago I bought several shares of stock in a building and loan association. About two years ago I asked for my money and was told it would be given to me in a short time. I have made frequent demands since but am always put off with the remark "your case will soon be reached." What steps should I take to get my money? L. D.

The ordinary course to force collection involves the employment of an attorney.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

LONDON, Dec. 18.—A dispatch from Tientsin says that Gen. Sung has an army of 20,000 men at Newchwang, including 6,000 who escaped from Port Arthur. Gen. Sung originally tried to save Port Arthur and finding his attempt useless went north and is now awaiting a Japanese attack on Newchwang.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 18.—An imperial decree has been issued ordering Li Hung Chang to arrest Kung, the taotai of Port Arthur, and four Chinese generals who were in command at Port Arthur, and to send them to Peking for trial and punishment for the loss of that important dockyard and fortress. Admiral Ting, who was in command during the disastrous naval battle off the Yalu river, has been arrested for failing to defend the dockyard at Port Arthur against the Japanese forces.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The Japanese legation here received a dispatch from Hiroshima detailing movements of the Japanese troops in China. It says the third division of the first army took Hai Mo Cheng on Dec. 12 and occupied Hai Cheng on Dec. 13. At the legation it is said the third army of the Japanese is evidently on its way to join Field Marshal Count Oyama at Nai Chang, an exceedingly valuable strategic point.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Important dispatches have been received here from Tokio indicating clearly that practically the war between China and Japan is ended. Assurances are given in quarters known to be thoroughly competent in diplomatic affairs that the emperor of China has been prevailed upon to hasten commissioners to Japan and that these envoys have such power of concession as will, without doubt, enable them to bring about an immediate end to hostilities.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 11, 1904.

LONDON.—The Chefoo correspondent of the Chronicle says the steamship Eldorado, which has arrived at Chefoo from Newchwang, reports it passed several dead Russians wearing life belts in the vicinity of Port Arthur. A dispatch from Tientsin says it is reported from Mukden that two trains containing a large number of Russians who were wounded in an engagement on the Yalu river have passed Mukden en route for Harbin.

PARIS.—A dispatch to the Echo de Paris says an unofficial telegram has reached St. Petersburg that a naval battle has taken place at Port Arthur. A dispatch to the Petit Journal from St. Petersburg says that Admiral Makaroff telegraphs that a Japanese attempt to surprise Port Arthur was foiled last night. A number of Japanese vessels suddenly appeared within range of the searchlights, but they withdrew after reconnoitering.

ROME.—A dispatch from Chefoo says that seventeen battleships and cruisers, twenty steamers, and twelve torpedo boat destroyers have passed Chefoo, apparently bound for Port Arthur.

ST. PETERSBURG.—Persistent rumors are current that the Port Arthur squadron has captured several Japanese transports en route to Chemulpo laden with troops and ammunition. No news of fighting was received up to 10 o'clock tonight.

ST. PETERSBURG.—A high military authority explains why Gen. Kouropatkin's plan of campaign does not contemplate a heavy resistance to the Japanese advance at the Yalu river, stating that "either defeat or victory in a battle there would be disadvantageous to us."

CHICAGO.—THE TRIBUNE yesterday (Sunday) printed more advertising than any other newspaper in the country and in the world. It had 329.46 columns of paid matter. Its nearest competitor was the New York Herald, which printed 314.17 columns.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 11, 1916.

EL PASO, Tex.—Gen. Gabriel Gavira, Carranza commander at Juarez, announced that the forces of the de facto government were in a position to take immediate control of the Villa situation if the American troops withdrew. No denial from Washington was received that the protocol contains a limit to territory in which American troops may advance. Reports of a deadline agreement between Wilson and Carranza are believed on the border, and withdrawal of American forces in Mexico is expected within ten days.

LONDON.—For more than forty hours the French have withstood the German grand assault on Verdun. The battle which began about Bethincourt on April 9 now rages on the entire line about the fortress, from Avocourt to Cumieres, west of the Meuse, to Chamneauville and Douaumont and Vaux, east of the river. The present struggle is the climax of the siege of Verdun, of which yesterday was the fiftieth day. During the long contest the Germans have rolled up the French lines on both banks of the Meuse, capturing about 150 square miles of territory and nearly thirty French villages. The new line of the French is holding against the most tremendous assault ever delivered in history.

CHICAGO.—This is primary day in Chicago and throughout Illinois. The night was given to conferences and final directions to 50,000 officially appointed workers who will be at the polls today.

LONDON.—Six British, one Norwegian, and one Spanish craft have been sunk either by submarines or mines within the last 24 hours. The loss of life is unknown.

LONDON. — The Saloniki correspondent of the Morning Post learns from a high military source that in consequence of renewed dissension and disturbances leading to bloodshed between Germans and Bulgarians, the respective staffs have ordered a complete separation of the troops.

THAT'S ALL THERE IS.

Chicago, April 7.—People say that forms of wealth other than real estate should pay their share of the cost of maintaining the government. Correct; they should. I agree with them. However, bear this thought in mind, that in the absence of a 50 per cent reduction in the cost of our local government, and, if we fail to reduce the budget to $150,000,000 and agree to keep it at that figure for the next five years, that the money raised from other sources will be of no avail and will not have a tendency to reduce our tax bills.

The first step, the most important step, and the most necessary step to straighten out this tax muddle is to cut our government cost in two. This will be the foundation of our reconstruction program, and until such a time as this reduction has taken place conditions as a whole in Cook county will continue to get worse from day to day.

You can enforce a sales tax, income tax, luxury tax, personal property tax and a real estate tax. You can tax every one from the grandchild to the grandfather, tax the air you breathe and the water you drink, you can have 29 different forms of taxation and the total amount of revenue derived from these different forms of taxation will not be greater than $150,000,000 in any one year at any time during the next five years, simply because the wealth represented by these different forms of taxation cannot and will not earn more than $150,000,000 in one year.

When you consider the fact that $200,000,000 is the largest amount of money that was ever collected in taxes in this county in one year, and when you further consider that this $200,000,000 was collected in the year of 1927, when business as a whole was at least 300 per cent better than it is at the present time and the earning power of the people was three times greater than it is today, you can readily understand how $150,000,000 is the maximum amount of taxes they can possibly collect in any one year in this county. It's the limit that the people can pay; it's all that they will pay because that's all there is; there isn't any more.

The cost of operating this county in 1922 was a little less than $150,000,000. We're asking our local government to go back only eight years; they have already pushed many of us back 20 years. Political leaders will tell you that it is impossible to operate on a budget of $150,000,000, their contention being that we have a number of items today, such as interest and retirement of bonds, that we did not have in the 1922 budget. That's true, but in 1922 with the budget fixed at $150,000,000 you had a lot of waste, extravagance and unnecessary expense that could have been excluded at that time. JOHN J. MANGAN.

GIGGLING IN CHURCH.

Oak Park, Ill., April 4.—Sunday evening, April 3, my wife, stepdaughter and myself had the honor to be invited out to the south side to attend evening worship at the Hyde Park Baptist church, the special occasion being a program of sacred music presented by combined Glee clubs of Franklin college of Indiana. The program was wonderful. The singing was beautiful. [We could have listened for hours; we were sorry it lasted only an hour]. However, we were constantly annoyed by two dear little creatures of the gentler sex, who came in and planted themselves in the pew directly in front of us. They kept up a continual giggling and chattering orgy.

Occasionally there would be a pause in their activities when one or the other would bend her head over to the other one and whisper something which would bring out great torrents of mirth. Dear readers, what can we do to rid ourselves of this kind of pest?

CLARENCE A. TUITE.

FOR FOSS.

Chicago, April 4.—To your editorial indorsement of the candidacy of George Edmund Foss for congressman at large permit me to add that he is a competent and aggressive constitutionalist. Congress is now marked by the almost total absence of such men, judging by their works. Scholarship in constitutional law and history is the very highest quality that a member of the house or the senate can have. A man who is capable of standing for home rule by the states and for the strict confinement of the national government to national and foreign affairs should not be overlooked by the tax burdened voters.

THOMAS JAMES NORTON.

HELP FOR MR. CUSTER.

River Forest, Ill., April 6.—Thank you for the leading editorial in your April 1 issue entitled "Mr. Custer Says Goodby." I have a copy of the same hung in our church bulletin board so that every one who enters may read that THE TRIBUNE, the world's greatest newspaper, is against Mr. Custer. This will help Mr. Custer greatly. Thank you again.

IRVING E. LUTNAM.

AN ENTERING WEDGE.

Chicago, April 1.—It is almost amusing how your editorial writers can twist a news item to form "another strong argument" for whatever they happen to be trying to put over.

In today's TRIBUNE we read how the vicious interstate commerce commission has given the seaboard states a fond pat on the back and administered a kick in the pants to the middle west by their denial of the Southern Pacific's application to establish rates to the west coast to meet Panama canal competition.

If I remember correctly, this case covered an application by the Southern Pacific to publish rates from New York, Philadelphia, etc., to the Pacific coast via water to Texas gulf ports and rail beyond, such rates to be approximately 10 per cent over the existent all water rates via the canal.

Can some bright pupil explain just how Chicago and the middle west are involved? SPECTATOR.

BACK TO THE REPUBLIC.

Wilmette, Ill., April 5.—The place to begin our national economies is at the fountainhead of the present financial chaos. Cut back the size of congress from its 600 plus to 300 members, as it was when the United States was a republic, and limit the number of personal employés per congressman to two individuals not remotely related to him. That alone would save half a billion dollars, not to mention higher legislative efficiency and the billions lost biennially by legitimate business during the pitiful weeks of demagogic claptrap and uncertainty such as we now endure. O, of course, the existing job grabbing congress would not make such a cut, but prohibition showed how to do it. Let the people force 35 state legislatures to adopt such an amendment to the federal constitution. STAR SPANGLED BANNER.

IRREPARABLE LOSS.

Chicago, April 7.—It seems incredible that Chicago should sit idly by and see the loss of our great musical organizations. I refer to the opera, symphony orchestra and Apollo club. It was bad enough to lose the summer opera at Ravinia.

Many years ago as a poor lad in a village in Iowa I used to save until I had gathered together the vast sum of ten dollars, and then get a live stock pass; and that meant two evenings of bliss at the opera or the symphony, then conducted by Thomas. Many a country lad is today doing as I did then.

It has taken many years to gather the artists together and train them into organizations that are almost perfect and respected and known the world over.

5 COLLEGE MEN REPORT BEATING BY KENTUCKIANS

Arkansas Group Ejected, Members Say.

Big Stone Gap, Va., April 10.—(AP)—Bearing welts across their backs which, they charged, were inflicted by sticks in the hands of Harlan county "vigilantes," five students and instructors from Commonwealth college, Mena, Ark., were safe in Virginia today after being summarily ejected from Kentucky.

The students, who made their cross-country trek in a coupé with an improvised rumble seat, had gone to Kentucky to "inspect" the strike area, distribute food and clothing, and to make speeches on the bill of rights, copies of which they took along.

Ordered to "Keep Going."

After spending the night at Corbin, Ky., they proceeded serenely enough as far as Pineville, in the heart of the troubled area. At Pineville, their objective, they were met by a posse of "vigilantes," who offered no violence but who ordered them to "keep going" and went along with them to see they obeyed orders.

And so the procession moved across Bell county—the coupé carrying the students, two cars carrying four newspaper men, and several carloads of Kentuckians.

At the Harlan county line the Bell county citizens relinquished their charges to a waiting posse of Harlan county men and the speedy trip continued. Ten miles inside Harlan county the procession was stopped, the four newspaper men were ordered to wait and "don't follow inside a half hour."

Leader Tells Story.

They obeyed orders, and when the time elapsed took a short cut to the Virginia border, where they intercepted the students. They found them disheveled and very wrathful. Lucien Koch, director of the college and their leader, told the story, assisted by interjections from the others.

"Just before we reached the Virginia line," he said, "the 'vigilantes' stopped the procession and one by one we were taken into the woods. Our wrists were bound with a piece of chain, the men cut heavy boughs from trees, forced us to take off our coats and beat us heavily.

"They struck me several times on the face, possibly because I was the leader, and Harold Coy (one of the students) received a hard blow on the jaw."

Koch and the four others peeled off their shirts and exhibited the bruises on their backs. The welts were distinguishable but did not appear severe. They also had bruises on their wrists, which they said were made by the chains. Koch had a few minor bruises on his face and Coy's jaw was swollen slightly.

Charges He Was Kidnaped.

Pineville, Ky., April 10.—(AP)—Charges that he was kidnaped on a street here, taken into the country, severely beaten, and warned not to return to Pineville under pain of death were made here tonight by James Price, 37, of Philadelphia, representative of the general defense committee of Chicago.

Price has been in Kentucky since last summer defending coal miners charged with murders in connection with disorders in the southeastern Kentucky mine area.

Price said he was forced into an automobile and taken into a woods where he was switched about the legs and pummeled with fists and threatened he would be shot if he returned to Pineville.

After the men left him, Price said, he obtained a ride back to town in the automobile of a friend. He said he had not determined what course to pursue in connection with the attack.

MRS. SABIN URGES DRY LAW REPEAL, AND TELLS WHY

Economic Liability to Nation, She Claims.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 10.—[Special.]—The repeal of prohibition is imperative from the moral, social, and economic standpoint, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, chairman of the women's organization for national prohibition reform, asserted in an interview here today on the eve of the third annual convention of the body.

MRS. CHARLES H. SABIN.

Among the first arrivals of the 1,000 women delegates from forty states were also Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll, New York; Mrs. Edward Small Moore, New York; Mrs. Coffin Van Rensselaer, New York; Miss Maude Wetmore, Newport, R. I.; and Mrs. George Orvis, Manchester, Vt.

"The repeal of the 18th amendment, which women are advocating today, because of the vicious influence of national prohibition upon home, community, and government will afford the federal government an opportunity to save 40 millions annually which is now squandered on a futile attempt at enforcement and to collect almost a billion dollars annually in taxes," Mrs. Sabin said.

Drys Do an About Face.

Three years ago when the women's organization for national prohibition reform began its investigation of the social effects of national prohibition and disclosed the increased drinking, crime, corruption, and vice that had followed in the wake of the 18th amendment, a prominent prohibitionist declared, 'Whether or not prohibition is deficient as a moral issue, it is unquestionably an economic success.'

"Today when every one is suffering the effects of the worst depression in the history of this country, prohibitionists make a complete right about face and loudly proclaim, 'No matter what the cost, prohibition must be continued because of its moral benefits.'

Called Economic Liability.

"The women's organization for national prohibition reform, confident of the soundness of its fundamental principles, still insists that the most damaging indictment of national prohibition is the demoralizing of the young, the debauching of government, the increase in organized crime, and the wholesale corruption which has eaten into the social, business, and political fabric of the nation.

"Prohibition is a moral issue, and on this ground women certainly will fight for repeal. But prohibition is also an economic liability which the taxpayers cannot afford to carry in these hard times. Every member of congress who continues this economic liability upon the shoulders of the taxpayers by continuing to support national prohibition will have to answer to his constituents who also must carry the additional tax burden he has voted to impose in the coming year.

Waste of Money, She Says.

"With millions out of work in the United States, many of them with every resource exhausted, our people are being called upon by the federal government to aid in emergency relief work. They are being urged to set aside all personal interest and to strain every sinew to pull the country through this crisis. Is it not natural that both the man out of work and the taxpayer should feel that the federal and state governments should set the pace and serve as an example to their citizens by eliminating the extravagant waste of national prohibition? National prohibition can no longer be justified on either moral or economic grounds."

ASK SEARCH FOR WOMAN.

The police yesterday were asked to search for Mrs. Mary Talacynski, 52 years old, 2518 Ballou street, who has been missing from her home since early Saturday morning. Relatives said they feared she may be a victim of amnesia.

DEPRESSION LAID TO INEFFICIENCY OF GOVERNMENTS

Butler Says Japan Perils World Peace Pacts.

New York, April 10.—[Special.]—The timorousness, inconsiderateness and incompetence of governments "so varied and so marked as to stagger imagination" are held responsible for the continuance of the world crisis and the consequent disaster threatening all nations in a report for 1931 of the division of intercourse and education of the Carnegie endowment for international peace submitted by President Nicholas Murray Butler, director of the division, and made public today.

NICHOLAS M. BUTLER.

In a survey of the international situation by way of introduction to his report, Dr. Butler asserts that "economists and men of affairs, drawn from many lands in conference, have clearly stated the essential facts regarding these, and have said with absolute truth, what remains to be done by governments in the realm of formal politics" and it is only the failure of governments for the reasons already stated that is responsible for the world's inability to achieve stabilization by following the advice given.

Reviews Events of 1931.

"The key to unlock the door of the possible is in the hands of public opinion," Dr. Butler declares, "and it is only by public opinion's quick use of this key that the steadily approaching calamities with their untold burden of woe are to be forestalled."

Reviewing the events of 1931 which, he says, marked a climax in the working of those forces "which since the close of the great war have been making for the undermining and overthrow of the world's economic and financial system," Dr. Butler blames the continuance and accentuation of the world crisis upon "attempt to achieve the unreasonable and the impossible in the field of war reparations and so-called intergovernmental war debts."

"Governments have almost without exception shown themselves stubborn in their timorousness, and both unable and unwilling to understand the conditions which confront them or to respond to the most enlightened and most forward facing public opinion in their several lands," Dr. Butler says.

Referring to the reassertion of the spirit of militarism and extreme nationalism, Dr. Butler assails sharply the conduct of Japan in China.

"It may be, as alleged, that the militaristic elements in Japan have been too strong for the civil government and have insisted on going their way regardless of consequences. Be that as it may, what has taken place in Manchuria and in China has been carried forward with so little regard for the public opinion of the people and with so little respect for existing treaties, particularly the pact of Paris, that a grave blow has been struck at the integrity and effectiveness of those institutions upon which alone the world can depend for constant prosperity and peace."

WARREN WRIGHT WILL BUILD $350,000 HOME AND AID EMPLOYMENT

In response to President Hoover's plea to build homes and thus contribute to unemployment relief, Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board, has completed plans for the construction of a $350,000 winter home at Miami, Fla., it became known last night. Work will start immediately.

Mr. Wright, reached at his home at 209 Lake Shore drive, said that President Hoover's suggestion had influenced him to speed up the project.

"I did not expect to build for a year or two," said Mr. Wright, "but then I thought that now would be the opportune time to release the money and put men to work. My home will keep quite a few men employed until next January at least. There are a number of others who expect to build eventually. I hope this will start the ball rolling and encourage others to build now."

Mr. Wright's new home will be on the ocean front. It will include a swimming pool, lodge, and patio. On the estate will be roads and walks. There will also be a breakwater. The site is 200 by 600 feet.

DOCTOR IS FREED; TELLS THRILLING STORY OF GANG

Seized by Error; Held in Distillery.

blocking the road. Two of the five men in the car got out. They carried revolvers and pulled me out of my car, cursing me. They shoved me into their car. There were two sawed-off shotguns and a machine gun on the floor. One of them drove my car away."

Dr. Budde's car is still missing. The gangster who drove it off apparently stopped a few blocks away at the entrance of a cemetery and carefully placed the physician's instrument case inside the locked gate. It was the discovery of the case which gave the first notice of the abduction.

"I was blindfolded and my wrists were taped together immediately," Dr. Budde continued. "I thought I was being kidnaped for ransom. I told the men that I wasn't wealthy, that I just had a nice home and a good practice as a physician. They didn't pay any attention to me.

Finds Self in Small Room.

"We drove about an hour and a half. I think we went through Chicago and drove into Cicero. I was led from the car into a building, and when they took the bandages and tape off my eyes, I was in a little room. My four captors seemed to me to be a Jew, an Irishman and two Italians.

"The leader of the gang looked at me and said, 'Hell, you're the wrong one. You're not the man we wanted. We were laying for a bootlegger.' He told me that they would have to hold me until night, and told me to write a letter to my wife. I wrote a few lines at his direction on a prescription blank. He took it, and that was the last I saw of him and his companions."

In his note, at the gangster's direction, Dr. Budde wrote, "I'm safe, and will be home tonight or tomorrow. For God's sake don't follow me or I'll be killed." It was mailed in Chicago and was received Saturday by Mrs. Budde, while 2,500 citizens were attending a massmeeting at Waukegan High school to discuss plans for rescuing her husband.

Taken Into Distillery.

"I was kept in the first room only a short time," said Dr. Budde, resuming his story. "Three men whom I had not seen before appeared and led me to a small, closed truck, telling me to keep my eyes shut. They had guns, and I obeyed. I was driven a short distance, and was led into a large warehouse.

"This place was a complete whisky manufacturing plant. There was a big still in the place, and a number of cases of whisky piled about the walls.

"The three men left me there with a little old man to guard me. He was a nice fellow, and went out and bought me a sandwich and coffee, all I felt like eating. He asked if I wanted a drink, but I didn't.

"Late in the evening a third outfit of gangsters took charge of me. There were two white men and a Negro chauffeur who drove their big car. They blindfolded me again, and told me that they were going to let me go, but that if I tried to identify them or made any effort to find them again, they would come to North Chicago.

Marched at Gun's Point.

"We drove for several hours. They finally stopped on a highway in the open country. The two men took the blindfold off my eyes. They marched me up the road a little way with pistols shoved in my back. I don't mind saying that I was scared stiff.

"All they did, though, was to search me and take my wallet, which had $40 in it. They told me I was half a mile from Niles, Mich., and left me there. I walked into Niles, discovered that I still had the $10 in my watch pocket which I had got attending the girl accident victim, and took a bus back to Chicago."

Some member of the gang wired Mrs. Budde from Detroit that her husband had been released and would be home shortly. She met him at Lake Forest with Police Chief Edward Carroll of North Chicago and Chief Frank Tiffany of Lake Forest.

They were joined at the Budde home, 55 18th street, North Chicago, by Sheriff Lester Tiffany, to whom Dr. Budde told his story. The Budde dog, "Buster," who had been disconsolate since his master disappeared, scampered excitedly about as the physician told his story.

Sheriff Tiffany was at a loss to explain what bootlegger the gangsters were seeking when they abducted Dr. Budde.

92,100,000 FEWER RIDE ON NEW YORK CITY'S TRANSIT LINES IN 1931

New York, April 10.—[Special.]—New York City's rapid transit lines carried 92,100,000 fewer passengers in 1931 than in 1930, a decline of 4½ per cent, the report of the transit commission for the calendar year of 1931 showed today. Traffic on trolley cars fell off an additional 50,028,865 fares.

The traffic on the three important divisions of the city's rapid transit facilities was divided as follows:

I. R. T. subway, 950,172,296 fares, a loss of 33,486,518; I. R. T. elevated lines, 311,732,222, a loss of 28,765,277; and the B. M. T. lines, 677,981,748, or a loss of 29,879,925 fares.

$250,000 IS ASKED BY MAE MURRAY FOR LEG INJURY

New York, April 10.—[Special.]—Mae Murray, who in private life is the wife of Prince David Mdivani, has filed suit for $250,000 against the Fox Theater corporation, Peter Clark, Inc., the Flatbush Avenue and Nevins Street corporation, and the William Fox circuit of theaters.

She charges that on Dec. 1, 1928, while she was appearing in a dancing act at the Cox theater in Brooklyn, she tripped on a stage elevator and broke a bone in her left foot.

Now, she is prepared to tell the court, she is forced to wear larger shoes with lower heels, a condition that "detracts greatly from the appearance of her feet and legs," and makes it impossible for her to continue the stage performances that were netting her $5,000 weekly.

FILIPINOS KICK AT MOVE BY U. S. TO SHIFT EXPENSES

Insist Scout Upkeep Would Crush Islands.

MANILA, P. I., April 10.—(AP)—Philippine leaders said today that a proposal by the United States government to shift the burden of the upkeep of the Philippine Scouts to the insular government as an economy move would mean a crushing impost just when the Philippines are facing a deficit.

Drastic salary cuts already have been ordered by the Philippine government as a means of meeting the threatened deficit.

Gov. Theodore Roosevelt, who Friday signed an order reducing the salaries of 2,500 government employés and providing other economies, was concerned but declined to comment officially.

Matter of $5,000,000.

It is estimated that revenues will be $8,500,000 under the $35,000,000 appropriated by the last legislature. The American federal government now pays $5,000,000 for the upkeep of the Scouts.

There are 7,000 Scouts and their buying power is a considerable factor in Philippine business. The Scouts are Filipinos officered by Americans.

House Committee to Study Plan.

Washington, D. C., April 10.—(AP)—Proposed economies which would end federal support of the Philippine Scouts will be studied this week by the house economy committee, which yesterday discussed the program of curtailed expenditures with President Hoover.

Under the plan $5,000,000 would be saved the United States treasury at a corresponding cost to the insular government. Whatever action is to be taken will be included in the house's final decision as to the size of the appropriation for the war department, which administers Philippine affairs.

The Philippine Scout appropriations which would be transferred to the insular government would not have been affected by previous house conclusions for its economy program.

LEAGUE ENVOYS BALK AT TRIP INTO MANCHURIA

Angry Over Report Japan Bars Chinese Member.

PEIPING, China, April 10.—(AP)—The earl of Lytton tonight announced that the league of nations commission on Sino-Japanese affairs would not visit Manchuria unless the Chinese assessor of the commission, Wellington Koo, was permitted to go along.

WELLINGTON KOO.

The chairman of the commission made his statement in reply to inquiries of Japanese reporters about repeated rumors that authorities of the newly formed state of Manchoukou planned to bar Koo on the grounds that China had not recognized it.

"Wellington Koo will accompany the commission into Manchuria," the earl said, "or the commission will not go at all."

Earl Is Adamant.

The earl explained that Koo had exactly the same status on the commission as the Japanese assessor, Shigeru Yoshida, but the chairman stressed the fact that the commission had heard nothing officials to indicate that Manchoukuo intended to object to Koo's accompanying the league investigators to Mukden, Harbin, and the other cities to be visited.

The earl's statement was made after a colorful reception given to the commission as a formal gesture of welcome to Peiping.

The city's Wai Chiao-pu, the foreign office, came back to life for a few brief hours today with a splash of splendor remindful of the days when this ancient city was the nation's capital.

Colorful Tea Party.

A tea party was given by the Chinese government, with Mme. Chang Hsueh-liang, wife of the former Manchurian ruler, Mme. Ta Wen-chou, wife of the mayor of Peiping, and Mme. Wellington Koo, as hostesses. The affair was one of the most brilliant ever held in the massive modern Wai Chiao-pu.

Gen. Frank R. McCoy, United States observer, and Gen. Claudel of France, who had been here previously, were busy renewing former acquaintances among Chinese, Japanese, and European diplomats and their wives.

A galaxy of Peiping's smartest Chinese girls attended the tea in most becoming native costumes. The former Manchurian ruler will give a dinner to the commission tomorrow evening.

4,000 Red Troops Slain.

SHANGHAI, April 10.—(AP)—Reports from Hankow today from Chinese sources said the Nationalist forces in opposing the communist armies of Ho Lung, west of Hankow, had scored a big victory and killed 4,000 Red troops.

Ho Lung, avowed communist with 60,000 troops reported to be under his command, formerly was a confidant of China's principal generalissimo, Chiang Kai-Shek.

Civil war in the central provinces under Ho's leadership had been forecast for several weeks, as has another attack on the Nanking government from the north, directed from Shantung province.

On the heels of the earl of Lytton's statement in Peiping tonight that the league commission would turn back if Wellington Koo, the Chinese assessor, were barred from Manchuria, the Kou Min (Chinese) news agency today said the Chinese government at Nanking had been advised that Koo would be barred by the state of Manchoukuo.

Kuo Min said the message was received from the foreign minister of the "puppet government of Manchoukuo" and addressed to Lo Wen-kan, foreign minister of the Nationalist government. The news agency added Lo had refused to receive the message and it had learned that Koo would proceed to Manchuria with the commission.

Kup Min understood the Nationalist government had advised Geneva of the Manchoukuo message and had addressed a vigorous protest to Tokio. The latter message declared the government of Japan would be considered by the Chinese government as the real author of the Manchoukuo message and would be held responsible for any hindrance to the league commission or its Chinese assessor.

Chinese Leader Assassinated.

HARBIN, Manchuria, April 10.—(AP)—A Rengo [Japanese] news agency dispatch today reported that Gen. Ting Chao, commander of the Chinese irregulars who have been fighting Japanese and Manchoukuo troops in eastern Kirin province, had been assassinated at Alan, Manchuria, on April 6 by his own henchmen.

Ting Chao's aids were reported dissatisfied with the general's attitude toward Japan.

U. S. TO RESTATE POLICY AS ARMS MEET REOPENS

Conference Enters a New Stage Today.

GENEVA, April 10.—(AP)—The world disarmament conference will resume its work tomorrow with debate centered on the broad principles of "article one" of the draft convention, providing for "limitation, and as far as possible, reduction of armament."

It is expected that Hugh R. Wilson, American ambassador to Switzerland, and Andre Tardieu, French premier, would restate the general positions of their respective governments.

The statement of French policy, which will supplement a previous declaration for an international police force to guarantee security, is expected to be somewhat reserved because of the failure of the Danubian conference at London to reach an agreement to aid the European southeastern states.

German Elections a Factor.

Later the German statement will be presented, and it likewise will probably be reserved on account of the German elections, a factor which might also exert a softening influence on the French statement.

Undoubtedly when the delegates reopen the debate tomorrow—and many are arriving for the sessions tonight—other questions will arise, and conflicting French and German theses will be among them.

The French plea for security seeks to realize itself through the establishment of an international police force to keep the peace under the control of the league of nations. The Germans and their former allies, themselves disarmed, ask that the world war victors reduce armaments to a level with their own.

U. S. Inclines to German View.

Insofar as the American delegation has disclosed its views, it appears to sympathize with the German rather than with the French ideal.

The first stage of its sessions, from Feb. 2 to March 19, permitted the conference to organize and plan its work on the basis of the draft convention and the proposals of 54 nations. Beginning now its debate on vital principles, the conference enters its second major stage.

Strangely enough, the basis for both French and German doctrine is found in the same paragraph, in article eight of the league of nations covenant.

Franco-German "Peace" Seen.

"Members of the league," this article prescribes, "recognize that the maintenance of peace requires the reduction of national armaments to the lowest point consistent with national safety and the enforcement by common action of international obligations."

Some observers here believe that recent negotiations have disclosed a probable basis for adjustment of French and German demands. Germany might be content, it is said, with a recognition of her legal right to equality, and give assurances that this recognition need not lead to equality in fact.

The French hold a strong hand in their actual military supremacy. The Germans have a strong card in their superiority in civil aircraft. A German acceptance of the French scheme for internationalizing civil aviation might be traded for a French concession upon the point of legal right to equal armaments.

Mother Dies

The sire of a Pekingese puppy has been caring for it since the death of its mother, it was revealed yesterday by Mrs. Cleo Smith, 7 East 79th street, owner of the dogs. The puppy, now six weeks old, has been fed from a nursing bottle, Mrs. Smith said. The mother and three other puppies in the litter died at birth, she said.

ECUADOR REBELS SAIL AWAY WITH 2 GUNBOAT NAVY

Loyal Forces Unable to Give Chase.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, April 10.—(AP)—Rebels in Ecuador's naval mutiny abandoned their latest stronghold in the gulf of Guayaquil tonight and sailed on to a new haven in the country's only two gunboats, leaving the government forces powerless to pursue them.

Fresh troops arrived from the interior today to combat the rebellion, which the authorities optimistically had thought was over with the capture of the fort at Punta Piedra by loyalists yesterday.

But the revolution apparently was by no means ended. The authorities indicated it could be prolonged, because the government had no ships capable of opposing the Tarqui and the Cotopaxi, virtually its entire navy, which still were in the possession of the rebels.

Flee to Island.

The insurgents, led by Ildefonso Mendoza, who said they were fighting for principles of liberty, which had been denied by the Conservative (government) party, were driven out of Punta Piedra, which they had occupied for two days, by federal troops and fled in the gunboats to Puna, an island in the gulf commanding Guayaquil's port.

There they continued to control the port until they abandoned Puna today, taking on provisions and sailing toward Port Bolivar.

When they left the Tarqui was towing the Cotopaxi, because the latter's engines were disabled. The government forces, with only the motor launch Colon for river transportation, said they would leave Guayaquil and reconnoiter the river as far as Puna to reëstablish traffic.

The port had been closed since the mutiny broke out, although authorities said for a time that it was open. The rebels also were in control of the radio station at Puna until they left, and it had not answered since last night.

Elect Foe of Chilean Rule.

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 10.—(AP)—Arturo Alessandri, former president and one of the chief leaders of the political opposition in Chile, was elected senator from Tarapaca and Antofagasta provinces by a huge majority over four other candidates today.

He will return to congress immediately to assume command of the opposition to the government of President Juan Esteban Montero.

Señor Alessandri's senate program is expected to be:

1. Political opposition generally.
2. A probable campaign against the Cosach nitrate combine, jointly operated by the government and producers, which he would seek to dissolve.
3. A fight for new elections to the house and senate to replace the present congress.

Halt Robbery in Flat and Nab Suspect.

Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the Municipal court, was sitting at his desk in his home, 856 Wolfram street, last night, when his attention was attracted by flickering lights to a neighboring apartment at 2843 Mildred avenue occupied by two friends, Clifford Tidholm and Ellwood Koch. Tidholm and Koch, he knew, were at the Indiana dunes for the week-end, so he notified the Sheffield avenue police, and met Policeman Edward Bazerek and Robert Thompson when they responded.

While Policeman Thompson went to the rear of the Tidholm apartment, Clerk Gill remained with Policeman Bazerek in the front. Thompson pounded on the rear door. A voice answered questioningly. Thompson announced he was a policeman. The owner of the voice inside scurried to the front, and ran out the street entrance into the arms of Gill and Bazerek. The other man escaped in an automobile containing a third man.

At the station the prisoner identified himself as Herbert Meyer, 24 years old, 5100 Gunderson avenue, an ex-convict. When arrested he was carrying two pistols.

Bandit Robs Theater.

A gunman, young and well dressed, and carrying a pistol under a newspaper, halted last night in front of the ticket window of the Avalon theater at 1641 East 79th street and demanded money in a low voice. The two cashiers, Marie Morrim and Tasulas Patrakis, obeyed and handed him about $100.

When a doorman, Harris Kessler, approached to find out why the line of ticket buyers, numbering about a dozen persons, was halted, the bandit turned toward him and then flashed the pistol in plain view of the theater patrons.

"Mind your own business or I'll kill somebody," he said.

He turned and fled at a swift run east in 79th street. No one followed and he escaped.

Hold Up Lawyer in Home.

Two police bandits held up Attorney Harry Smitz, his mother, Mrs. Tillie Smitz, and her sister, Mrs. Hetty Cowan, in the Smitz apartment at 5455 Hyde Park boulevard early this morning and escaped with $3,300 in jewelry and $425 in cash. Smitz is a master in chancery to Judge Harry B. Miller of the Superior court. He is a law partner of State Senator Adolph Marks, his uncle, with offices at 145 North Clark street.

The lawyer, his mother, and his aunt were just entering the vestibule of their home when the robbers, one of whom carried a pistol, met them. They accompanied their victims to the apartment and there took a $3,000 ring, a $300 watch, and $350 in cash from Smitz, $50 from his mother, and $25 from his aunt. Then they yanked the telephone connection from the wall and fled.

REPORTS THREAT TO KIDNAP SON IN CALIFORNIA

Egon Mueller, 1525 Wilson avenue, appeared at the detective bureau yesterday when he received a letter from his wife in Los Angeles, Cal., telling of threats to kidnap his son, Harry, 4 years old. His wife, Elsie, who is living at 1043 Victoria street in the California city, wrote that on Tuesday a note was handed the boy which demanded $500 on threats to kidnap him. The next day Mrs. Mueller found a second note, he said, instructing her to place the money in a can beneath a palm tree at the rear of the house. She placed all her available money, $27, in the can, the letter stated, but did not report it to the police. The detective bureau sent a telegram to the Los Angeles police instructing them of the threats.

WOMAN, 70, WINS $1,000 PRIZE IN PUZZLE CONTEST

Names of Other Victors Are Announced.

The 500 winners in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Washington Bicentennial Crossword Puzzle contest which closed March 6 are listed below. Five thousand dollars in cash awards was offered by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to those who sent in the most accurate and neatest entries of the 36 puzzles printed during the six weeks preceding George Washington's birthday.

Into each crossword puzzle were woven the words which constituted the title of an episode in Washington's life, depicted in cartoon fashion in the center of each puzzle and dramatized over W-G-N each night to recall those little narratives in our American history to the minds of our interested listeners.

A heavy volume of mail poured into the Contest Department during the 15 days allotted for acceptances. A large force of experienced contest checkers worked without intermission and at times in double shifts to sift out the perfect entries to be graded later by judges.

Less That 3 Per Cent Correct.

Of the thousands of contributions sent in this popular contest, not 3 per cent were correct. Mispelled words in the titles disqualified thousands, despite the fact that these same words appeared correctly in the puzzles.

Mrs. Caroline E. Haber of 5618 South Racine avenue is awarded the $1,000 first prize cash award. Mrs. Haber is on the threshold of her 70th birthday. On iquiring as to who assisted her in working out the details, she replied she had worked out each puzzle herself, and added that she was keenly interested in following the historical events revealed in the Washington series.

The third prize of $250 goes to R. F. Rothwell, 723 Erie street, Oak Park.

William H. Malone

Offers Plan to Protect Depositors of Closed Banks

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

I shall outline the plan I have worked out whereby an additional 25% will be saved to each and every person whose savings accounts or other deposits of money are now tied up in one of the more than 700 closed state banks in the State of Illinois.

I am speaking to you today as a banker, as chairman of the Board of Directors of the Citizens State Bank of Park Ridge and as a director of one of the Chicago banks.

I recognize from my banking experience that some banks in the State of Illinois have been closed because of mismanagement by the banks' officers. My banking experience has also proved to me that most of the banks were forced to close because of the present world-wide depression and the shrinkage in value of gilt-edged securities and assets through no fault of the bank management.

WILLIAM H. MALONE

Taxpayers' Candidate for Governor on Republican Ticket

Pledges Depositors of Closed Banks a 25% Additional Saving in Their Losses

In a radio address yesterday, Mr. William H. Malone presented to the depositors of savings and other accounts the following plan for liquidating the assets of the 800 closed banks in Illinois.

In the interest of the 800,000 people who are in danger of losing their savings accounts and other deposits which are tied up in these banks, Mr. Malone publishes herewith verbatim his radio address of yesterday and includes in same his signed pledge.

The tremendous hardships that are being suffered by nearly a million men and women in this state as a result of this unfortunate situation are so serious and so widespread that it is impossible for one to estimate the injury to the social and economic fabric of our state.

As a banker, the full force of this calamitous situation has been brought home to me daily in my contacts with depositors and others having business with banking institutions. I, therefore, set myself to the task of working out a program for relieving this condition in the State of Illinois. I became convinced, from a study of the situation, that, unless prompt action is taken by the state government, the unfortunate depositors and those who have their life savings tied up in the closed banks, will suffer a tremendous loss.

Today, I am pleased to announce that I am able to pledge the men and women of Illinois on my word of honor that if you give the power by nominating and electing me your governor, within thirty days after I have taken the oath of office as governor of the State of Illinois, I shall transmit to the state legislature and shall use the power of the great office of governor to force the passage of a law which will substitute, for all receivers for closed banks, the State of Illinois as the sole receiver and which will substitute for the more than a thousand attorneys for the receivers for these closed banks, the state law department as the sole attorney for the receivers—the state to serve as receiver without pay and the law department of the State of Illinois to serve as attorney for the receiver without pay.

By this method I can and will save to the depositors an additional 25% of the money they will otherwise lose in these closed banks. Why? Because on March 24th, 1932, Mr. Oscar Nelson, Auditor of the State of Illinois, stated publicly that the fees allowed by courts in general receivership cases range from 10 to 25% of the money collected by the receivers.

Let me inform you men and women depositors that the present 700 receivers appointed by Mr. Nelson and the more than a thousand attorneys appointed by the receivers were, many of them, engaged because of their political power and political influence. They were mostly divided among the four political machines. The Emmerson-Custer political machine received its share of appointments. The Crowe-Carlstrom political machine received its share of these appointments. The Thompson-Small political machine received its share of these appointments. And the Galpin-Brundage political machine received its share, Mr. Brundage himself and his own law firm being the direct beneficiaries to the extent of $40,000 as a small part of the fee allowed, only during the past week, in the case of one bank.

The public has already been informed that many hundreds of thousands of dollars have been paid out to these political receivers and attorneys from the meager amounts of money left in these closed banks, and, since the State Auditor himself says that courts allow fees in general receivership cases up to 25%, it is as clear as the light of day that the members of these political machines will take from the funds of these closed banks fully 25% of the banks' remaining assets.

Furthermore, these political receivers and these political attorneys also engage as assistants and clerks, their political favorites. The net result of all this will be, that, unless you who have lost your money in these banks use the power that is vested in you by the ballot, the four political organizations; namely the Emmerson-Custer organization, the Crowe-Carlstrom organization, the Thompson-Small organization and the Galpin-Brundage organization, can and will take from the remaining assets of these closed banks more than a hundred million dollars, and every penny of this gigantic sum will be taken from the savings accounts and other deposits belonging to you in these banks.

Again let me repeat, so that there will be no misunderstanding, that the day I am inaugurated governor of the State of Illinois, I will present to the legislature a law that will substitute the State of Illinois, without fee, as receiver for all the 700 closed state banks, and which will substitute the law department of the State of Illinois, serving without additional cost, as attorney for the receiver. And, with the power of the governor's office and the force of public opinion, this law will be passed and this relief will be afforded if I am your governor.

I propose that, under the provisions of this law, it shall become mandatory upon the Auditor of Public Accounts and the courts to immediately dismiss every one of the 700 receivers and the thousand attorneys in order to stop instanter their milking of the banks' assets.

Don't let anyone fool you by the bland statement that this cannot be done. The people of the State of Illin

NATIONAL HONOR STAKED ON OATH, DE VALERA SAYS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

ENNIS, County Clare, Ireland., April 10.—Eamon de Valera told an audience of 6,000 at an open air meeting here today that Ireland's "nation-honor" was at stake in the issue with Great Britain over the parliamentary oath of allegiance to the king and the land annuities which his government has refused to pay.

EAMON DE VALERA
[Acme Photo.]

Not a penny of the annuities would leave the Free State, he asserted, until Britain had proved her legal right to them, "which we are convinced she never can." As for the oath he called it "a profession of an allegiance which Irishmen do not and cannot feel."

It was Mr. de Valera's first public speech since his election to the head of the Free State government. Twenty Irish Republican army veterans escorted him and he took a salute while 1,000 members of Fianna Fail clubs paraded past.

Eager for Friendship.

"We are eager to establish relations of real friendship with the British people," he told the crowd, "but they must be relations of complete equality. Ireland is not a British colony. It is one of the oldest nations in the world with all the rights of nationhood. Unlike the British dominions, we cannot admit and have never freely admitted that our right to sovereignty independence is derived from a British statute. It is older than any British statute, older than the British parliament and the British nation.

"A frank, final acknowledgment of that right is the one basis upon which a real and permanent agreement between the two countries can be secured. At this moment British statesmen have a great opportunity. All they need is the courage to be just and to abandon the insane ambition to dominate the Irish people. That ambition has been the curse of Britain and this country for 750 years, and so far as we are concerned now there can be no going back."

Depends on Thomas' Terms.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

DUBLIN, April 10.—The fate of the De Valera bill to abolish the oath of allegiance to the king will be determined largely by the text of the British government's note and the terms laid down in the speech of J. H. Thomas, secretary for the dominions, in the house of commons tomorrow. If these indicate clearly that the Anglo-Irish treaty is in real danger there is a substantial possibility the Dail will reject the bill.

William T. Cosgrave's party will support the treaty unanimously and few believe labor, whose vote will be vital, will allow the country to be plunged into political and economic chaos. Rejection of the bill by the Dail probably would compel Mr. de Valera to stake his fortunes on an early election.

The Anglo-Irish correspondence on the oath and land annuities will be published in London as a White Paper tomorrow, simultaneously with the speech by Secretary Thomas. The White Paper will reveal that Mr. de Valera's notes have failed to budge the British from their original view—namely that the Anglo-Irish treaty and the obligations implied in it can not be varied by the Dail's action alone.

American Support for Irish.

Washington, D. C., April 10.—(AP)—Delegates from Irish Republican organizations in the United States and "American Friends of the Irish Republic," at a national conference here today pledged their support to Eamon de Valera in his plan to abolish the oath of allegiance to the king and end payment of land annuities.

Resolutions were adopted pledging "moral, political, and financial support to Eamon de Valera in resisting any attempt by the English government by any means whatsoever to overcome the peacefully expressed will of the Irish people." The delegates also explained in a statement a plan "to resist British propaganda in the United States."

1,915 VIOLATORS GET INSTRUCTION AGAINST SMOKE

Effectiveness Shown in Chambers' Campaign.

During the six months' period ended April 1, 1,915 persons responded to the request of Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, to appear at his city hall office. There they were given instructions in firing furnaces to eliminate smoke.

FRANK CHAMBERS.

The value of this educational campaign against smoke, which was supplemented by 5,407 instructional visits by city smoke engineers to homes and plants was stressed yesterday by Mr. Chambers. He pointed out that of the 1,915 who appeared at his office only 54 were guilty of another smoke violation within 30 days.

Effectiveness Is Proved.

"The fact that so few were guilty of repeated violations proves," said Mr. Chambers, "that the hearings and instructional visits are of great value in smoke prevention work. It appears to be more effective than court prosecutions.

"We had during the six months' period only seven men in the field reporting violations and doing the instructional work. We could enlarge our activities considerably if we had twenty-two men, as we did in 1929."

The smoke department's field force had 30,695 chimneys and smoke stacks under observation during the six months' period, and collected $7,632 for inspections. Of the stacks observed only 3,597 were reported smoking for periods of one minute or more.

During the three year period from Jan. 1, 1929, when the smoke abatement work was set up under Mr. Chambers as a separate department, until Jan. 1, 1932, the department collected $73,446 in fines and fees. In the same period its appropriations totaled $189,272.

The average sootfall in Chicago has been reduced, Mr. Chambers stated, from an average of 275 tons per square mile in 1928 to 195 tons during the first three months of this year.

BOMBS AND FIRE RAZE GARY STORE —LOSS IS $75,000

Firebugs planted three incendiary bombs yesterday in the Globe clothing store, 1671 Broadway, Gary. The explosions tore away the roof and side wall of the building and started a blaze which destroyed its contents. Witnesses saw three men leave the building and drive away in an automobile just before the blasts.

The three explosions attracted a large crowd of Gary citizens on their way home from church. The first firemen on the scene sounded a general alarm, but the explosions spread the flames so rapidly that the building was completely destroyed. One of the explosions threw a blazing section of the roof to the roof of a building across the street. That building was saved from damage.

Charles Goodman, owner of the store, estimated the loss at between $75,000 and $100,000. Fire Chief Joseph Shirk summoned a deputy state fire marshal to Gary to assist in questioning Goodman.

Niles Center Fire Chief Immune from Censure

No action will be taken against Michael H. Schmitz, chief of the volunteer fire department of Niles Center, as a result of his arrest Saturday night on the charge of being part owner of the Auto inn, roadhouse at 8024 Lincoln avenue, which prohibition agents raided, Mayor John E. Brown of the suburb said yesterday. The fire department, being a volunteer organization, is not under jurisdiction of village officials, he said. The agents released Schmitz on his own recognizance that he might be available for fire fighting duty. They seized several truck loads of furniture and beverages in the Auto inn and other places raided in Niles Center, Cicero, and Lyons.

$40,000 Fire Destroys Home, Attacks Warehouse

Damage estimated at about $40,000 was caused yesterday afternoon by a fire which destroyed a part of the warehouse of the W. W. Koehler Paper company, 2217 Grove street, Blue Island. The flames attacked the warehouse after destroying the home of Angelo Luciano, next door.

SHOOTS SELF; WOUND FATAL.

ILLINOIS TO SEND SHIPLOAD OF SOY BEANS TO EUROPE

War in Asia Expands Farm Market.

The first water route shipment of soy beans from Chicago to a European port is scheduled to begin this week when 150,000 bushels of Illinois grown soy beans are to be loaded on the steamer Bayton at Twenty-second and Lumber streets for transportation to an ocean vessel at Montreal to complete the trip to Rotterdam, Holland.

War Causes Demand.

War troubles in Asia have given the Illinois beans this market, it is explained by the Illinois Soy Bean Marketing association and the brokers through which the sale was made.

At Rotterdam the beans will be worth 69 cents a bushel compared with 40 to 42 cents a bushel at country elevators in Illinois and Indiana.

Previous shipments out of New Orleans and Mobile bring the season's exports of the 1931 crop to around 600,000 bushels. The European manufacturers use them in quantities for making oils, paints, and varnishes, using the residue meal for animal feed. In the United States the commercial market is confined largely to paint, varnish, and soy bean meal.

Market May Expand.

If present market conditions continue for beans which can be exported, additional trade outlets for Illinois and Indiana grown soy beans may develop, according to the shippers of the present cargo. The beans grown in this area have a higher oil content and make a more yellow bean meal than the varieties grown in North and South Carolina, it was said, although the Carolina beans have a higher protein content.

The steamer Bayton is scheduled to begin loading this morning, and it will make one of the first trips of the season on the lakes.

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of the Methodist Episcopal area of Chicago dedicated the new Church of the Redeemer, 200 South Sacramento boulevard, at special services yesterday. The church was erected at a cost of $100,000, raised almost entirely from the large Italian-American representation in the congregation.

The church was originally known as the First Italian Methodist Episcopal church. This congregation had worshiped many years in a small edifice at the corner of Polk and Sholto streets. At yesterday morning's services the Rev. Vincent Caspellucci of Detroit was the preacher. At the dedication service at 3 p. m. Bishop Hughes, the Rev. Dr. E. F. Tittle of Evanston, and Dr. Auprey S. Moore, district superintendent, were the principal speakers. Dr. John Thompson of the Chicago Temple spoke at services last night. The Rev. Ralph A. Mautore is pastor of the church.

Mountain Inn Burns; Find Two Bodies; Start Inquiry

Hartford, Conn., April 10.—(AP)—Two bodies, identified as those of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Haefeli, were found today in the ruins of a fashionable Avon mountain resort that had been destroyed by fire. Police began an investigation to determine whether the couple, who operated the inn, had been slain and their bodies thrown into the fire to destroy evidence.

ILLINOIS CITIES REPORT RESULTS IN JOB CAMPAIGN

The first week in April showed results in many Illinois cities which have started to reduce the number of unemployed by campaigns to increase the spending of money and the hiring of men.

More than thirty civic organizations in as many towns have stated their intentions to get jobs for every unemployed man in their communities.

In nearly every instance mail appeals, personal calls, advertising, and the telephone are being used to get pledges from citizens. The American Legion and the building trades have been cooperating in the drive. A significant feature, it is reported, has been the willingness of contractors and supply houses to reduce building costs to get in line with the campaign.

Cities reporting progress in the campaign include Belvidere, Elgin, Barrington, Streator, Pekin, Lincoln, Mount Vernon, Normal, Sycamore, Bloomington, Danville, Macomb, Carlinville, Beardstown, Moline, Eldorado, Belleville, Morris, Effingham, Urbana, De Kalb, East St. Louis, St. Charles, Kankakee, Ottawa, Evanston, Waukegan, and Aurora.

FINDS TWO BURIED CITIES IN SANDS OF UNKNOWN DESERT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, April 10.—Two buried capitals of ancient kingdoms have been rediscovered by H. St. John Philby, a British Arabic scholar, on his crossing of the great unknown desert of southern Arabia. A second telegram reached London today from Philby, who arrived at Mecca last Monday, after a ten weeks' journey from the Persian gulf. It revealed that he crossed the desert by a hairpin shaped route, traversing vast stretches of "wholly unexplored territory."

The historic site he found was the oasis of Magainma, which he believes covers the ancient capital called Magan. The latter name, which does not appear to be Arabic, is mentioned in Babylonian inscriptions and has been tentatively placed by some archæologists in eastern Arabia. No European had ever seen it, although in 1924 Maj. R. E. Cheesman, a British explorer, heard of the ancient and immensely deep wells at Magainma.

From the oasis Philby struggled southeast across the great desert almost as far as the mountains of Hadramaut, until he reached and identified the long sought site of Ubar, the capital of a legendary people which was engulfed in a sandstorm. From Ubar Philby turned sharply westward, plunging into 250 miles of waterless desert, of which nothing was known but discouraging rumors. This stage must have been the most difficult of all, especially since he had no relays of camels. He emerged from the desert at Sulaiyal March 15 and thence made his way to Mecca.

GOTHAM JOBLESS FUND FOR 600,000 NEAR COLLAPSE

New York, April 10.—[Special.]—Collapse of the city's unemployment relief work affecting nearly 600,000 persons now receiving aid from official and private agencies, unless $20,000,000 is provided for the period from June to November, was predicted by Commissioner Frank J. Taylor of the department of public welfare in a letter to Mayor James J. Walker made public today.

The commissioner said all moneys hitherto appropriated by the city for unemployment relief will be exhausted by the end of June and that all of the $13,000,000 raised by the emergency unemployment relief committee, of which Harvey D. Gibson is chairman, will likewise be expended by the end of May.

Form Chicago Unit of World Literary Body

Chapter of P. E. N. to Aid Understanding.

THE Chicago chapter of the P.E.N. club has just been formed, thus linking Chicago with the greatest international organization of authors, an organization which was founded in 1921 under the aegis of John Galsworthy, who has been its international president ever since its inauguration, and Mrs. C. A. Dawson-Scott, who is affectionately called "Mother Pen," as she was the founder of what, as many writers have pointed out is, if not a religion, at least a "movement."

It was the idea of the founders of P. E. N. that international amity and understanding might be fostered more surely by the writers of the world if they knew each other, and gathering together occasionally they would easily and naturally dissolve unfriendly national frontiers. It took some time to organize the writers of the world, but now there are forty-two P. E. N. centers in the capitals and cities of every civilized country in the world, and at the last international congress which was held in Holland last summer there were delegates from thirty countries.

Noted Writers Are Members.

The most distinguished writers of each country, including every famous name that Americans have come to associate with international literature, have been leaders in the founding of the movement and the spreading of its gospel of the interunderstanding of intelligence.

The New York center was founded in 1922 by Kate Douglas Wiggin and had as its first president Booth Tarkington. The present executive committee of the American chapter consists of Will Irwin, who is president of the center; Alfred Dashiell, secretary, and Henry Seidel Canby, Carl Van Doren, Mary Austin, Robert Nathan, John Farrar, Sophie Kerr, Frederic Melcher, Marie Meloney, Maxwell Aley, Fannie Hurst, Frederic L. Allen, and Gertrude Atherton, who is also chairman of the San Francisco chapter, which was founded some years ago. Among those names are well known ones in every field of the literary "business" in publishing as well as creative writing. The "P. E. N." of the name includes poets, playwrights, publishers, editors, essayists, and novelists.

Chicago, with its growing—or perhaps one should say resurgent—reputation as a literary center [since Mr. Mencken labeled it the literary capital of the United States just as its fame was fading], has long been looked upon as a logical field for another American chapter, and the presence of Miss Fanny Butcher, literary editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and Arthur Meeker Jr., author of "Strange Capers," "American Beauty," etc., at the international congress in Holland last June led to the formation of a local chapter. The executive committee of ten was approved by the New York center and a preliminary meeting for the purpose of organizing the group met and elected Miss Butcher the chairman and Mr. Meeker the secretary-treasurer of the chapter.

Chicago Executive Committee.

The members of the executive committee other than the officers are the dean of Chicago creative literary artists, Miss Harriet Monroe, editor of Poetry, a Magazine of Verse; Janet Ayer Fairbank [Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank], author of "The Smiths," "The Lion's Den," etc.; Margaret Ayer Barnes [Mrs. Cecil Barnes], author of the Pulitzer prize winning novel, "Years of Grace" and "Westward Passage"; Henry Kitchell Webster, author of "An American Family," "Who Is Next?" and a great many other books; Marion Strobel [Mrs. James Herbert Mitchell], author of two volumes of verse and two novels, "Saturday Afternoon" and "A Woman of Fashion"; Dorothy Aldis [Mrs. Graham Aldis], author of two volumes of delightful verse for children, and a novel, "Murder in a Haystack"; David Hamilton, author of "Pale Warriors" and "Picaresque," and George Dillon, the young poet who has been compared to Keats in his latest volume, "The Flowering Stone," and who has just been awarded a Guggenheim traveling fellowship.

To celebrate that honor and to bid him farewell, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank will give a luncheon in his honor on April 21 to the members of the executive committee of the just inaugurated P. E. N., which will be followed by the formal organization meeting of the chapter and its first annual business conference. At that time the membership of the chapter will be created.

"Distinguished members of the various centers are often on the wing from one country to another and it is the privilege of P. E. N. centers to entertain their visitors and to offer them a more intimate understanding of local scenes and affairs than they would be able to get in any other way and at the same time share their visitors' observations which is mutually stimulating," said Miss Butcher. "It is hoped that the Chicago chapter of P. E. N. may provide stimulating contacts for its visitors from afar [or near] as well as for its members."

Deep Shade of Blue Popular in Paris for Daytime Wear

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—For daytime wear, blue in one of the deep, steadfast shades is the color that all Paris chooses. Those of you who have been faithful to this column know this already, but it can bear repeating.

There are several dark blues from which to choose your shade. There are midnight, navy, dark violet-blue, and sapphire. Any of these tones, combined with white or pale yellow for afternoon, and with vivid crude shades for sports and morning, will make the chic daytime ensemble of the smart Parisienne.

The Vera Borea frock, shown in our sketch, is the kind of blue dress that can be worn from morning to night by the busy woman without lowering the banner of chic a centimeter. It is made of dull-surfaced navy blue crêpe marocain, and is trimmed with white porcelain carved buttons that come from Venice. The collar that holds the neckline close around the throat is fastened under two white camellias.

This dress is called "Little Corporal" and has the kind of modernized Directoire influence that Paris approves. The skirt, cut on the bias, is brought up to the collar in a point in front, this point buttoning over the white porcelain buttons and giving a high waistline effect, but one easy to wear. The sleeves are fitted almost to the shoulder, where a little puff, joined to the sleeve by zig-zag piping, gives the wide shoulder line.

The back is molded by two seams from shoulder blades to hips, and is held in by a belt of self-material.

Smart White Hats Newest Spring Style

Made of Fabrics and Thin, Supple Straws.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THIS hat buying or shopping is getting complicated . . . just when everything seems settled for spring at least . . . just after you have bought what you thought was sartorial perfection in the way of head coverings, you run right into a regular Chicago blizzard of white hats and your troubles begin again!

These hats are the whitest things ever viewed in this rather smoke grayed atmosphere and, of course, the victim that falls for this new white streak in hat fashions must reckon with frequent fees to the cleaners.

But you will be completely captivated with their daring, dashing freshness . . . they are as crisp and cool and starkly smart as spring stalks of freesia. Most of them are made of fabrics and supple, thin, easy to weave straws . . . with effective emphasis on large and small holed mesh . . . most of them are small and brimless . . . and all of them top the smartest costumes with a fine dramatic arrogance!

White Hat for Contrast.

A white chapeau is the smartest contrast for dark blue hued suits, frocks and coats, and among all these new white tops you will be able to find the very hat that best flatters your face. One looked good enough to eat . . . a white frostinglike affair of medium size mesh . . . it certainly does a good job of head covering with two large flowers with shredded petals that will remind lots of prospective buyers of cocoanut cake icing . . . included with this almost edible concoction was the new idea for chilled spring digits . . . a tiny flat muff made of the same shredded petaled flowers that perched on the right side of the hat . . . whether this unusual get-together will make the passing grade into fashion favors remains a white hope . . . but no discriminating shopper will deny the decorative appeal.

If you want a new handbag for street and sportswear look for the newest wooden bead creations . . . some ambitious bead stringer must have decided to string for fame and fortune instead of amusement. These bags are good practical bright spots for the April showers, as they are brilliant ideas for dull costumes that practically every one drags out when the morning skies are overcast . . . you will discover them in bright red, Kelly green, yellow, brown, blue and a beige ivory . . . they have metal frames that stay together without watching . . . they are all lined with linen . . . the red bags are lined with red linen liberally besprinkled with white dots.

There must have been plenty of beads, for these good looking bags have been designed in large, generous sizes . . . there is plenty of room for all the extra baggage every self-respecting shopper always drags in bags.

They are really the smartest finds of the week, and besides being new and decidedly different they are priced so temptingly low that it must be a very strong budgeteer that will not annex two and even three or four . . . for they will be the answer to what to send for gifts and prizes.

Hothouses Dot Landscapes of City's Suburbs

Many Enjoy Gardens All Year Round.

BY JUDITH CASS.

FLOWER shows, garden club meetings, classes in gardening and other evidences of a wide interest in horticulture are, like straw hats and marbles, accepted signs of spring. This seasonal burst of enthusiasm for growing things, however, is to many prominent Chicagoans only a continuation of a pastime and occupation which they enjoy all the year round.

On the north shore and in the western suburbs there are many large estates whose owners have the pleasure of watching blooms grow in greenhouses all the year round. All during the winter months town houses are brightened by flowers from their owners' own conservatories.

The Lake Forest landscape is dotted with greenhouses, each one designed and built to accompany the architectural style of the estate it enhances. In the city, too, there are a number of small conservatories built snugly into houses or projecting from the houses proper. Cardinal Mundelein's residence on State parkway at North avenue is one of the few town estates with a separate greenhouse on the grounds. Palms, rare ferns, and brilliant flowers bloom in this circular greenhouse all the year round.

Big Greenhouse at Walden.

One of the largest and loveliest greenhouses in Lake Forest is at Walden, the estate of the Cyrus Hall McCormicks. The McCormick conservatory is an adjunct to the beautiful gardens. The interior is divided by glass partitions into a series of ten compartments to make possible the growing of a great variety of things, each group requiring a different temperature. Grapes and roses, carnations and orchids, oranges and chrysanthemums, nectarines and bedding plants are all grown under this system, and during the winter months freshly cut flowers are sent every day to the McCormicks' town house.

The Walter S. Brewsters' greenhouse in Lake Forest is an important part of an estate which boasts one of the most beautiful gardens in the country. Mrs. Brewster, who has the reputation of knowing more about gardening than any one else in this vicinity, is responsible for the landscaping which includes a miniature lake where swans float in the summer against a background of close-clipped lawns and colorful blooms.

The Noble Brandon Judahs' Lake Forest estate, which is one of the most elaborate in the west, has an unusual horticultural equipment. The growing houses open into the service building and potting room, which, in turn, open into an orangery where orange, fuchsia, bay, oleander and other citrus and ornamental trees flourish.

Lasker Estate Greenhouse.

The Albert D. Laskers' estate in west Lake Forest also has an unusual greenhouse—a long, graceful structure with a central vestibule opening onto a formal setting. The main building is divided into three compartments, each of which is devoted to the growing and finishing off of a definite group of plants. Two wing houses, however, are used entirely for fruit culture after the Italian fashion, with trees and vines trained on trellises.

The John R. Thompsons Jr. have two long, narrow conservatories connected by a service building on their Lake Forest estate. Each house is divided into three compartments wherein a wide variety of plants are grown at different temperatures.

The lovely elm-shaded estate of the William Sherman Hays in Winnetka has a greenhouse connected with the gardener's lodge and built to harmonize with the classic American simplicity of the house and grounds.

Other Noted Hothouses.

Gardening is a serious business on the spacious Lake Geneva estate of Mrs. William Wrigley Jr. Here there are a three compartment practical growing house, a two compartment house for hotbeds, and a palm house with high side walls for storage of palms. Ceylon Court, the F. L. Maytag estate at Lake Geneva [formerly owned by the late John J. Mitchells], has a series of connecting greenhouses from which table demands for flowers and vegetables are supplied. The Walter G. McIntosh greenhouse in Lake Geneva is built on the side of a hill. The main structure, devoted to the culture of flowering and foliage plants, adjoins a pit house used for growing out of season vegetables.

Among other Chicagoans fortunate enough to grow flowers and vegetables in their own hothouses are Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. McGann, whose conservatory in Lake Forest houses the perfect blooms for which Mrs. McGann is famous; Mr. and Mrs. Owen B. Jones, whose greenhouse is built right into a deep ravine on their Lake Forest grounds; Mr. and Mrs. John Coleman Jr., whose conservatory was built as a lean-to addition to their house; Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow, who have a greenhouse for flowers and plants and a lean-to for vegetables; and Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, whose gardeners grow flowers and palms in her two compartment greenhouse in Lake Forest.

More "Family Album" Pictures.

Herma Clark is finding more and more pictures of Chicago pioneers available for her stereopticon review of "Chicago's Family Album" next Sunday afternoon at Orchestra hall. One of her latest acquisitions is a picture of the late Mrs. J. Whitney Farlin [Mrs. George Henry High's mother] in a dignified victoria drawn by two horses with docked tails. There are also several snaps of some of our prominent citizens driving pony carts and high bicycles.

Mr. and Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne Lewis [Bertha Palmer] will return to California, where they spent their honeymoon last fall, for the summer.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

Norman Foster's quite a lad! Versatile. He plays well and easily any sort of a little old rôle that rolls his way.

This time he portrays a fighting truck driver, or, more properly speaking, a truck driver who becomes a fighter. He handles his vehicle after the fresh, familiar fashion of the fellow who knows he's propelling something the other guy better look out for, and, in the ring, he puts up a fight that shows the kid has brains, courage, and a brawn of which he gives little indication when all dressed up. There are a couple of ring battles in this picture that have all the earmarks of authenticity and IF Mr. Foster DOESN'T give and take plenty of punishment, why the illusion that he does is perfect, just the same.

One day while rolling merrily along over the cobble stones he beholds a pretty girl hobbling in his direction:

"Hey, Limpy!" he calls. "Wan't a lift?" "Limpy" doesn't particularly, but she's walked a long way since deserting the Rolls Royce in which she started out, and she succumbs to coaxing.

After a wild ride the young woman is deposited at the foot of a flight of steps she announces leads to her home. The agreement is that she and Jim shall meet there the following evening. You learn in just about a minute that the maid is a gay deceiver, and, later, that her name is Peggy, that she's a telephone operator and that she lives with another telephone operator named Dot.

When Peggy and Jim meet again it is most unexpectedly in the humble abode of a shoemaker who has fathered the latter for years.

From here on the story devotes itself to romance, prize fighting, and side dishes of comedy provided by the shoemaker, plump and volatile little Henry Armatta, and Dot, played in the boneslessly comical fashion that Zasu Pitts has made so peculiarly her own.

The acting is all excellent and you're going to be fond of June Clyde as Peggy. There's something mighty winsome about her. She looks much like Genevieve Tobin. Direction is expert, story's believable and lines get across in good shape. The action moves right along, carrying your attention with it.

An hour spent watching "Steady Company" will be an hour spent pleasantly.

And on the stage—"Says you, says me" Victor McLaglen and Charles Judels, the Frenchman whose screen brainstorms always are so funny! The two, one in the uniform of a British soldier and the other in a French sailor's togs, co-star in a skit called "West Is East." You'll laugh!

See you tomorrow!

ROME, April 10.—(AP)—The engagement of Miss Anne Marie Wallace, daughter of Mrs. Allen Wallace of New York and Paris, and Prince Rodolfo del Drago, member of an old Roman family, was announced today. Part of the prince's town house formerly was occupied by the American embassy here.

New Nature Book Tells Children About the World

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

For the children who wonder and ask and ask and wonder about this earth of ours, where it came from, how life began and why it is the way it is, a new book, "Children of a Star," will give many of the answers. Not in any dull question and answer form, but by tracing today's life from its small and simple beginnings as a single cell through the strange life of prehistoric days to the present time.

The titles of some of the chapters give an idea of how the book carries the scientific thread along in a form delightfully digestible to a child's mind. They are "A Magic Jelly," "The Little Sea People," "Makers of Stone," "Ogres in Lace," "The Humble Bug," "The Jungle Giants," "Poor Fish!" and "Bird Police."

"Children of a Star" is by Julie Closson Kenly, who wrote "Green Magic." Her nature books for children are unusual in their humor and near-story form, at the same time that they are scientifically correct.

Teachers who want to give children a vista of how things came to be, of the forces of life at work, and of how nature evolved this present marvelous and complicated world will find this book in a class by itself. For home use "Children of a Star" would be a delightful book for reading aloud to the child with an inquiring scientific or naturalist's mind.

What I like most about this author's books is their capacity to make the world a more interesting place to live in. That surely is something to do for children.

"Children of a Star" is published by Appleton and costs $2.50. On the whole it seems to me to fit, in vocabulary and subject, the interests and grasp of boys and girls of perhaps 11 or 12 to 15.

Dr. J. G. Schurman to Be Dinner Guest of Cornell Alumni

Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former ambassador to Germany and minister to China, will be the guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Cornell University club of Chicago at the Germania club Wednesday evening. Dr. H. F. Simon, German consul general, and Dr. Koliang Yih, Chinese consul general, will be present. Col. Edward Davis, 65th cavalry, U. S. A., will be toastmaster.

The paths of these four have frequently crossed. Dr. Yih is a graduate of Cornell, class of 1908, while Dr. Schurman is a former president of the university. Dr. Schurman and Dr. Simon became acquainted while Dr. Schurman was the ambassador in Berlin. Col. Davis, who has the D. S. M. of this country and the D. S. O. of Great Britain, when about to sail for Greece on a government mission was advised by Dr. Schurman, who had been minister to Greece.

The WHISPERER

Roy Vickers

IN THE TRIBUNE TODAY AND EVERY DAY!

THE WHISPERER

By ROY VICKERS

INSTALLMENT I.

KIDNAPED FOR RANSOM.

Nine-thirty to ten-thirty, the slack hour of a London evening. In the lounge of a well known hotel restaurant a few late diners were taking their coffee. The orchestras were temporarily off duty and the management, believing that its patrons detested quiet, had turned on the wireless.

An operatic selection was noticeably cut short and the voice of the announcer penetrated the lounge:

"Interruping our concert for a most important announcement . . . "

The announcer paused and every one listened, for every one had a shrewd suspicion as to the nature of the announcement.

"The 'Whisperer' Crimes," said the announcer. [Every one was right.] "We are asked by the commissioner of the police to broadcast the following." There was another pause and then: "The public will greatly assist the police if they will do their best to obey the following simple instructions. If you should happen to see a man or a woman carrying a little deal box to which a wire is attached leading to headphones, on no account cry out. Do your best to avoid letting others know what you have discovered. Simply follow the person carrying the little box until you catch sight of a uniformed policeman. Then tell the policeman as quickly and quietly as you can. It is most important that the person carrying the box should not have his or her movements impeded by a crowd collecting."

"Don't let it get on your nerves." His tone was jaunty, but it held a note of entreaty. "People are beginning to talk and think about nothing else."

That was very near the truth. For nearly four months London had endured what one newspaper described as "a reign of terror," inaugurated by a single man working with very few accomplices. London had laughed at Chicago and its gangs. Now London herself was forced to endure a humiliation which Chicago had never known in the form of a bandit who held his captives for ransom and invariably killed them if the ransom were not paid. In those four months there had been five murders—three women and two men—and eight successful coups by the bandit in which the ransom was paid and the captives returned unharmed.

Those who had had the terrible misfortune to hear the voice of the bandit described it as very low and "veiled"—almost husky. For this reason he had been dubbed the Whisperer, and the name had crept even into official pronouncements, of which there were many.

The girl did not immediately answer and the young man gazed at her—gazed at hair that had a faint gleam that was nearer silver than gold; eyes that were widely deep and gray; skin that was a wonder of white and rose.

"It's not getting on my nerves—I don't think I have any," she said. "But, there's a sort of general gloom, isn't there?"

"Perhaps! But don't forget that the Whisperer always picks on rich people. You and I are quite safe, old thing. Which reminds me."

"What does?"

"Nothing, really. I've been thinking about it all day. How rich have we got to be—at the poorest—before we get married?"

"That's not quite fair, Roly," she answered. "Half your present screw, if you think you could endure that kind of life. Assuming that you wouldn't have any masculine objections to my carrying on with my job. But we agreed we had better wait."

"Never mind half my screw! What about double? 'Old Glassy' is bumping me up to six hundred, beginning next month. He intends, he says, to devote more time to his parliamentary and charitable duties and less to the city. Took him about half an hour to say it. I get extra work at the city end, I gather."

"How perfectly splendid! With my three hundred we shall be bloated plutocrats. O, Roly!"

"Don't forget income tax," he chuckled. "And another thing—if we're to be married in church I'm afraid there'll be an irritating delay for the purpose of calling banns. But if we start the ball rolling tomorrow——"

"Don't be absurd! The holidays are fixed and mine isn't till the first week in September."

A discussion followed, but she was adamant.

By profession Joyce Merrow was a fashion artist. She had made quite a small reputation with her neat drawings, but she was still no more than a junior in the big firm that employed her.

"Have to make the best of it, I suppose!" grunted Roland. "By the way, 'Old Glassy' knows I want to get married. Asked me to fix a dinner to meet you."

"He sounds a perfect dear! When I see him may I thank him for the rise?"

"Better not. . . . When you see him, child, watch out a bit. He has a silly manner and he talks the most appalling nonsense in public and private. Yet look at him! Member of parliament, philanthropist, and something rather important in the city. Goes everywhere—knows everybody. He's a most frightful ass, but he's no fool, if you understand me. . . . Come on, it's time we moved on to Struddick's party."

They crossed the lounge, unconsciously attracting a certain amount of interested attention. He was tall, dark, and springy. Both walked beautifully, though neither knew it. If they were relatively poor no one could tell it by looking at them.

As they were getting into a taxi a newsboy passed them shouting: "Whisperer Latest."

"I've seen that—there's nothing to it," said Roland. "Just guff about a big German scientist who's come over to help Scotland Yard."

Struddick was a rising young musician who took late pupils and was never free before ten at night, when he would turn his studio music room into a sort of palais de danse for any of his friends who cared to drop in. At 12 o'clock precisely he would crack a huge horsewhip and go on cracking it until the last of his guests had departed.

It was a breathless June evening and after the party Joyce suggested that they should walk back. At a quarter to one in the morning they reached the modest block of flats in Bloomsbury where Joyce shared a three room flat with a colleague. In the daytime the flats boasted a porter. But he went off duty at ten and the outer door was locked.

Roland took Joyce's two latchkeys from her, intending to open the outer door, then glanced about him. The street was now utterly deserted, save for a car parked fifty yards away.

"Good-night, darling. September's the devil of a time to wait, but I'll make the best of it. . . . Don't be standoffish. No one can see us. . . . "

Young love is not hampered by class prejudices. A costermonger will kiss his girl in a quiet street— a duke or a social secretary will do the same.

There were four floors, and Joyce's flat was on the fourth. On each floor lights burned all night. But as she reached the first floor she saw that the light on the floor above her was out. The bulb, she supposed, must have failed, for, looking upwards, she saw that the lights on the third and fourth floors were burning. There would be no real difficulty on the score of light because she knew the way so well. Still, it was a little creepy at that hour.

Up the first short flight to the second floor, then a turn into darkness.

She had taken the turn—was halfway up the dark section—when she was seized from behind and a gloved hand was slapped over her mouth.

"I'm not going to hurt you or rob you, Miss Merrow. I have only put my hand over your mouth in case you should scream before I could tell you not to. You must not scream. I killed Lady Doucester because she screamed. I shall kill you if you disobey me, but I shall not hurt you at all if you do as I tell you. Now I am going to take by hand away."

The hand was taken away, but one arm still held her lightly across the throat, her assailant standing behind her. She was panting for breath, but she was not at the moment acutely afraid. The voice, for all that it spoke in an undertone, had a strange ring of conviction. She believed she would not be hurt provided that she offered no resistance. More than anything else she felt indignation.

"Now keep perfectly still." The arm was removed from her throat and she stood swaying a little, one hand on the bannisters. "Don't move your head. I'm going to put a pair of spectacles on you. They look ordinary spectacles, but you won't be able to see anything through them. Remember to keep still." Deft fingers lifted her hair and fixed the spectacles.

"On no account touch the spectacles, Miss Merrow. Is that clear?"

"Yes."

"Good! Now I'll help you downstairs."

The hand took her arm lightly and she walked down the stairs beside her captor. The hand was not gripping her as if she were a prisoner—only guiding her and steadying her, confident that she would not attempt to break away. She could feel light through the spectacles, but could see absolutely nothing.

He opened the door and they stood in the street.

"Take my arm, please—ballroom fashion." She noticed now that the voice had a veiled quality and was almost husky. The voice of the Whisperer.

Fifty yards on and then:

"We're getting into a car. Stoop and I'll guide you."

Tree Planting Days Arrive; Here's Method

BY PAUL POTTER.

Tree planting time is at hand and hundreds of Chicagoland home owners as well as those with vacant property or a civic interest in roadside plantings should make the most of it. Arbor day next Friday also calls attention to the season.

Nursery stocks of the reliable shade trees are abundant and selling at the lowest prices in many years. Many unemployed or those with leisure hours will find an inspiration and actual investment in future land values by planting judiciously in the coming weeks.

Now that the ground is warming up, with little prospect of serious frost damage seen by the weather man, the young trees may be removed from their winter trenches or moist earthen beds in the basement for permanent location.

Caution must be used in digging the hole larger and deeper than the size of the root system or earth ball. The roots should be spread well and loose soil poured about them to make sure no bending or crowding of roots takes place. The trees should be set at the same depth they were growing formerly, as can be seen by a darkened mark on the young tree trunk.

A soil that is loose and rich is preferred. Some city folk are using peat moss at the roots to absorb moisture and plant food for early growth. An ample supply of moisture must be maintained throughout the first season, with at least one or two thorough soakings a week, and a thorough soaking at the time of planting.

Some top pruning is desirable, provided this was not done in the nursery before the tree was shipped. The dirt should be tamped down about the roots when the tree is set out, and after watering sprinkle a top coating of soil about the tree to prevent caking of the surface area.

Or each will be mailed upon receipt of 12 cents in stamps by the Garden Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The three are mailed for 28 cents. # Mirrors Play an Old Role in Human Vanity

Their Origin Hidden in Caveman Era.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Narcissus couldn't have been more delighted with the first glimpse of his own image in a pool than members of the Naval Reserve Officers' club are with the new port hole mirrors hung last week in their clubrooms. In a reflecting way these are, to be sure, one of the cleverest experiments made about town in many a day.

Several months back Lieut. Max Schwitzner conceived the idea and has since developed it with the assistance of Capt. Edward A. Evers. "The frames of the mirrors used to be those of the portholes of the old Commodore, which plied the great lakes and later was anchored at the foot of Randolph street as a naval training base," explained Lieut. Schwitzner as he acted as guide through the Officers' club, which is seldom opened to women. "When the Commodore burned we rescued these frames, six in all, though but two have been converted into mirrors. You see, it is rather an expensive proposition, but we expect to complete the set in time."

Handsome, they are, indeed, with their heavy polished frames and spotless glasses, and particularly appropriate for the club which smacks of things nautical. It is, you know, located on the third floor of the Naval armory, which seems in a little world all its own away out at the eastern limit of Randolph street.

Recall Famous "Bilbao" Mirrors.

Mirrors in relation to the sea brings to mind the so-called "Bilbao" mirrors, which are among the loveliest dating from colonial days. The story is that these glasses were brought home by sailors who had in the course of their voyages visited Bilbao, in the Bay of Biscay. In turn they presented them to their wives and sweethearts. It is, however, a question whether some may not have been acquired in exchange for a cargo of dried fish.

Since its inception the mirror has been regarded as a precious piece, something to be treasured and guarded from all harm. In very early times it was a luxury to be indulged in only by persons of great wealth, a fitting gift to pass from one potentate to another.

Though record does not tell us the story of the first mirror, can't you imagine the scene? A cave man waited impatiently for his aboriginal mate to accompany him to some prehistoric gathering. When at last she emerged from their crude shelter he commented irritably, "Look at yourself! Your garland is cocked over one eye." Wearily she replied, "But it is so windy I couldn't see a thing in the pond in the forest—it was nothing but ripples." Whereupon he hit upon the idea of a reflecting pool indoors and burnished the first piece of metal.

Seeing Ourselves Is an Old Urge.

To see ourselves as others see us was the primal urge for the mirror. We read in the Pentateuch about the Hebrews using brass mirrors for this purpose. It is known that reflectors of bronze were common among the Egyptians, Greeks, and Romans, and Praxiteles taught the use of polished silver for mirrors in the year 328. Even vanity was the urge for the first glass mirrors made by the Venetians in 1300.

Happily enough though when the mirror rose to popularity at the close of the seventeenth century in Italy, France, and England it was called upon to enhance the charm of homes and so wed utility to beauty. A fine example of an early Italian mirror brought directly from Milan is to be found in an old residence at 1715 South Michigan avenue. Smaller but even finer examples of this work, characterized particularly by their gilt frames and open work carving, have been acquired by Miss Gloria Griffith.

Mrs. Robert R. McCormick has in one of the chambers of her Astor street residence an early Georgian mirror that expresses the emphasis craftsmen of the seventeenth century placed on detail. Other early English mirrors very much sought after include the handsome carvings of the reign of Charles II., the dignified Cromwellian frames, and the very rare Queen Anne mirrors.

It is generally conceded that the French carried the art of the use of mirrors to its greatest perfection, but in most instances they were treated as an integral part of the room, not as a movable bit of furniture. From the small "château" to the great Hall of Mirrors at Versailles they were incorporated into the paneling of rooms. With the Directoire period these mirrors became slim, severe, chic precursors of the modern movement today. A handsome example of this application is to be found in the "mirrored" dining room of the Lake Shore drive apartment of Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick.

Broad Shouldered, Athletic Gal Hankers to Look Soft, Feminine

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

How can a young woman who is athletic of build and general appearance turn herself into a mademoiselle of marked feminine charms?

O. K., "Elaine!" First thing I'd do would be to invest in a few copies of the latest and best fashion magazines. I'd study them well.

Then I'd go in for coiffure study. If you can afford it, find out the name and seek the advice of one of those artist hairdressers who can look you over and decide pronto what line of coiffure would lend you more feminine charm.

Clothes, of course, and coiffure are fine allies in the conversion of an athletic into a feminine girl. Then there are subdued mannerisms and gestures that help. The "athletic" girl is generally a bit cocksure if not aggressive in her speech and actions. This state of affairs can be modified with a practiced "softness."

Truth is, in this day and age, it should not be a difficult task to remodel an athlete of female suasion into one of those girls that men rush to open doors for. The question is, however, whether it isn't just as well to know how to open them, yourself. However, that's another story, for another day.

What They Call Film Stars on the Movie Lots

And Nicknames Sometimes Tell a Story.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 10.—The nicknames that screen stars apply to each other in the camaraderie of studio work do not generally become public, but here are some of them—funny, you'll agree:

Janet Gaynor—"Lolly." Either an abbreviation of her original name Laura or short for lollipop.

Wallace Beery—They call him everything from Wally, which is the general nickname, to "Plump," referring to figure, or "Rickenbacker," referring to his airplane hobby.

Cecil B. De Mille—He's "C. B." to every one in the picture business and "the Bathtub King" in occasional jocular mention referring to De Mille's fancy for including ornate bathroom scenes in his society pictures.

Marie Dressler—She's "Queen Marie" to the M. G. M. lot and there's not another actress in the screen colony who would dispute her regal right to the royal purple of popularity among her own folk.

John Barrymore—They discovered while John and Lionel were both working in "Arsene Lupin" at the M. G. M. lot that John is "The Kid" in the bosom of his own family. To some others he's "The Profile."

John Miljan—The "Prince of Dalmatia." John's ancestors were hardy folk who, to hear him tell it, cavorted with one foot on a pirate sloop in the coves of Ragusa, Dalmatia, and the other foot in some eagle's eyrie in the forbidding mountains that shoot up from the coast. John expressed a wish to retire eventually and run a farm on the Dalmatian coast; hence his nickname.

Sylvia Sidney has a collection of names, all of them descriptive of some quality. At the Paramount lot she has been known as "Funny Face," "The Brat," and "One Take Sidney," the latter meaning that she's such a good actress they do not have to repeat her scenes for four or five camera grindings.

Modern Music Shows a Trend Toward Charm

Recital of Contemporary Composers Pleases.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Music of the present day took a long step toward becoming popular yesterday afternoon. The International Society for Contemporary Music gave a concert at the Goodman theater, proving thereby that some of the living composers are not doing the things that they have been accused of doing, in fact have made a good bit of an about-face and are taking a way toward beauty and charm that many of them would have scorned ten or fifteen years ago.

Instead of a violent assault on all melodic conventions, here was a concertino lirico by Miaskowsky that was nothing short of charming; a rhapsody by Leo Sowerby, written a decade ago and one of the loveliest things he ever did; a divertissement for chamber orchestra by Ibert that was all hilarity and humor and impudent burlesque. It was a time of cheer for some of us unregenerates.

As for high spots of the performance there were many. Mrs. Margaret Gent, mezzo-soprano, was soloist in a song suite by Hindemith, "The Young Maid;" Mary Krakowski, soprano, served similarly in another suite by Ernst Toch, "The Chinese Flute." In neither case did the composers get away from what they considered their duty to write earnest music, but in both they wrote tremendously difficult things for their soloists. In both cases the soloists made safe trips and happy landings. In both cases, also, they displayed excellent voices; that of Miss Krakowski is a particularly fine one.

The entire program was for chamber orchestra, varying in size and instrumentation from the string quartet, flute and clarinet in the Hindemith songs to a complete small orchestra plus most of the known percussion instruments in the Toch suite. Rudolph Ganz conducted and his performance in addition to the choice of program brought happiness into the lives of many who were beginning to think unkindly of contemporary music.

A number of other musical events took place during the afternoon and evening. Andre Skalski introduced his new Philharmonic club of Chicago to an audience in Curtiss hall. It is a chorus of about thirty voices, evidently carefully selected and carefully trained, and showing in its initial program a wide acquaintance with attractive music that is not too often presented.

A triple program was given in the Playhouse by Georgia Kober, pianist; Helen Bickerton, soprano, and Raymund Koch, baritone. Miss Bickerton and Mr. Koch were heard in duets by Bach and Mozart, so well sung that they were called back for another Mozart excerpt, "La ci darem" from "Don Giovanni." Miss Kober gave a brilliant and resonant performance of an ancient dance by Rameau in the MacDowell transcription.

The audience at Orchestra hall was given reason to applaud the operatic arias sung by John Pane-Gasser, tenor, who is unusually gifted with a fine dramatic voice; also the violinistic talent of Josef Rosenstein, who was playing the Franck sonata with William Hughes at the piano.

The Joseffer String quartet concluded its chamber music series at the Cordon club last night, having developed an amount of popularity during the season which justified a promise of another similar series next season. The four young women artists of the organization were heard in Stanley Wilson's Three Rhapsodies, which they introduced several weeks ago and which were repeated by request, well written, tuneful works played with an abundance of tone and spirit.

Erika Thimey appeared in another dance program at the Goodman theater last evening to music played by Mona Redman, pianist. She is a Mary Wigman disciple, forming many of her poses and evolutions on the Wigman theories, and, like her instructor, possessed of excellent body control wherein vigor of action seldom loses grace of execution. She was well received.

Famous Proctologist Tells How to Protect Babies

Says Diaper-Changing Not Enough to Stop Cruel Irritations

"Urea Irritation is suffered by infants whose bodies are not protected against the abrasive effects of uric acid crystals," says Dr. Robert E. Gordon, of New Haven, Conn. "Even if diapers are frequently changed these microscopic urea crystals can produce raw and inflamed areas on the skin. Prevention of this painful condition is simply a matter of keeping these irritants from coming in contact with the skin."

In hospitals, clinics and doctors' offices all over the country mothers receive specific instruction on guarding their babies against Urea Irritation. Z. B. T. Baby Talcum is used and recommended because it is a sure preventive, made specifically for this purpose.

An Important Difference

Whereas ordinary talcum powders dust off almost as soon as applied, Z. B. T.—made after the formula of a noted baby specialist—contains a special ingredient which adheres so closely to the skin as to make it almost completely moisture-proof. Thus a delicate, protective coating is formed against dangerous acids, irritation and chafing. Yet the powder does not "cake," and allows the free, normal flow of perspiration.

Free Trial Can!

Your druggist or chain store sells Z. B. T. in three sizes—10c, 25c and 50c. Resent substitutes! Get a can of Z. B. T. today and test it yourself. Or send your name and address, with 4 cents to cover postage, for a full-size "Junior" can. Z. B. T. Products Co., Dept. CTD, Bronx, N. Y.

Have Color in Cheeks

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should try Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

They start the bile and help overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c.

The other day I noticed bunches of dandelion greens in the market, and I knew that spring was really here. Those little green bundles had something a touch sad about them, because I well remember that when I was a child we took a trowel and went out into the field to dig dandelion plants, thereby getting greens for dinner and ridding the lot of a few weeds. But this buying them just goes to show that we'll have what's good, even if we get it artificially. Just as we have plants blooming on our window sills on the twentieth story, even if we must buy the earth to plant them in, weighed, washed, and packed in a carton, at the dime store.

Well, now that the influx of garden products has begun, it's in order to have a word or two on how to preserve the freshness of vegetables. Those covered enamel pans designed for keeping vegetables in the ice box are a grand invention. They keep vegetables perfectly for a longer time than would seem possible, and for that reason are a special boon to small families, where a purchase lasts for more than one meal, or to housekeepers whose distance from the source of supply makes it impracticable to shop daily. Of course, it is best to buy produce a sit is needed, but that isn't always possible.

Lacking one of the magical vegetable boxes, a damp cloth does much toward preserving freshness. Vegetables should be trimmed, washed, and wrapped in a damp cloth, or put into a bag [a large sugar sack is a good idea], and laid on one of the wire shelves in the ice box. They should not be put on the bottom, because it is better for them to have the air circulating around them. Don't have the cloth wet, just damp. If you like, you may use paper towels instead of cloths.

In stores where the produce men know their business they remove the outer leaves of lettuce and cabbage when they wilt, a procedure we might well copy.

If, when you get your vegetables home, you find they are not as fresh as they seemed to be when you purchased them, try these first aid measures: Asparagus, lettuce, artichokes, celery, and French endive will revive wonderfully if you cut off the root end, remove the dead looking leaves and put the head into water. Not ice cold water, but water that is about room temperature, or a bit warmer. This point of temperature is important, because we learn in botany that the plant can absorb warm water only, and if you put your vegetables into cold water nothing will happen until it has time to lose its chill.

If your purchases are only temporarily discouraged, as it often the case, an hour or two in water will perk them up wonderfully. When they have revived, take them out of the water and put them in the ice box till you are ready to prepare them for the table. Long soaking tends to remove valuable content from vegetables.

GARDEN SANDWICHES.

¼ cup finely sliced radishes.
¼ cup water cress, chopped fine.
12 slices bread.
4 tablespoons butter.
3 tablespoons French dressing.

Chill the vegetables well. Peel and dice the cucumber, or slice thin. Cut the radishes in thin slices. Cream the butter and add the cress to it. Spread the bread with this mixture, add the vegetables and moisten with the dressing. Add salt and pepper to taste.

ASPARAGUS SALAD.

Allow six medium sized stalks to each salad. Cook the asparagus in salted water, taking care to keep the stalks whole. Then drain and chill. Arrange on lettuce leaves. Add the French dressing, and garnish with strips of pimento.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

Do you still believe that every hand played for a grand slam should necessarily have been bid a grand slam? If you do, perhaps you will try to prove it by yesterday's play-a-problem. Seven odd are made very simply, yet I do not believe that a bid of more than six would be justified. Further, from the standpoint of the rules, even a bid of six would seem high, since the two hands together hold but six first and second round high card tricks. Six and a half should generally be held to make a little slam safe and seven to make it at all sure. The answer, of course, is the strong distributional strength. This can be judged to a certain extent, enough to justify a bid of six, but not to my mind to bid a full seven. This was the hand:

NORTH [Dealer].
♥—Q,10,9,3,2

| ♣—3,2 | ♣—Q,J,9,4 |

SOUTH.
♠—A,2
♥—A,K,J,6
♦—J,6,5,4,3,2

North dealt and bid a club. East overcalled with one spade. South bid two hearts. West passed. North now went to three hearts. East passed, and South, to show his hearts were but four cards and therefore should not be rebid, bid three no-trumps. By his bid he also showed North that he had the spades stopped. West passed and North now jumped to six hearts.

West opened the ♠ 6, dummy played the 5, East the Q, declarer took with the A. South led the ♣ 6 which North took with the ♣ K, dummy leading back the ♣ 5 which South trumped with the ♥ J. You will note it would at least be risky for the declarer to start leading out his trumps until he had his playing suit established. To the next trick declarer led the ♦ 2 which dummy took with the ♦ A. Dummy then led back the ♣ 7 which declarer trumped with the ♥ K. Declarer then led the ♥ A and followed by leading the ♥ 8 which dummy overtook with the ♥ 9, clearing the trump suit. Dummy then took the remaining tricks by leading out the ♣ A, ♣ 10 and ♣ 8 and then the ♥ Q and ♥ 10 and ♥ 3 for seven odd—the little slam bid and made one extra trick.

An interesting diversion if you have time is to see if you could reach the same result by setting up declarer's diamond suit as the playing suit in place of dummy's club suit, using only the ♣ A-K in the dummy as taking tricks. I don't think you'll have much trouble trying to do it. Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH.
♥—6,5
♦—J,10,9,3
♣—Q,10,9,8,6,5

| WEST [Dealer]. | EAST. |
|---|---|
| ♠—A,K,10,4 | ♠—Q,9,3,2 |
| ♥—A,K,7 | ♥—Q,4,3,2 |
| ♦—K,4,3 | ♦—Q,7,6,5 |
| ♣—K,7,2 | ♣—A |

SOUTH.
♠—J,8,7,6
♥—J,10,9,8
♦—A,2
♣—J,4,3

Bid and play this hand and then compare the result with that printed tomorrow.

Boy Says Girls Care Only for Movie Heroes

Claims You're Out of Luck If You're Homely.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Hey, girls, what's the idea of turning down good Abe Lincolns for collar-ad Apollo Belvideres? Can it be true that to you young women a man is a man for his profile only? Can't you see male charm in an imperfect nose or a projecting ear?

Here's the case against you, young women! Remember a few days ago when I addressed a "Joseph," young and lonely for girl company, who complained his lack of pulchritude isolated him from girl company. I poohboohed the idea. But "Martin Hill" tells me that I don't know my girls, or words to that effect. Here's "Martin's" letter:

"It was kind, Miss Blake, to offer 'Joseph' hope, but cruel to try to make us fellows believe we can get girls when we can't. You asked "Joseph' if he thought he had to look like a movie sheik in order to enjoy girls' company. Let me say that if you haven't the well known Barrymore profile you are out of luck. I know from experience.

"Personality in a boy, from a girl's eye view, consists solely of perfection of features. You can't blame them, though, for wanting handsome men. It's only natural. I am not so bad looking, but evidently do not measure up to necessary standards. If boys like Joseph and myself are not fortunate enough to have Gable's sex appeal, then all we can do is to suffer unutterable loneliness and bitter heartache, which we do—believe us!

"Girls are getting more hard boiled every day and the best policy for us is to learn to dislike them. I never expect any girl to fall madly in love with me, or even to kiss me, when I take her out. I only want to be treated human, that's all. But this is impossible unless you resemble Apollo Belvidere at least. "MARTIN."

This is not for the girls' ears, "Martin." (Just between you and me.) Haven't you ever taken a look around at the men that are being marched to the altar daily? Go down and hang around the license bureau some day and study the males lined up there. Then ask if all men must resemble Apollo B.'s, or if it isn't something else that matters.

No man, Martin, is a hero to his girl friends who doesn't believe in his own power of appeal, and that, I fear, son, is your weakness—and Joseph's.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a medical student and go with a girl who is very wealthy. Shall I marry her for her money, in order to continue school?

"HERMAN."

FIRST GRADERS DROP AS HIGH SCHOOLS GROW

Although the number of first grade children in the Chicago public schools has decreased by 10 per cent in the last decade, the high school enrollment increased 211.5 per cent. This and other changes in the city's school population were revealed yesterday in a statistical survey just completed by William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools.

An increase of 38 per cent was found in the eighth grade in the ten year period ending in March and the ninth grade showed an increase of 93.9 per cent. In 1922, the report found, twelfth graders numbered only 9.6 per cent of the first grade enrollment. In 1932 the ratio had been raised to 33 per cent.

In March, 1922, the total enrollment for the first six grades was 229,260, grades seven to nine inclusive 81,510, and grades ten to twelve inclusive 25,370, or a total of 336,140. In March of this year, the report shows, there were 238,883 in the first six grades, an increase of 4.1 per cent; 120,676 in the seventh to the ninth grades, an increase of 48 per cent, and 71,205 in the tenth to the twelfth grades, an increase of 180 per cent.

The fall in the primary attendance was attributed by Supt. Bogan to the declining birth rate, which, according to his report, fell from 24.1 in 1913 to 15.3 in 1931. The disproportionate increase in the high schools has been ascribed to an increasing determination on the part of the students to get as much education as possible.

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

A LAST DEED OF CHIVALRY.

Mary Chevronne smiled, with ease, and with dignity and mischief and regret so that he stared at her, the beginnings of her knowledge in him also. She said very softly, no tremolo in her voice:

"Dear, dear Philip, I am going to tell you at once. It's kinder. All these years your letters have told me you were thinking of me. I answered them as they deserved. . . . with love, Philip. Very cowardly of me . . . I hoped you would tire, and I hated to hurt you."

He rose and stood on the hearth, his elbows on the mantelpiece, and looked down on her.

"You hoped I'd tire, Mary? Then you . . . have tired?"

She looked straight before her.

"Dear Philip, I used to be able to say 'dear boy,' but you're not a boy now. How faithful and wonderful you've been! But these five years—we've spent them in different worlds—you on your little islands where, I suppose, your thoughts turned here," she laid a hand on her breast, "I, in the world of people and travel and events; and . . . forgive me, my dear faithful Philip, but I can't!" She threw out her hands. "I can't! I can't!"

Still he looked at her in silence, realizing her, realizing as he would not have her know that he realized, seeing the proud colors of her flag of vanity which she kept flying till she looked up at him clearly with a sad, conscious, beautiful woman smile.

"It was a heavenly little romance, coming when I remember I fancied myself very unhappy. But, Philip, I've had—I have——" she said bravely, "so many heavenly little romances in my life. It didn't mean as much as you thought, my dear. Again I say, forgive me."

He spoke, chosing his amazed words tenderly:

"You are telling me, Mary, that you won't marry me."

"Exactly, dear. I never really meant to. I never imagined you would be so wonderful and faithful to me."

All the while he knew in his heart that she knew, too, what was there But how superbly she acted! How arrogantly she cast off her hope and her love and her desperation, laying on their grave the flowers of her tenderly rueful smiles, her affectionate light protests! And he must play his part opposite her without a stumble or falter.

"Men have been very faithful and wonderful to me," she said, her heart cold and her body lonely.

She rose then, held out her two hands again.

"I'd like you to go, Philip. I've treated you badly. I shall hope to hear you are very happy again one day. At present, I'm going abroad——"

He held her hands, cold as stone.

"Abroad?"

"Yes. Tomorrow. To Spain. Then . . . I don't know. Only, this must be good-by for a long time—till you have quite forgotten and forgiven."

"I've forgiven," he said slowly.

Suddenly she asked fiercely:

"How do you find me looking?"

He looked at her full. "You have never looked so lovely, Mary. So radiant."

She said: "Ah!" like one tortured by thirst might sigh after a draught of water. And then she said again, "Good-by."

He looked back at the door, and she was standing where he had left her on the hearth, the firelight on her, smiling, jewels shining.

And he went out of the house quickly, the most amazed man in London, knowing with a heart shaken to pity that the most gallant, the most generous thing to do was so to go. It was the last chivalry she desired of him.

And when he had gone she did not weep or sigh or even suffer again. She roused herself and gave orders for packing for extended travel, and she closed that volume of life which women find the most precious reading and put it away forever.

But before the fashionable gossip writers had the news that Mrs. Chevronne was leaving London, Persian was again at the attic studio above Soho square. He climbed the long stairs, stood, as before, on the threshold as Faire opened the door, then came in without a word and shut the door for her.

"Faire," he said, and his words sounded strangely humble, "I'm yours. Don't let us question and answer just now; don't let us talk. Believe, Faire. Life's ours."

He took his girl in his arms.

'DOC' DEPRESSION PUTS CHICAGO ON FEET, PHYSICALLY

City Has Seldom Enjoyed Such Good Health.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Out of the gloom of Old Man Depression a silver lining appeared yesterday. It was revealed that he has put a good many Chicagoans on their feet again, taking them up out of sick beds—as well as out of automobiles. This city, physicians concede, has never enjoyed such universal good health as present records indicate.

Medical authorities ascribe this happy state of affairs to various factors, with depression playing a leading rôle. While it is true, they concede, that lack of funds is keeping out of the hospital a large number of persons in need of medical attention, the mild winter is credited with keeping thousands of others in good health.

Saner Living Helps.

Saner living routines enforced by smaller pocketbooks, the consensus is, has also accomplished wonders.

Large hospitals of the city admit that each has a number of floors entirely closed off, which ordinarily would be in use. The depression cannot be blamed entirely, however, they add. For health records reveal that contagious diseases have dropped to a low level, pneumonia and similar ills are correspondingly low, and the general run of cases is less virulent in character.

"Generally, at this time of year we have about 2,400 patients," Dr. Karl Meyer, chief of staff at the county hospital, said yesterday in explaining why that institution has just experienced one of its busiest twelve months. "We now have 2,800 patients. The capacity is 3,200. The explanation is that many here now would ordinarily be in private institutions at their own expense.

Offices Are Empty.

"Physicians will agree that their offices have never been so empty, and that the situation is fine from the point of view of public health."

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, commissioner of health, cited several major factors involved.

"Contagious diseases have reached an exceedingly low level," he stated. "For that, Mayor Cermak deserves lots of credit for his coöperation with us, especially in quarantine cases. At present when a doctor has diagnosed a case as contagious, he reports it by telephone to the police; a cruising squad is notified and the warning sign is up three minutes after the diagnosis is made.

People Drinking Less.

"Less money to spend has made people eat less heartily and walk more, both of which are fine for health. They don't heat their houses so intensely. That's good, too. They don't entertain so much, drink so much, stay up late. It all enters into the situation."

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, chief of staff of Passavant hospital, declared that the weather last winter probably exerted a favorable influence on Chicago's health.

Charles A. Wardell, superintendent of St. Luke's, pointed to the drop in contagious diseases and bronchial affections as indicative of the general improvement in health.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Safe All Around

2 DIE AS PLANE HITS HILLSIDE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Crashes When Youths Try Forced Landing.

Monongahela, Pa., April 10.—[Special.]—Two young men were killed when the light sport plane in which they were flying dove 500 feet and crashed on a knob on the John Protz farm on the Monongahela-West Newton highway, three miles east of Webster, late today.

David Hamilton, 23, of Forward Township, the pilot, was dead when motorists reached the wreckage, and Sam Natalie, 26, of Gallatin, died while he was being taken to the hospital.

Dallas Compton, 19, of Webster, who saw the plane start its plunge and crash as he drove by in his car, said the pilot apparently underestimated the high wind while making a sharp left bank and lost control of the light plane. The motor, fastened to the rear of the one wing, was ripped from its supports and crushed Hamilton. Natalie sat in front of the pilot.

The plane was purchased by Hamilton several months ago and he had been flying from an improvised field on the Frank Vairi farm. Hamilton, who has been flying for several years, had qualified for a limited commercial license. He had made several flights earlier in the day with other young men of the district. The wrecked plane was a Curtiss-Wright Junior three cylinder monoplane.

Naval Seaman Drowns.

San Francisco, Cal., April 10.—(AP)—Joseph E. Green, 22, seaman in the naval reserve, drowned in San Francisco bay today after he had successfully bailed out of an airplane at an elevation of 1,500 feet.

Ensign Frank [Red] Gill, pilot of the ship, former football star at the University of California, also jumped from the plane and made a heroic effort to save Green's life, taking his body to shore, but three hours' work with an inhalator failed to resuscitate Green.

Gill's plane went out of control while six naval reserve training ships were maneuvering over the bay.

Girl Student Pilot Killed.

Miss Afton R. Lewis, 21, student pilot, was probably fatally injured here today when the plane in which she was making a solo flight over Mills field collided with another ship at an altitude of 200 feet. Paul San Martino, transport pilot, was flying the other ship which also contained two passengers. San Martino landed safely although the right wing of his ship was crushed.

Spectator Killed by Plane.

Sikeston, Mo., April 10.—(AP)—Floyd Widdows, 45, a farmer, was killed when struck by an airplane today while watching an American Legion air show here. Several other spectators suffered minor injuries. Philip Collins, a pilot, swerved his cabin plane to avoid striking spectators on a takeoff, and Widdows, who was standing apart from the crowd, was knocked down and crushed.

FATHER O'REGAN, NOTED ATHLETIC DIRECTOR, DIES

The Rev. James J. O'Regan, S. J., dean of men and athletic director of St. Louis university, St. Louis, Mo., died suddenly Saturday night in the Sacred Heart sanitarium in Milwaukee, it was learned here yesterday. Father O'Regan was formerly instructor in languages and athletic director of Loyola academy, where he laid the foundation for the national Catholic basketball tournament. Among his pupils were Quin Ryan, manager of W-G-N; Westbrook Pegler, TRIBUNE sports correspondent in the east, and James Corcoran, sports writer for an afternoon Chicago newspaper.

REV. JAMES J. O'REGAN.

Father O'Regan's appointment as athletic director in St. Louis university broke a long standing custom. Previously athletics at the school had been handled by laymen. He also taught theology and philosophy at the St. Louis institution.

According to members of his family, Father O'Regan, who was 44 years old, entered Sacred Heart sanitarium a month ago when he suffered a general breakdown caused by overwork. He was educated in St. Ignatius college in Chicago and ordained a priest in 1921 in St. Louis. Surviving him are his father, William O'Regan, 6351 North Claremont avenue; two sisters, Katherine, and Mrs. J. S. Wilson, and two brothers, William Jr. and Thomas. ## Dr. George W. Dienst, 72, Pioneer Physician, Dies

Dr. George W. Dienst, 72 years old, former president of the Illinois Homeopathic Medical association, died yesterday at his home, 438 Maple street, Aurora. For many years Dr. Dienst practiced in Chicago. He began his professional career as a medical missionary in Japan in 1886. Seattle, Wash., April 10.—(AP)—A. Scott Bullitt, 54, Democratic national committeeman and the party's candidate for United States senator and governor at recent elections, died unexpectedly at his home here today.

MOTHER SEES HER DAUGHTER KILLED BY AUTO

Fannie Samma, 3 years old, 2745 West 18th street, was fatally injured last night when she was struck by an automobile at 22d and Morgan streets. The little girl and her mother, Mrs. Bernice Samma, were waiting for a street car at the intersection when the accident occurred. She died en route to the county hospital. Joseph Lajohn, 1515 North Laurel avenue, driver of the car, was held by the Maxwell street police for the inquest.

One other death last night increased the county's automobile death toll to 293 since Jan. 1. An unidentified colored man, about 55 years old, was killed by an automobile at Western avenue and Fulton street. William Denner of Libertyville was the driver of the car.

A woman and a man were drowned early yesterday when their automobile left the highway just east of Schneider, Ind., and plunged into a drainage ditch filled with five feet of water. Schneider is 30 miles south of Hammond. The victims were Mrs. Mary Beam, 45 years old, and Wilbur Sellee, 32, of Morocco, Ind. A third passenger, Edward Archibald, 50, also of Morocco, saved himself by holding his head above water until help arrived.

TEACHER STIRS COPS' SYMPATHY; GETS AUTO BACK

Very indignant, Miss Fannie Reed of 62 West Schiller street, a teacher at Tilden Technical High school, complained to Marquette police last night that her automobile had been stolen from in front of 3143 Polk street, where she had been visiting.

"It's bad enough that we teachers are not being paid regularly, let alone losing by thievery what few things we still possess," she declared.

Policemen Joseph Buchanan and Patrick Loughran of the detective bureau overheard her complaint and, themselves employés of a department with interrupted pay rolls, sympathized with her. They promised to recover her car. They did so, more quickly than they expected. At Polk street and Albany avenue they sighted the teacher's stolen machine, and after firing several shots recovered the car and seized its two occupants. The two were Mike Beshoff, 1102 South Albany avenue, and Joe Graspino, 1138 Whipple street, each 18 years old.

RIP TIDE CLAIMS LIVES OF 2 NEAR LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., April 10.—(AP)—Treacherous rip tides claimed the lives of at least two of thousands of persons who went to ocean beaches of the Los Angeles area today, the hottest of the year.

A third body, that of a man, was recovered, but it was not known whether he was a tide victim.

PRESIDENT MAY ADDRESS SUNDAY CLUB ON MAY 29

If congress is not in session at the end of May, President Hoover may be the speaker at the Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall, on the evening of May 29. This possibility was announced last night by Clifford W. Barnes, president of the club, who returned from Washington last Thursday. He read a telegram from Senator James Hamilton Lewis stating that the President would seriously consider the Chicago engagement.

The Rev. Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, was the speaker last night. He took the place of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, who was scheduled. Due to a tragedy in the home of his brother, Raymond B. Fosdick, last week, Dr. Fosdick was unable to appear.

Mrs. Bjorkman was the wife of Edwin Bjorkman, Swedish author, translator and editor, who resides in Asheville. She formerly was Miss Ella Mae Pratt of Asheville, and until her marriage in 1930 was advertising manager for several large department stores there.

Fair Weather

FAIR weather with moderate temperature will usher in the baseball season in Chicago tomorrow, according to the official weather forecast last night.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox are home, and O so eager to show folks that theirs is an improved team, both in talent and spirit. They got in early last evening, several hours ahead of time. The moving up of the homecoming was made possible when the scheduled final exhibition game with the Indianapolis Indians was rained out yesterday afternoon.

Today the players will visit Comiskey park and try on the new uniforms and make sure that all will look their handsomest when they open the American league season against the St. Louis Browns tomorrow. New designs in uniforms and insignia have been thought up, it is said, and the fellows are more eager than usual to get into their new raiment.

All in Shape Except Tate.

They also will spend a little time exhorting the weather man to have a heart. The chill blasts which met the boys on their arrival last night was a severe contrast to the temperatures they have enjoyed since the San Antonio blizzard almost a month ago.

With the exception of Benny Tate, who has a fractured finger, the team is in excellent shape for the season. Dr. William Buckner, club trainer, says he never has known a bunch of athletes to respond so gloriously to his lotions.

"They are either hardy athletes or I am a wonderful trainer, or both," Dr. Buckner confessed.

Jones Or Hadley to Pitch.

Manager Fonseca announced late last night that he would pick his opening day pitcher after a practice which will be called at 10:30 o'clock this morning. He said the assignment rested between Sam Jones and Bump Hadley, both of whom are Sox newcomers, obtained last December from Washington.

Jones, who has worn the uniform of six American league clubs, had been doped as the opening day pitcher until his appearance in the rained out game in Louisville last Thursday, when the Colonels scored four runs in the first inning. Sam complained at the time that he had a slight hitch in his side.

"Sam told me this morning in Indianapolis that the hitch had disappeared and that he felt fine," Manager Fonseca said last night. "I told him that I was suspicious of a pitcher who boasted of his condition when it was raining pitchforks outdoors, but that I would take his word for whatever he told me about his condition after the Monday morning workout. If he still has the hitch, my choice will be Hadley."

Jolley May Start.

After he had finished talking about his pitchers, Boss Lew said that he's going to give Smead Jolley back his fielding glove at today's practice and that if Blaeholder or another right hander starts for St. Louis Smead will play left field in the opener. If Stewart, a lefty, works, Fonseca will share duty in left with Bob Fothergill, he said.

Jolley has not played a single inning this spring as an outfielder, but he has taken several workouts since it became apparent that foul flies were trying to drop on top of his head whenever he donned his catcher paraphernalia.

The exhibition season ended with a record of 13 victories in 16 starts, a ratio not approached in recent years. While the opposition this year was not impressive, the fact remains that such a percentage of victories is not to be scoffed at. The Sox played in no classification lower than class A, their one class B engagement, scheduled for Terre Haute, having been called off on account of cold weather.

Who Beat 'Em.

The three defeats were suffered at the hands of Shreveport, of the Texas league, 9 to 3; to Nashville, of the Southern association, 8 to 4, and to Louisville, of the American association, 7 to 6. The victories included verdicts over San Antonio, Fort Worth, Dallas, Shreveport, Little Rock, Memphis and Indianapolis.

FRED PFEFFER, WHITE STOCKING STAR IN '80S, DIES

Nathaniel Frederick Pfeffer, second baseman for the Chicago White Stockings in the late '80s and early '90s, died yesterday of heart disease at his home, 2928 Wilson avenue. He was 72 years old.

Pfeffer was born in Louisville, Ky., on March 17, 1860, and began his baseball career with the old Louisville Eclipses, the National league team of that time, in 1881. Later he played with the Troy Nationals and then came to the White Stockings. He returned to Louisville in 1893 and played with the Eclipses for three years, going to New York in 1896. He concluded his career with the White Stockings the following year.

Brought Comiskey to Chicago.

As a member of the Chicago team, Pfeffer was part of the famous stone wall infield of Anson, first base; Williamson, short stop, and burns, third base. He was known as the greatest of the second basemen until the debut of Johnny Evers.

Pfeffer was instrumental in bringing Charles A. Comiskey to Chicago from the St. Louis Browns in 1890. He left Anson's Colts and took an active part in the formation of the outlaw Brotherhood league, which later collapsed.

He claimed he raised $20,000 in twenty minutes to back the league and said he could have collected $100,000 just as easily. He paid Comiskey $7,500 for one year to manage the Chicago team and when the league broke up he suffered a personal loss of $10,000 on the promotion.

Owned Famous Bar.

Following his last year with the White Stockings, Pfeffer attempted to play semi-pro baseball in southern Wisconsin, but definitely withdrew from the game in 1902 when he broke his arm throwing to first base during spring training with the Racine team.

For years Pfeffer ran the famous Pfeffer's bar back of McVicker's theater. He sold his business, bar and all, for $1.50 in 1920. Of late years he has been in charge of the press boxes at Chicago race tracks.

Funeral services will be held at Our Lady of Mercy church Wednesday and burial will be in All Saints cemetery. The widow, Mrs. Ida Pfeffer, survives.

KID CHOCOLATE OUTPOINTS ABAD IN TITLE DEFENSE

HAVANA, Cuba, April 10.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, Cuban boxer, retained his somewhat synthetic junior lightweight championship here today by outpointing Dave Abad of Panama in a 15 round bout.

The decision was unpopular with most of the 5,000 fans, Abad getting the larger share of the cheers after the rough and tumble battle. The Associated Press scorecard gave each fighter five rounds and called the others even.

There were no knockdowns although Abad tumbled through the ropes in the twelfth round when he and Chocolate were half wrestling and half fighting. He took a count of three protestingly.

Bruins Defeat Purdue Stars 2d Time, 31-28

Chicago's Bruins defeated the Purdue All Stars for the second consecutive time at the Fronton last night, 31 to 28, but needed a five minute overtime period to accomplish the triumph. Nearly 2,000 saw the game, in which the Bruins rallied in the second half to overcome a 24 to 14 Purdue lead.

The game was played under the rule adopted last week by the national basketball committee that the ball must be advanced past the center of the floor in ten seconds. Neither team violated the new rule and it was the consensus of the players that the game was faster. While both quintets stalled in the closing minutes, the ball was in enemy territory and made for a much faster exhibition.

Even First Half.

The first half was practically even, although Chicago held a 14 to 13 lead. In the first five minutes of the second half, the Purdue Stars hit a blazing pace, getting one free throw and five field goals before the Bruins scored.

This drive should have given the visitors victory, but they slowed down. The Bruins held them to one point for the remaining fifteen minutes while climbing steadily. With 13 seconds remaining, Ralph Miller of the Bruins took out time.

Miller Ties Score.

Purdue led, 25 to 24. Miller devised a play from a jump ball in the back court and when the game was continued, the play sent him speeding under the basket, where he was fouled, getting one free throw. He made the attempt and tied the score. The Bruins then swept the All-Stars off their feet in the overtime period.

Hennepin-Shields defeated Damen yesterday afternoon, 22 to 19, to win the championship of the Knights of Columbus Basketball league. Six thousand saw the final game between the west side councils.

Damen, west section champion, and victor three times this season over Hennepin, led until the last five minutes. Then Bob Ohlenroth shot two field goals in succession which sent Hennepin ahead by one point, which margin was increased before the final gun.

Damen started the final contest with a rush which threatened to sweep Hennepin before it. At the half Damen led, 12 to 7, and until midway in the second half the Damen followers predicted an easy triumph. Behind six points at 14 to 8, Hennepin gradually cut the lead down until with five minutes to play Damen was in front, 17 to 14.

Hennepin Takes Lead.

Then came Ohlenroth's spurt and Hennepin led for the first time, 18 to 17. Damen's defense cracked and Hennepin scored again with no guard within 30 feet. With two minutes left Kluchinskas dropped in a long toss for Damen, but Hennepin returned within another easy field goal when Damen's guards were out of position. Trailing three points, Gentile missed a free throw for Damen, while seconds later Kearney, who was fouled by Kluchinskas, missed two free throws.

Yesterday's victory gave Hennepin its third championship, which ties the league record established by Marquette council of the north section. Damen previously had won two championships.

Loyola Wins Third Place.

Loyola-Hyde Park won third place in the final standings by whipping Madonna of the central division, 27 to 14. Capt. Mike Pistello and Red Emsley led Loyola's attack with four field goals each. Emsley also scored twice from the free throw line.

Fifth place went to Quigley, central division, when it defeated Lafayette, of the same section, 20 to 14. Yanzenitus, with 11 points, was the offensive star for Quigley.

Kansas City, Mo., April 10.—[Special.]—The Cubs wound up the spring training trip here today with a bombardment of the Kansas City Blues and then departed for Cincinnati, where, on Tuesday they open the season.

They finished off here in rampant style, beating the Blues, 8 to 3, by crashing the ball for fourteen hits, among which were four triples and a double. It was more punch than the team had shown all spring.

Stanley Hack, Billy Herman, Kiki Cuyler and Capt. Grimm were the men who hit the three baggers, and Riggs Stephenson, who hasn't been hitting the size of a hat for ten days, unloosed the double in a spot where it drove home two men.

Young Pitchers Star.

It was a raw, cloudy and cold afternoon, and only about 1,500 braved the atmosphere to watch the contest. Manager Hornsby wouldn't take a chance on pitching any of his stars. He turned the labor over to his two big youngsters, Ed Baecht and Lonnie Warneke, and they delivered about the best brand of pitching that any one of the Cubs has shown in a week, after Baecht recovered from a rather shaky first inning.

The Blues got five hits. Four of them were made off Baecht in five innings, three of them in the opening round. Warneke allowed only one hit in four innings and walked nobody. In fact, only twelve men faced him in his four innings. The one fellow who got on was caught stealing.

The Blues used three pitchers, Thomas, Carson and Gabler, each for three innings, and the Cub hitters didn't spare any of them. The victory today gave the Chicagoans a good record for the spring exhibition games. They played 29 games, winning 17, losing 11 and tying 1. Sixteen of the games were against major league teams.

Blues Score Two in First.

They were beaten in a series only by the Giants, who won 5 of 8 games. They split even in two games with Detroit and split even in six games with Pittsburgh.

After two were out in the second, Grimm tripled to right center and Jurges brought him home on a single to left. Baecht walked and Hack beat out a hit toward third, but Jurges ran around third and was thrown out before he could get back.

In the third inning the Cubs put over the tying run. Herman opened with a single and went to third when Cuyler slammed one safely to left. Herman ran home when Danny Taylor forced Cuyler at second.

Lead Seesaws Again.

The Blues took the lead again in the fourth when, with one out, Pick walked. He moved up on Boken's out and came home when Kelly doubled down the left field foul line.

Stephenson came to life in the fifth with a hit that put the Cubs in the lead again. Herman led off with a walk but was forced out by Cuyler. Barton singled to right, sending Cuyler to third, and then Stephenson walloped one to the hill in right field, scoring both Cuyler and Barton. Stevie thought his hit was good for three bases and was relayed out at third.

In the seventh Cuyler drove the ball into the teeth of the wind and against the score board in left center for three bases. He stayed there while Barton grounded out, but came home when Pick ran into foul ground and caught Stephenson's long foul fly.

Hack, Cuyler Work Squeeze.

Hack delivered a long hit in the eighth that helped the Cubs in producing three runs. Grimm started with a walk and Warneke walked after Jurges had flied out. Hack then pulled a triple to the corner of right field, scoring both Grimm and Warneke. Herman walked and then, with Cuyler at bat, the boys executed the squeeze play, Cuyler bunting as Hack sped home.

THEY'RE OFF AT WASHINGTON TODAY—HOOVER THROWS FIRST BALL

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.—(AP)—Setting the pace for baseball's 1932 parade, the Washington Senators open the season to morrow against the Boston Red Sox with President Hoover and other notables in attendance.

WALTER JOHNSON.

Pomp and ceremony which only the nation's capital can provide will mark this inaugural game, taking place a day before the other 14 clubs of the National and American league launch their pennant campaigns.

Mrs. Hoover and most of the members of the cabinet are expected to accompany President Hoover, who will officially open the season by throwing out the first ball.

About the field will be grouped a colorful assemblage estimated by club officials at 30,000 if the weather changes from the cold rain which hung over the capital today.

It is doubtful whether Joe Cronin, the Senators' shortstop, will be able to play, particularly if the weather is bad. He was discharged from a hospital only today after a tonsilitis attack. If he is out of the lineup, Johnny Kerr, utility infielder acquired from the White Sox with Carl Reynolds for two pitchers whom Walter Johnson could use nicely right now, will go into the shortfield.

CARDS ARE READY

St. Louis, Mo., April 10.—(AP)—With retention of their National league pennant as their goal, the world champion Cardinals will open the season here Tuesday against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The St. Louis Browns will be in Chicago the same day for their first American league game, but any title hopes held by them have not been broadcast.

Flint Rhem, who pitched the Cardinals to victory in their opening games of the last two years, will be given the opportunity again this year.

The Browns will place their pitching hopes in either Walter Stewart or Dick Coffman, with final decision not expected to be made until a few hours before the game.

INDIANS ARE CHESTY

Cleveland, O., April 10.—(AP)—The Indians jump into the American league race Tuesday at Detroit with all the potentialities of a monkey wrench in the machinery.

Materially strengthened at the weaker points and certainly improved all along the line, the team shows greater promise than in any year since 1926. It looks like a first division team on the strength of its spring training and there are those who pick it to finish third.

Wes Ferrell, who opens against Detroit, is in better form than at any time last summer. Winning better than 20 games for the last three seasons, the Indian ace is counted on to duplicate again this year.

BOSTON EXPECTS SUCCESS

Boston, Mass., April 10.—(AP)—Now that the Boston Red Sox have lost their last place complex, they are going to get somewhere in the American league race, Manager Shano Collins predicted today.

"While I don't want to be too optimistic," he said, "I cannot help believing the club will be better this year than it was in 1931."

Manager Bill McKechnie appears equally sanguine about the Braves' prospects. He believes he has the best outfielding trio that has worn the tribal spangles in years.

"Our pitching is going to be much better this year, although the 1931 collapse could not be traced to our hurling," he said. "We had too many youngsters last year, but they all came through and are now seasoned enough for major league ball."

MACK PICKS PHILS

Philadelphia, Pa., April 10.—(AP)—Just one of baseball's vagaries is the apparent paradox in the attitudes of Philadelphia's two teams as they take the pennant trail Tuesday.

Connie Mack thinks the Athletics have lost some of their confidence by their world series defeat and have improved accordingly. Burt Shotton thinks the Phillies have gained confidence and have improved accordingly.

The Associated Press consensus rated the Phils to wind up in sixth place this year, but that didn't stop Connie Mack from expressing the thought that the National leaguers might cop the pennant. He said it after his A's had been soundly trimmed in the annual city series.

Phil Collins has been nominated to pitch for the Phils when they open at the Polo grounds Tuesday. Connie Mack, as is his custom, has declined to announce his starting pitcher, but the experts think the Yankees will face George Earnshaw at Shibe park.

THREE CONTENDERS IN N. Y.

New York, April 10.—(AP)—New York will start the major league season with three pennant contenders, two of them bona-fide, the other perhaps just hopeful.

CHICAGO DOUBLES TEAM GETS SIXTH PLACE AT A. B. C.

Krems' 700 Series Lands Tenth in Singles.

Detroit, Mich., April 10.—[Special.]—Chicago bowlers played leading rôles in the shifting of the doubles and singles leaders in the American Bowling Congress tournament today.

Tommy Corken and Art Hein went into sixth place in the doubles when they mustered a 1,298 count on combined efforts of 429, 447 and 422. Hein scored 224, 222, and 223 for a 669 aggregate. His partner rolled a 629 series on 205, 225, and 199.

Krems Rolls 700 Series.

Eddie Krems, a member of the Boyle Valve team, took tenth position in the singles with 700. Krems' games were 197, 236, and 267. Several taps prevented Krems from landing one-two-three in the singles.

The five members of the Boyle Valve lineup totaled 3,132 in their individual competition. Krems led with 700, Adolph Carlson followed with 626, Leo Faetz had 625, Ernie Schantz 615, and Dominick De Vito 576.

Wester in 11th Place.

Hank Wester shot 697 for 11th in the singles. Wester's games were 253, 188, and 256.

Marty Gavin captured twelfth place in the singles with 693. He started with 254 and shot 230 in the second game, but two splits kept him down to 209 in his final effort.

Two other Chicagoans gathered big counts in the singles. Tony Blazina scored 674 on 243, 195, and 236, and John Lusk piled up 666 pins on 226, 215, and 225.

The Jefferson Clothiers of Dayton, O., are the 1932 team champions of the American Bowling Congress. The 64 teams scheduled on the windup tonight failed to better their 3,108 total. The Verifines of Milwaukee finished second with 3,101, and Joe Voss Belters, Chicago, took third with 3,046.

The Dayton bowlers will receive $1,000 as the first place prize and five diamond medals. They will also receive an additional $65 as their 1,123 game is the highest recorded during the present tourney.

Buffalo Wins Hockey Title When Riot Stops Game

Detroit, Mich., April 10.—(AP)—Buffalo won the International Hockey league championship tonight, 2 to 1, when Referees Jerry Goodman and Mike Rodden declared the game between the Buffalo Bisons and Detroit Olympics forfeited near the end of the third period as a wild protest by fans prevented completion of the match. Fans hurled everything within reach on the ice after Goodman had ruled out an apparent goal by Leroy Goldsworthy that would have tied the score.

Sparta Beats Brickies, 4-0, in Cup Game

BY OFFSIDE.

Sparta soccer eleven whipped the Bricklayers, 4 to 0, yesterday afternoon in the Peel cup competition.

Sparta first scored on a cross by Vidano past Hjulian to Matus, who counted. Sparta again scored on a free kick when Hjulian took more than four steps. Scott, Cuthbert and Coutts were banished as the result of a battle following Hjulian's foul. Playing short handed, the Brickies' defense cracked.

Linnea and Buda teams played to a 1 to 1 tie in the second Peel cup game yesterday. A half hour overtime failed to break the deadlock. The game will be replayed this week.

Maccabee All Stars defeated the Jugo-Slavs, 2 to 1, in a regular National Professional league game. Olympia beat the Carpenters, 3 to 0.

Results in the International league: Swedes, 3; Schwaben, 1. Vienna, 1; Danish Americans, 1. Vikings, 1; Forest Park, 0.

REPORT HENRY WILL NOT COACH MISSOURI IN '32

Columbia, Mo., April 10.—(AP)—Information from an unimpeachable source today indicated Gwin Henry, head football coach at the University of Missouri since 1923, would not return next fall. No official announcement of Henry's future status is expected before next week.

Henry was forced from the gridiron in mid-season last fall because of illness, but since then has recovered. During the last two weeks he has been directing spring practice.

The informant who asked his identity be kept secret, said the university's decision to let Henry go was partly due to the understanding that the coach still was ill. He added the university may grant Henry a leave of absence on part pay.

Henry maintains he has recovered fully. Although Missouri has had two poor seasons in 1930 and 1931, Henry's record at Missouri has been unusually good, having won three championships in his nine years here.

OHIO STATE FACES COLUMBUS TODAY IN FIRST GAME

JOE WALCOTT HAS LITTLE TALK IN COURT ON FIGHTS

New York, April 10.—[Special.]—Joe Walcott, one of the outstanding colored fighters in ring history, was haled into court today, but remained to chat amiably over old times and bygone battles with Magistrate Maurice H. Gotlieb.

He was released and the charge against him, that of possessing policy slips, dismissed after Joe proved the numbers were of ancient vintage.

Magistrate Gotlieb recalled the historic battle at Coney Island between Walcott and Saginaw Kid Levigne. Joe said Levigne had lost part of his ear.

"I always thought it was your ear," said Gotlieb.

PURDUE, WABASH MEET IN SECOND BATTLE TODAY

Lafayette, Ind., April 10.—[Special.]—Victorious in its first start of the season at Wabash yesterday, the Purdue baseball nine will meet the Little Giants in a return game here tomorrow afternoon. Typical early season raggedness was evident yesterday as Purdue staved off a late Wabash rally to win 5 to 4.

Lambert indicated tonight that he would start either Palo, veteran left-hander, or Hoopengardener as pitcher in an effort to sweep the series.

Starr, Cardinal Pitcher, Prefers Minors; Released

St. Louis, Mo., April 10.—(AP)—Raymond Starr, right handed pitcher, has been returned to the Rochester International league club by the St. Louis Cardinals. Starr was released at his own request, because he preferred to be a minor league starter rather than a relief pitcher in the majors, Cardinal officials said.

Garden Must Select Battle Site Saturday

New York, April 10.—[Special.]—A decision on the site for the Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey world's heavyweight championship bout signed by Madison Square Garden corporation for June 16 must be forthcoming not later than Saturday if complications are to be avoided.

This was revealed tonight by Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, prior to the champion's departure for an exhibition tour which starts tomorrow in Toronto and continues through the remainder of the month.

Prefer Yankee Stadium.

Jacobs revealed his contract specifies that the Garden must notify the champion and the challenger of the site 60 days in advance of the bout. Failure to observe this clause automatically invalidates the agreement, Jacobs said, and compels the Garden to pay Schmeling a forfeit. Jacobs professed ignorance of the site for the battle, although it is known the Garden prefers the Yankee stadium at an admission scale of from $3 to $27.50.

Difficulties in making an early announcement of the site revolve about the financial arrangement between the Garden and the National Exhibition company, operating the Polo grounds, and the New York American league club, operating the Yankee stadium.

Parks Want Guarantee.

In seeking a contract renewal this year the Garden met with a demand that the old percentage arrangement be renewed, but that in addition the Garden guarantee the Yankees and Giants a minimum rental income of $75,000 for the season. The percentage scale was to be 10 per cent on heavyweight championship bouts and 12½ per cent on all other attractions.

TONY LAURITIS PICKED TO LEAD DE PAUL FIVE

Tony Lauritis has been elected captain of next year's De Paul university basketball team, Athletic Director James Kelly announced yesterday. Lauritis, playing a guard position, was the leading scorer of the team last season.

Lauritis virtually has grown up in basketball togs. As a flyweight he performed on a Catholic league championship team at De La Salle High. Subsequently he led a lightweight team to the parochial title and captained the De La Salle heavies in his final year.

Miami, Fla., April 10.—[Special.]—Helen Betty Hertz, daughter of John Hertz, Chicago capitalist and sportsman, today was awarded the Miami Beach sportswoman's trophy for the season of 1931-'32.

Sports considered were swimming, golf, tennis, horsemanship, marksmanship and fishing, while credits were given for work done toward a pilot's license in aviation. The main trophy, to be in competition for ten years, will be given to the Miami Beach Women's club, at the request of Miss Hertz, for custody until next year's tournament.

SEGURA RETAINS MEXICAN TITLE; BEATS COLIMA

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, April 10.—[Special.]—Francisco Segura retained his Mexican light heavyweight title last night when he won a twelve round decision over Bert Colima of California.

The decision was an unpopular one, for while both fighters showed little enthusiasm, Colima appeared the less willing to force the going.

Neither delivered a telling blow in the first five rounds. Then Colima suddenly came to life and had Segura on the ropes for several seconds with a series of lefts and rights to the body and head. Thereafter the bout was a mixture of sparring and clinching.

AMATEUR MANAGERS MEET.

KILBOURNE TESTS HANSEN'S HITTING ABILITY TONIGHT

Seeks Fourth Victory in White City Ring.

Jack Kilbourne, middleweight champion of Australia, will meet Haakon Hansen of Chicago in the ten round windup of the boxing show tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Each expects to weigh 158 pounds.

Three fights at White City have established Kilbourne as one of the best boxers who ever fought in the south side arena. He showed that he is a clever boxer and hard hitter while defeating Roy Williams, Harry Fuller, and Ray Tremblie decisively.

Can Kilbourne Take It?

Hansen is a right hand puncher, and if the Australian absorbs his hardest blows fans will be convinced that he can assimilate punishment, something he has not been called on to do in his other appearances here. Hansen has watched Kilbourne box and says he has a plan of attack to accomplish what Williams, Fuller, and Tramblie have failed to do.

Kilbourne hasn't lost a bout since Dave Shade defeated him at San Diego, Cal., two years ago. Mique Malloy, White City promoter, is seeking to induce Shade to meet the winner of the Kilbourne-Hansen bout on April 21.

Callahan Meets Vassis.

Shuffle Callahan, Chicago Heights middleweight, and Costas Vassis, South Chicago slugger, will battle in the five round semi-final. Callahan has not fought in Chicago in more than a year. He knocked out Charlie Cavnero of Mexico at Tucson, Ariz., last November and whipped Joe Mellnor at Hot Springs, Ark., six weeks ago. Callahan thinks he can knock out Vassis.

Vassis has won six of seven matches since his arrival in Chicago from Greece several months ago. He claims the middleweight championship of that country.

King Levinsky will referee one of the eight amateur boxing bouts at St. Philips High school gymnasium, Jackson boulevard and Kedzie avenue, tonight. Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, also will be present. Proceeds will go to the fund being raised for a new stadium at the west side school.

Tonight's Card

Jack Kilbourne vs. Haakon Hansen, 10 rounds.
Shuffle Callahan vs. Costas Vassis, 5 rounds.
Pete Wistert vs. Biff Bennett, 5 rounds.
Joe Barlow vs. Hamburg Wiskasy, 5 rounds.
Jimmy Brock vs. Jack Bipp, 4 rounds.
John Lalo vs. Jack Sharkey, 4 rounds.
Bob Greshek vs. Jud Judkins, 4 rounds.

Leonard Back on Comeback Trail Tonight

New York, April 10.—(AP)—Whether by accident or design, Benny Leonard's latest step in a comeback campaign comes at a time when the national boxing schedule contains few, if any, counter attractions.

The retired undefeated lightweight champion, who defeated Billy McMahon, welterweight youngster, at St. Nicholas arena here some weeks ago, will try again in the same ring tomorrow night, this time against Buster Brown, Baltimore boxer of no particular pretensions.

At Los Angeles tomorrow night, young Corbett, Fresno welterweight contender who has been beset by the injury jinx for months, will fight Ceferino Garcia of Manila in a ten rounder.

Jack Kilbourne, Australian middleweight who has been campaigning successfully in the central states meets Haakon Hansen of Norway at the White City arena, Chicago, tomorrow night.

To Be or Not to Be, Is Question in Starlings' Case

BY BOB BECKER.

What shall we do with the European starlings? Shall we let them take over nesting sites or drive them from our yard? Many bird fans are facing this startling dilemma this spring, as indicated by the following letter from a resident of Park Ridge, Illinois.

Miss Sallie Springer writes about some starlings that want to appropriate a nesting site in her yard. An old soft maple, for years the favorite home of screech owls, squirrels, and other wild life, offers many inducements to the starlings. So the battle is on.

"This old soft maple used to be used by screech owls. One year we found a family of them and father took them to Lincoln park. The following season we destroyed the screech owl nest and the squirrels took possession. They have held it ever since.

"Now the starlings want to move in. There is another hole in the tree much higher than the one used by the squirrels. There isn't any doubt about they're being starlings. They seem to be masters of the English sparrows, because the strangers took the nesting hole from the sparrows. Apparently they are going to nest there.

"The other day these starlings fought a real battle with the robins. I watched the fight, about twenty robins against two starlings. After this fight the starlings disappeared for two days. But they have returned. Now the question is, should we let these birds stay or shall we oust them?"

Bird authorities are divided on the question. On one side you have the defenders of our native species resenting the competition which the starling offers to robins, wrens, etc. The opposing faction points out that the starling is as much or more of an economic asset as some of the songbirds which we encourage.

However, this much is true. In the east the starlings have become a nuisance and they have been trying to figure out some way to get rid of them. Washington is very much fed up on the thousands of starlings which stay in that city.

Pilots Tell What 'n' Why They'll Win

ure to finish one-two in the National. The Brooklyn Dodgers, rebuilt by Max Carey, may surprise the National circuit if the key men come through.

The Giants will have only one newcomer, Outfielder Len Koenecke, in the opening lineup against the Phillies, although Hal Schumacher may prove a useful addition to the pitching staff. Freddie Lindstrom, handy man of the club, will be in center field as long as Second Baseman Hughie Critz's arm holds up. Walker or Fitzsimmons will pitch the opener.

The Yankees will try two new men in the infield, Jack Saltgaver at second and Frank Crosetti at either third or shortstop. Vernon Gomez or Charlie Ruffing will pitch against the Athletics.

Brooklyn will present virtually a new club, with Hack Wilson expected to take up the clean-up rôle vacated by Babe Herman. Glenn Wright is the only infield holdover, with Joe Stripp at third, Tony Cuccinello at second, and Long George Kelly at first. Waite Hoyt, principal addition to the pitching staff in the off season, probably will pitch the opening game against the Boston Braves.

PIRATES ARE BETTER

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 10.—(AP)—With a new manager, the Pirates will launch the season at St. Louis Tuesday a trimmer club than that which finished fifth last year.

George Gibson, Pirate of old, is the new manager and he and the experts, who figure things out in advance with pencil and paper, feel the Bucs will perform better this year than last.

The batteries for the opener against the National league champs have not been picked yet.

DETROIT HAS HOPES

Detroit, Mich., April 10.—(AP)—There will be something of neighborhood rivalry and a good deal of ceremony Tuesday when the Tigers open their season at Navin field. The opposition will be from the neighboring lake city of Cleveland, a team local fans particularly like to see beaten.

There has been less optimistic predicting than in former years, and that very fact appears to have inspired a hope that the Tigers may climb into the first division.

REDS OPTIMISTIC

Cincinnati, O., April 10.—(AP)—With prospects of improving their showing of last year when they finished in the National league cellar, the Cincinnati Reds will open the pennant chase here Tuesday with the Chicago Cubs.

Manager Dan Howley feels his club was considerably strengthened in the trade with Brooklyn in which he acquired Babe Herman, right fielder, and Lombardi, who is expected to make a great showing as catcher.

Either Si Johnson or Lucas will pitch for the Reds Tuesday and Lombardi will catch.

INDOOR COURT HELPS MAROON TENNIS TEAM

Continuous practice since last autumn has made a formidable squad of the University of Chicago tennis team, which was practically wrecked by graduation last year after winning singles and doubles championships in the Big Ten. The Maroon tennis men had a clay court in the new field house.

Capt. Paul Stagg will play No. 1 this season and also will be on the doubles squad. Max Davidson, a sophomore from Harrison High school, and Herman Ries, who played No. 6 last year, are competing for the second rating on the team, with Lawrence Schmidt at No. 4.

Scott Rexinger, who was singles champion for two years; Herbert Heyman, who was with him on the doubles team, and Stanley Kaplan, who was No. 3, have been graduated.

April 27—Loyola.
April 29—Iowa.
May 4—Northwestern.
May 5—Reserves at Northwestern.
May 9—Illinois.
May 11—Notre Dame.
May 16—At Ohio.
May 19-21—Conference meet at Northwestern.
May 24-27—Interscholastic tournament.

Allison Beats Vines for Tulane Tennis Title

These two Davis cup players then teamed against Frank Parker, national boys' champion, and J. Gilbert Hall of Orange, N. J., to win the doubles championship, 7-5, 6-3.

BY GABBY HARTNETT.

[As Told to Irving Vaughan.]

Kansas City, Mo., April 10.—By going to a town fair where I had heard a ball game was to be played on a certain day, I discovered the short cut into the big league. That was in 1920 at Uxbridge, Mass., after I had played every one of the nine positions on the team at Dean academy, Franklin, Mass.

GABBY HARTNETT.

On the day of the game mentioned there happened to be a number of players from various minor leagues. They were there for a possible few extra dollars. But among them was everything except a catcher. That happened to be the very job I was serious about, probably because my dad had been a catcher before me. So I caught that day, and if I do say it myself I had a big afternoon. A scout from the Worcester, Mass., club thought the same thing, and I went with him.

Things happened swiftly for me in the minors. That same year the regular catcher's bad luck was my good fortune. He broke a leg so I filled in. I just about had the job cinched from then on. It was in the following season during a series at Albany, N. Y., that Jack Doyle, the Cub scout, saw my work and engineered my purchase.

I knew of Doyle's presence, but that I was the one he was watching didn't come to me until that evening, and then in a roundabout way. I was a little short of change, as is usually the case with minor leaguers just getting a start. I went to the manager and asked about the chances of making a two dollar touch. I told him I was in need of dinner money. Getting two dollars in a case of that kind is frequently more of a job than you might imagine.

"Here's a five spot and don't worry about paying it back immediately," was the boss' reply. "You can mail it back to me next spring from the Cubs' training camp."

It took me about a minute to figure out just what kind of a line he was giving me. Then it dawned on me that I was the fellow Doyle had been watching and that the deal already had been closed.

Atlanta Golfer Shoots 67; Yes, It's Bobby Jones

Atlanta, Ga., April 10.—(AP)—Bobby Jones came out of retirement long enough today to shoot a 33—34—67 at East Lake and, with George Sargent, administer a 5 and 3 drubbing to the ambitious youngsters, Ernie Ball and Charlie Yates.

The four met in an exhibition match for the American Olympic fund. While Ball, assistant East Lake pro and southeastern P. G. A. champion, and Yates, Atlanta and Georgia amateur champion, played good enough golf to win from most pairs, they could not defeat Calamity Jane, Jones' worn but faithful putter.

Bobby's ability to roll them into the cup from all directions, coupled with his usual fine iron game, gave him eight one putt greens and seven birdies for a 67, one over his own record for the course and four below par. He was over par on only two holes.

Yates carded a 73. The 19 year old Ball turned in a 74, and Sargent, veteran East Lake professional and former national open champion, registered 75.

Nurmi Never, Never Ran for Cash, Say Finns

Paavo Will Wed

HELSINGFORS, Finland, April 10—(AP)—Banns for the marriage of Paava Nurmi, noted Finnish athlete, and Miss Syvi Laaksonen, daughter of a soft drink manufacturer, at Abo were published today.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, April 10.—(AP)—Finnish athletic authorities took a long step forward today in their effort to clear Paavo Nurmi of charges of professionalism and lead to his reinstatement by the International Amateur Athletic federation.

The Finnish Athletic league, through President Kekkonen, announced it had formally protested to the I. A. A. F. against Nurmi's suspension, declared the charges against the famous distance runner were false, and that his disqualification was unwarranted.

It's Now Up to I. A. A. F.

This action was taken to mean that the league vouchsafed for Nurmi's eligibility as an amateur and that it was now up to the I. A. A. F. either to lift the suspension it placed on Nurmi a week ago or investigate his status through its own organization.

The consensus was that the international organization would lift the suspension. Its general policy always has been to accept without question the decisions of its member associations in such matters.

The suspension it voted on Nurmi was a temporary one pending the results of a Finnish investigation into Paavo's status. With Nurmi cleared by Finland there seems to be little doubt the I. A. A. F. suspension will be lifted.

Brands "Second Hand Tales."

In his formal protest to the international federation President Kekkonen referred to "second hand tales" and "absolutely unfounded reports" regarding special compensation allegedly paid to Nurmi in connection with competitive appearances in Europe, notably Germany, Poland, and Italy.

Kekkonen admitted that the general situation with regard to amateur athletics had been doubtful for some time and that the exact circumstances concerning Nurmi's appearances are not quite clear.

The Finnish league intends, he said, to watch carefully arrangements for future athletic contests and reserve the right to call them off on 48 hours' notice if there is any question of professionalism.

MASON AND DIXON AMATEUR MEET OPENS TODAY

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 10.—(AP)—A strong field of amateur golfers led by J. R. Ryerson of Cooperstown, N. Y., the defending champion and recently runnerup in the North and South amateur tournament at Pinehurst, will begin play tomorrow in the annual Mason and Dixon golf tournament.

The 18 hole qualifying round will be played tomorrow with 16 to qualify for the championship flight. Match play is scheduled to begin Tuesday and to continue through the week.

Ryerson, who holds one leg on the new challenge trophy, offered last year, and two on the old Greenbrier cup, is expected to meet with stiff competition from Edmund Guggenheim of Roslyn, N. Y., and Davis N. Tallman of Minneapolis, who played well all winter in Florida tournaments. They stamped themselves as serious contenders today with practice rounds of 74 and 73, respectively.

KAMPFER MEETS LONDOS TONIGHT FOR MAT TITLE

Four Other Bouts Round Out Coliseum Card.

Jim Londos will make his third title defense of the year at the Coliseum tonight. His opponent is Hans Kampfer, German heavyweight.

Kampfer is the holder of the world's Graeco-Roman championship. He has every physical advantage, being younger by ten years, heavier by fifteen pounds, and taller by three inches. But in comparison to Londos, Hans is young in the game. Londos broke into professional wrestling 20 years ago in San Francisco.

Kampfer is rated the strongest opponent Londos has met since Jim McMillen stayed with him for two hours at Soldier's field last fall. He has been training here for several days.

Four other matches round out the card. Gino Garibaldi and Pat O'Shocker, both undefeated in this city, meet in the semi-windup. Frank Bronowicz is matched with Jack O'Dell, a newcomer from the northwest. Jim Clinkstock, giant Oklahoma Indian, will have a 50 pound weight advantage over Steve Sznosky, in another battle. Hans Bauer, Chicago German, opens the show against Abe Coleman, Jewish heavyweight.

U. S. SECURITIES HOLD SPOTLIGHT IN BOND MARKET

Advance When All Other Issues Decline.

New York, April 10.—(AP)—United States government loans held the spotlight in the bond market drama during the last week, while the majority of corporate securities joined the liquidation breadline.

The buoyancy of the federal list began early in the week and continued throughout, with the result that on Friday all Liberties and treasuries established new high records for the year, and most of them repeated this performance on Saturday.

Switch to U. S. Issues.

The contradictory bond movement was attributed partly to the assumption that investors had become discouraged with the budget balancing proceedings at Washington, as well as the outlook for business and industrial improvement, and decided to switch from preferred stocks and speculative bonds to the more stable government obligations.

The average for 60 corporate securities started the week with a new year's low and continued to slip daily throughout the seven sessions. While there were a number of spectacular fluctuations in railroad and utility bonds, the industrials were actually the hardest hit during the week.

American and Foreign Power 5s dipped sharply, as did American Water Works 6s, American I. G. Chemical 5½s, and loans of Armour & Co., Dodge Brothers, Morris & Co., and a number of others. International Telephone bonds were among the weakest, but various light and power company liens were under considerable pressure. Kreuger & Toll and International Match 5s were heavily sold at one time.

Rails Have Few Friends.

The railroads, especially the low priced speculative liens, had few friends. Even the better grade issues sagged in sympathy, although their losses were generally small. Nickel Plate 6s and St. Louis Southwestern Consolidated 4s were the most noticeable fluctuators.

State and municipal bond issues scheduled to be offered this week aggregate only $5,906,685, compared with $45,589,223 for the last seven days.

Form International Match Protective Committees

Protective committees to protect the interests of International Match corporation preferred stock and International match debentures were announced last night by Lee, Higginson & Co. Charles E. Adams, president of Air Reduction company, Inc., will serve as chairman of the preferred stockholders committee and James H. Perkins president of City Bank Farmers Trust Company of New York, as chairman of the debenture holders committee. David B. Stern of A. G. Becker & Co., is the Chicago member of the preferred stockholders committee and Wayne Chatfield-Taylor is the Chicago member of the debenture holders committee.

CROP DAMAGE BRINGS AID TO FARM BOARD

Cuts Future Surplus; Boosts Prices.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

All indications are that the winter wheat crop in the United States will be one of the shortest in recent years.

The government figures of 458,000,000 bu given out on Friday suggested less wheat in the five southwestern winter wheat states than was raised by Kansas alone last year.

The latter produced a record crop a year ago, 240,000,000 bu. The five states have a promise of only 207,000,000 bu as compared with 444,000,000 bu harvested last year and 122,000,000 bu in the short crop of 1917. Unless rain comes at once there is a great deal of wheat acreage in the southwest that is likely to deteriorate further.

It is believed by the traders who know anything about crop reports that the western third of Kansas and a large part of Nebraska is in for a crop failure. The Texas panhandle is also likely to have the smallest crop in years.

Wheat Seeding Is Delayed.

With spring wheat seeding in the northwest one to two weeks late, traders see possibilities of a material shortage in production this year which may be of sufficient magnitude to reduce surpluses to world's consumptive requirements. Latest reports from abroad are none too favorable in numerous sections. So European countries may go into the next crop with practically no reserves. What Russia will do is uncertain, but if present reports are true, there will be a shortage in the crop.

Liquidation has been heavy in grains, stocks, and all commodities, so that should there be any material increase in speculative and consumptive buying, an upward response in prices would appear as natural. Wheat is expected to be the leader in the upturn. There has been an advance of 5c from the recent low point, with a reaction of 3c, and a small rally.

Closing prices on Saturday made an irregular showing, wheat being unchanged for May and ¾c higher on other futures, corn 2⅛@2⅜c lower, oats off ¼c, and rye 2@2⅜c under the close of a week ago. Lard prices, however, were unchanged to 5c lower, and dry salted bellies 10@15c lower.

Farm Board Selling Wheat.

Farm board holdings of wheat are being sold on all bulges. Traders in the wheat pit claim that the market would have done materially better last week owing to the crop scare in the southwest, had it not been for heavy selling of wheat futures attributed to the farm board.

It is known, however, that large speculators close to the farm board have sold wheat freely on bulges and taken profits on breaks. Large local speculators are bullish and have taken on liberal lines and are understood to be in a position to give the market good support on all breaks.

Same as 1931 Basis.

The government crop report for April was made up on the same basis as last year, which basis has prevailed for the past three years. Allowance of the 14 per cent is said to have been made for abandonment of acreage, with conditions 75.8 per cent figures from that basis.

Open interest in May wheat has declined, while increases were made in July and September during the week. May is being liquidated freely, while new business is going into the deferred months.

May wheat closed Saturday at 56⅝@56½c, July 59@59½c for old style, and September 61⅜@61½c, new style being about ⅜@½c discount under old style. Prices for the week follow:

Corn Lowest Since 1920.

Liquidation in corn was heavy, especially on Friday when May broke 3c bu, reaching 32½c, with a fair rally later. The market is said to have been well liquidated, especially in closing of spreads where corn was sold and wheat bought. Open interest is not heavy and shows little change. The country movement is light although there is plenty of corn back, but farmers are not selling. Eastern demand continues to be filled up largely by Ohio, while industries are taking only moderate supplies.

Planting in the south has been delayed somewhat, while in the corn belt states preparation of corn ground made fair progress. Prices had a range of nearly 4c with the close on May, 33⅜@34c; July, 37¼c, and September, 39½@39⅝c. Prices follow:

| | May. | July. | Sept. |
|---|---|---|---|

| 1930-'31 | .59 -1.03⅜ | .61¾-.87⅛ | .59 -.73⅝ |

Oats Near Season's Low.

Oat prices were depressed by weakness in corn, with lowest prices on Friday. The market is said to have been well liquidated, with cash interests absorbing the offerings on breaks. Cash demand has improved and movement from the country has enlarged. Action of price, however, is influenced by that of wheat and corn. May closed at 23¾@23⅝c, July 21¼c, and September 24⅝c.

Japan's Banks Hard Hit by Stock Drops

TOKIO, Japan, April 10.—(AP)—Banks in Japan are feeling more than ever the strain of the continued industrial and commercial depression.

This is shown in large reductions in deposits and loans in the case of the leading banking institutions, while many of the smaller ones face bankruptcy or have gone to the wall, especially in central Japan.

The report of the clearing house of 35 cities in Japan for February shows deposits held at the end of that month totaled 5,468,749,000 yen, a drop of 37,808,000 yen from the end of January. [The yen is valued at 50 cents at par.] Loans outstanding at the end of February totaled 5,229,947,000 yen for these clearing house banks, a decline of 400,008,000 yen from the previous month.

Smaller Banks Hit.

While the big banks of Tokio and Osaka are weathering the storm, owing to their conservative business policy and ironclad reserves, the smaller banks in the country prefectures are having a bad time. The year 1931 was one of the worst in their history. Even the solid banks in the chief cities have had to write off large amounts and transfer funds from their reserves.

Depreciation of securities held by the banks has been very great, the loss ranging from five per cent in the case of the Mitsui bank to 3.47 per cent for the Mitsubishi bank, which obliged them to draw on their reserves to the extent of 12,500,000 yen and 10,000,000 yen, respectively. Other banks had to make similar transfers in proportion.

The financial troubles in England and Germany were reflected in Japan in many ways, especially in the price of bonds. For example, Kobe City five per cents, considered gilt edged, dropped 10.30 yen from the 97.20 yen of the middle of last year to 86.90.

Face Added Burdens.

Due to the revival of the gold embargo by the Inukai cabinet, Japanese companies and municipalities that have to pay interest and sinking funds on loans made abroad face a heavily increased burden, and those which did so under guarantee from the government are reported to be asking it to make good their losses, or at least part of them. In view of the government's own financial straits, however, there seems little hope of their getting relief.

When the yen was at normal exchange, companies and cities which borrowed under government guarantee had to pay 7,600,000 yen annually, or about $3,560,000 in United States funds. With the yen at 32, however, they have to pay approximately 3,980,000 yen more, mostly due in June and July.

TELLS WHAT'LL BRING REALTY BACK TO LIFE

Dayton Keith Outlines Situation.

BY AL CHASE.

Courageous, intelligent management, more mortgage money and a normal increase in employment are the trio that will put real estate back on its feet, according to Dayton Keith, one of the country's best posted men on property management. Mr. Keith is supervising the management of approximately $20,000,000 in properties from Florida to Boston and from the Massachusetts coast to the Mississippi river. He is a member of the American Bond and Mortgage company bondholders' protective committee.

DAYTON KEITH. [Moffett Photo.]

In a comprehensive and careful analysis of the current realty loan situation Mr. Keith points out that prompt reorganization of distressed properties hinges on new mortgage money and at present this is almost impossible to get. He adds, however, that there are still a few canny lenders of institutional money who look favorably on Chicago realty that is well managed.

"It has been our observation," said Mr. Keith, "through this period that a well maintained, well managed building, even in this market, can be kept well occupied at rentals that will not only carry operating expenses, taxes and insurance, but a moderate mortgage as well. Numerous instances can be cited of buildings as fully occupied as they ever were and at rents only slightly below the schedules of a year or two ago.

Has Diverted Funds.

"The weakening of the country's credit structure has placed a premium on cash resources and liquid assets. This situation has acted to throw what money is available into easily converted securities and has diverted funds from real estate mortgage channels.

"Perhaps the most momentous factor is the withdrawal of many insurance companies from the market because of the volume of loans to policy holders and the unusual importance of maintaining substantial cash reserves to meet unforeseen emergencies.

"But, even if this factor is discounted, the rent cutting competition in which some permanent and temporary landlords have become involved has brought about extreme wariness in the attitude of lending agencies toward real estate investment.

"However, the latter situation is self-correcting and there are still a few astute lenders of institutional money who can recognize a sound investment in Chicago realty and who will back their judgment with funds, where the subject property is well located, well designed and intelligently managed."

Suffered Attacks.

Mr. Keith points out that mediocre properties and those not kept up in first class condition have suffered from attacks from three quarters. Slack demand has brought a high degree of vacancy. Rents have been reduced unjustifiedly in a hysterical, unreasoning attempt to attract tenants and earnings have been further reduced by tenants' inability to pay rents.

"It seems, however, that the main difficulty lies in the fact that many landlords are demoralized and that some receivers are either unfamiliar with or indifferent to the rates that must be maintained to carry the financial loan of a property adequately," said Mr. Keith. "This condition in turn has enabled tenants and prospective tenants to drive bargains which have acted to deflate real estate values to a point far below potential worth."

Gas Group Plans to Spend $6,000,000 on Advertising

New York, April 10.—(AP)—Plans for a national advertising and promotional campaign to stimulate the use of gas and gas burning appliances, involving the expenditure of approximately $6,000,000 in excess of current advertising expenditures, were announced today by John A. Fry of Detroit, chairman of the national advertising committee of the manufacturers' section of the American Gas association. Fry said the campaign would be started this summer and continue for three years.

DuPont Asserts U. S. Could Pare Billion Off Expenses

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 10.—Continuing his attack on "governmental extravagance," Lammot Du Pont, president of E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co., sent a letter today to Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, in which he took issue with the latter's assertion that it would not be expedient to make any substantial reduction in government expenditures.

Mr. Du Pont, who supported President Hoover in the 1928 campaign, sent a letter on Friday to stockholders, employés and friends of the company asking them to appeal to congress to curtail federal expenditures. His letter to Senator Hastings charges that federal expenses could be pared by business methods at least $1,000,000,000 a year.

Holds Economies Can Be Made.

"Your letter of March 31, inclosing copy of your published statement of March 30, was duly received. The statement apparently attempts to prove that when government expenses have reached a high level it is not expedient and probably not possible to make any substantial reduction. I am not so easily convinced on this point and feel certain that sweeping economies should be made and can be made, provided our representatives in Washington will go at the problem aggressively.

"Since you have asked for suggestions as to how expenditures can be cut, I should like to call your attention to the following facts:

"The fiscal year 1926-'27 was a year of great industrial prosperity when the government was undoubtedly spending money very liberally. Yet the reports of the secretary of the treasury show that federal expenditures during the fiscal year 1931-'32 will run approximately $1,000,000,000 higher than five years ago. Can any reasonable citizen contend that a 28 per cent increase in United States government expenditures is justifiable at a time when the income of the people of the United States has declined by an even greater percentage.

"Begging the Question.

"You state that in the entire budget for the coming year there is an item of only $1,107,400,000 'from which alone savings can be made.' This seems like begging the entire question. Aside from the interest and sinking fund payments, which for the current fiscal year amount to a little more than $1,000,000,000, it would appear that most of the other expenditures, amounting to more than $3,000,000,000, can be drastically cut, provided government officials and congress are ready to act in this emergency, even to the point of changing legislation if necessary.

"I should like to know why the foregoing figures do not indicate that it should be possible to save even more than $1,000,000,000 per annum, and so effect a reasonable balance of the budget, excluding the sinking fund, without any additional form of taxation, provided our government officials will follow the same business methods that every corporation is forced to follow in these times."

By ALEXANDER NOYES.

[Financial Editor of The New York Times.]

New York, April 10.—Last week's persistent decline of the stock exchange had many causes. Absence of the traditional springtime seasonal recovery in trade, the fact that the country's steel production in March showed by last week's report a decrease of 7 per cent from that of January, where as in 1930 and 1931 there had been an increase of 17 to 26 per cent, was at least partly accountable for the market's action, observers agreed. But the kind of movement which occurred is not wholly explained without allowing also for financial feeling in regard to the congressional situation.

Bond Market Proves Erratic.

The action of investment bond prices, might at first sight not seem clearly assignable to that cause. But Wall street makes large allowance these days for the fact that abnormal circumstances have converted the usually sober and deliberate bond market into a market which moves rapidly up or down, in response to the shifting of financial sentiment, with the impulsiveness which used to be considered exclusively the office of the stock market. The "selected averages," which indicate the bond market's variations, rose 9¼ points between the middle of December and the middle of January and have subsequently fallen back to 7⅞. The advance was commonly ascribed to the reconstruction corporation's arrival in the field, to the loans arranged by it for numerous railways, to the decrease of bank failures to almost nominal proportions, and to release of hoarded money running, by the reserve board's estimate, above $200,000,000.

Look Toward Washington.

Observers do not find it easy to see why the market's improvement should have been so quickly canceled, unless because of renewed discouragement in response to developments at Washington.

Congressional proposals, and to an extent congressional action, are held to have provided sufficient material for disquiet. Nor, it is declared, can the market's nerves have been steadied by the way in which large scale speculators in foreign exchange have exploited such occurrences.

The "Glass bill," latest reports say, is probably destined to die with the present session. Enactment of the conceptions for financing the soldiers' bonus through reviving the ancient "greenback delusion in a modern dress," is not on the book of expectations kept by experienced political observers.

Recapture Clause Attacked.

Thursday's emphatic recommendation, by the house railway committee, for retroactive repeal of the "recapture clause" of the transportation act, whereby railways were prevented from laying by in prosperous times a proper reserve fund against a financial rainy day, was viewed an action of conservatism; not less so when it prescribed adjustment of railway rates, not too long deferred and highly disputed "valuation" but to production of sufficient revenue.

SURVEY HINTS TRADE GAIN IN NEAR FUTURE

Inventory Positions Are Called Strong.

"The positive steps to check excessive deflation," the report states in part, "which crystallized in the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Glass-Steagall bill exerted a powerful influence upon sentiment in the first quarter. Everywhere there was genuine relief when it became apparent that the new organization and the banking legislation were accomplishing their basic purposes. Bankers and business men felt that the removal of these two depressing influences was the most substantial achievement since deflation first set in.

Improvement Is Belated.

"Partly as a result of continued readjustments and partly as a result of widespread nervousness, there was little tangible industrial progress in the first three months of the current year. Prices continued to fall, hoarding remained on a hand to mouth basis and forward ordering was at a minimum. The most frequently consulted indices failed, practically from the beginning of January, to give evidence of a spring rise in industrial activity, such as usually takes place in the first quarter. The result was a continuance of the downward trend which has ruled since early in 1930.

"Industrial production for the cross section of industry included in the survey averaged 29.7 per cent lower in the first quarter of 1932 than in the corresponding period of 1931. The industrial average of sales in the quarter just closed was 28.7 per cent under that of the initial quarter of last year.

Inventories Are Reduced.

"There continues to be ample evidence of a strong industrial inventory position. Unit inventories for the quarter just closed averaged 22.6 per cent lower than in the same period in 1931; inventory valuations were down by 19.7 per cent. These averages show a continuance of policy of reducing stocks and writing down values which has been followed by the majority of concerns since the beginning of 1930.

"The industries contributing to the survey reported an average decline of 12.1 per cent in salary scales from the first quarter of 1932 and a reduction of 9.3 per cent in wage scales. Employment in the same industries was about 16 per cent below that of the first three months of 1931.

"Commodity prices for the quarter were 9.3 per cent lower than in the same quarter of 1931. A favorable feature of the commodity price movement has been the narrow fluctuations which have occurred since last November. The decline of 9.3 per cent compares favorably with the reduction in the valuations of inventories effected during the period.

Failures Are Increased.

"Failures in the quarter number 9,141, with liabilities of $275,520,622. The number exceeded that of the first quarter of 1931 by 7.8 per cent, while the liabilities were higher by 28.4 per cent. In both number and liabilities the failures of February and March were lower than those of January, a normal relationship. In 1931 liabilities increased 1.2 per cent from February to March, but this year the gain amounted to 10.4 per cent, with March liabilities of $97,760,311 against a February total of $84,900,106."

RATHJE URGES CLOSER CONTROL OF STATE BANKS

Abolishing of bank receivers and creation of a banking board for closer supervision of Illinois state banks is recommended by the committee on legislation of the Illinois Bankers association. The legislative program of the association was announced yesterday by William J. Rathje, chairman of the committee and president of the Mid-City Trust and Savings bank of Chicago.

"Bankers," Rathje said, "are the only group qualified by knowledge and experience to undertake the important task of preparing and introducing a measure providing the kind of law to protect, to the limit of practicability, the interests of depositors and at the same time make banking attractive both from an investment and vocational standpoint."

The banking board, under the committee's program, would consist of a representative each of labor, agriculture and industry, and two bankers "to supervise the department and to establish safe and sound methods of banking for protection of depositors and stockholders."

Report Consolidated Gas Earnings May Be Reduced

New York, April 10.—(AP)—Gossip in brokerage circles is that earnings of Consolidated Gas of New York may be pulled down somewhat this year by having to meet interest charges on the $60,000,000 debentures sold last fall. The company earned $4.94 a share on the common stock for 1931.
